Convicts Free Fellow Inmates In Cellblock

Seven Hostages Still Held In Freedom Talks

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Two long-term convicts in an "act of good faith" today released 14 prisoners from the courthouse cellblock they have held since Thursday but refused to give up seven hostages.

The siege at the U.S. Court House remained a stalemate but the chief of the U.S. marshals for the District of Columbia said "we are communicating with each other" over terms for freeing the hostages.

Chief U.S. Marshal George K. McKenny told newsmen the hostages are "in good shape and good spirits" after two days in the basement cellblock under the guns of convicts Frank Gorham Jr. and Otis Wilkerson, alias Robert N. Jones.

McKenny said "I can't say when this thing will come to an end, I'm not interested in any bloodshed, violence or loss of life."

He added Gorham and Jones "are not interested in loss of life either."

The marshal gave no indication of the progress of negotiations or the latest terms offered the two convicts who had originally demanded their freedom and a plane to take them to Africa or South America.

Gorham's mother, Mrs. Velma Gorham, held a sidewalk news conference to implore police not to harm her son or set off a bloodbath.

She said authorities "have kept him locked up too long — he just wants his freedom."

Mrs. Gorham added her son and Jones are "human, just like the Watergate people. He should be treated like the Watergate people, in a humane fashion."

Jones and Gorham, in what Justice Department spokesman John Russell called "an act of good faith", earlier freed 14 prisoners who had been in the lockup for other reasons at the time of the takeover, including one ex-policeman facing a murder charge. Another prisoner, a woman, decided to remain in the lockup, reportedly to provide company for the only woman hostage.

The others came out of the cellblock one at a time and were handcuffed and whisked away to various jails in the area. McKenny said the release of the other prisoners was "a good sign —it was a mutual sort of thing.""I belive a solution can be reached," the chief marshall said.

Russell said authorities hoped the prisoners would be released early today. He said authorities believed there were from 12 to 14 prisoners in the cellblock area.

The agreement was announced several hours after reports from inside the courthouse indicated that negotiations had deteriorated.

Gorham and Otis D. Wilkerson, who uses the name Jones as an alias, had told radio station WASH in a telephone interview Friday night they believed someone was trying to break into the cellblock area. Gorham threatened to kill one of the hostages.

Gorham, 25, and Wilkerson, 23, seized eight hostages Thursday afternoon in a desperate escape attempt. They released a deputy marshal, Raymond Miller, Thursday night in what they called a good faith effort.

On Friday the convicts rejected a proposal that they free their seven remaining hostages —three marshals, two lawyers, a Justice Department auditor and his secretary—in return for an airplane ride to the federal penitentiary in El Reno, Okla.

Gorham said, "The only way I' going to El Reno is feet first." The convicts said they wanted an airplane to take them to some distant point, such as Algeria or China.

They proposed a meeting of their relatives and members of their hostages' families with Attorney General William Saxbe.

Gorham apparently rejected a proposal by the police to allow them to pick up the prisoners the way transfers are normally made. In the normal procedure a police van is driven into an elevator, lowered to the basement cellblock, loaded and returned to street level.

The convicts apparently feared the police might try to trick them if they allowed the van to be lowered into the cellblock and Gorham decided to send them up one by one through "the front door."

The prisoners were loaded into a car and two grey police panel trucks. Russell said one was being taken to D.C. Gener-

STROLL IN SAN ANSELMO PARK

Lattice work casts a pattern of shadows in the path of Tracy Davis and her three-month-old mixed breed pet, Sarge, as they cross the bridge in San Anselmo's Creek Park near the Hub. The serene setting is in contrast to the controversy over the lessening of parking space to create the park.

County Workers Accept Contract

The threat of a strike by Marin County social service and mental health employees evaporated yesterday as they voted to accept a one-year contract for an 8 per cent pay increase.

The vote came at 1 p.m., an hour after the strike deadline set the night before by the Social Workers Unit of Local 535, Service Employees International Union.

The major concession won by the union was a one-year contract. County negotiators were pressing for a three-year agreement similar to those signed by other employee groups.

Union representative Larry P. Gerber said the new contract was ratified on a 71-to-29 vote of the members. The unit has about 160 members.

Several members noted later that the "top brass" at Civic Center had been given increases ranging from 10 to 15 per cent by supervisors.

Local 535 also represents 100 probation workers in Marin. They voted Thursday night to accept a three-year contract calling for a 9 per cent salary increase this month, 1 per cent in January and 7 per cent in each of the following two years.

A similar three-year agreement was offered social workers, but was rejected because the membership wants to negotiate next year's contract on the basis of actual inflation, not projected inflation.

Besides the 8 per cent pay boost, the county agreed to pay $50 per month toward an employee health plan, up from last year's $38.

Employees also were granted increased vacation time, among other things, they will get 12 days instead of 10 after the first year of employment and 15 days instead of 10 after three years.

Public health nurses, meanwhile, also ratified a one-yuear contract with the county. It provides for an 8 per cent hike and various fringe benefits.

"They heard about the social workers' contract," Asst. County Administrator Thomas J. Campanella said late yesterday, adding that he had tried to sign them to a three-year agreement.

SAUSALITO FERRY

Impact Report Sees Local Problems Offset

By PAUL E. PETERZELL

The controversial permanent ferry terminal proposed for Sausalito will cause some problems locally, but these will be offset by regional benefits, according to a long-awaited environmental impact report on the project. (See another bridge story, page 6.)

The voluminous report, almost two inches thick, says Sausalito will experience increased traffic and noise and air pollution from the Golden Gate Bridge District's downtown terminal.

But these adverse effects will be more than offset regionally because the expanded ferry system will cut the miles driven by private vehicles and lower air pollution throughout the region, the report adds.

A report in the appendix proposes that environmental damage expected from dredging could be offset if the district bought and preserved nearby marshland on either side of the Richardson Bay Bridge. This proposal by Drs. H. T. Harvey and J. P. Heath, subcontractors for the report, is not mentioned in the summary or body of the document.

The $48,000 report was done by Wilsey and Ham of Foster City. Parts of it were reviewed in past weeks by district officials, but released to the public only yesterday. The district's staff said the private review was needed to make "possible revisions." Only the finished product was released.

Several Sausalito city councilmen have said they would consider dropping their opposition to the terminal project if the impact report were favorable. The council's most recent action, however, was to authorize the city attorney to sue to stop the project if the district won't give the city power to limit passenger loads on the new and larger ferries.

Hundreds of Sausalito citizens have objected the new ferries will overwhelm the downtown with weekend and holiday visitors.

A public hearing on the report was set for 8 p.m. Aug. 22 in toll plaza offices. Copies will be sent to public libraries in Marin, and are available for $30.

Petersen Asserts No Wrongful Acts

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Henry E. Petersen, who directed the Watergate investigation from the break-in until the Senate insisted that a special prosecutor be appointed, has testified he never found evidence of wrongful behavior by the President.

Petersen, an assistant attorney general and the highest career man at the Justice Department, turned out to be the House Judiciary Committee's most friendly witness to President Nixon — even more helpful to Nixon than the witnesses invited by James D. St. Clair, Nixon's lawyer.

But Democrats pooh-poohed his defense of Nixon on the grounds that Petersen was a keen admirer of the President.

"He thinks he's the greatest president that ever came along —he adores him," said Rep. Don Edwards, D-Calif. "Petersen evidently regarded the President as king, all powerful, above the law," said Rep. Joshua Ellberg, D-Pa.

Rep. Charles E. Sandman, R-N.J., emerged from the hearing to say he had asked Petersen if he found any hint — to this day — of presidential involvement in the Watergate cover-up.

"He said he had no information or evidence that the President was wrongfully involved," Sandman told reporters.

"Put that on page one," he said.

Rep. Hamilton Fish Jr., R-N.Y., said Petersen's testimony on that point was exculpatory for Nixon "but he doesn't know what we know" about Nixon's cover-up role.

But on another point, members said, Petersen refused to defend Nixon's practice of telling H. R. Haldeman and John D. Ehrlichman and other close aides what he had learned from Petersen about the coverup investigation.

President At Western White House

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. (UPI) — President Nixon began a planned two-week California vacation today and scheduled an unprecedented sixth meeting this week with Vice President Gerald Ford.

The meeting, part of a series of more frequent talks between Nixon and his hand-picked vice president, was scheduled at midmorning.

Ford was in Southern California for a series of political appearances as Nixon began a stay at the Western White House. He and Nixon arrived within an hour of each other at El Toro Marine Air Station.

White House Press Secretary Ron Ziegler told newsmen Nixon wanted to confer with Ford on "domestic affairs" and economic policy as part of a series of meetings with top advisers in preparation for a major speech on the administration's plans to combat inflation, expected in about a week or 10 days.

But it also appeared that Nixon was keeping in touch with Ford to keep posted on the strength of impeachment sentiment in the House of Representatives.

Ford, formerly the House Republican leader, has close contacts with GOP congressmen and has said recently he feels the tide is turning against impeachment.

Nixon was en route to the West Coast yesterday when he learned that his former No. 2 aide, John Ehrlichman, had been found guilty of perjury and conspiracy in the Ellsberg burglary trial in Washington.

Aides said Nixon would make no comment on the verdict since Ehrlichman is appealing his conviction and the case is still in the judicial process.

Ehrlichman Is Found Guilty

WASHINGTON (UPI) — John D. Ehrlichman, once among the most powerful of President Nixon's aides, was convicted yesterday of conspiracy and three counts of perjury in the Ellsberg break-in case.

Ehrlichman immediately instructed his attorneys to appeal, and he said he was sure he would be cleared by higher courts.

A federal district court jury deliberated slightly more than 3 ½ hours before returning a guilty verdict against Ehrlichman and three others. They were charged with conspiracy to violate the civil rights of Dr. Lewis Fielding, the psychiatrist of Pentagon Papers defendant Danel Ellsberg, through a Sept. 3, 1971, break-in at Fielding's Beverly Hills, Calif., office.

Ehrlichman, highest-ranking former administration aide to be convicted in a Watergate-related matter, also was found guilty yesterday of three counts of lying to the FBI and a federal grand jury investigating the burglary.

He still faces trial in the Watergate cover-up case.

The prosecution said the California burglary was staged to examine Fielding's medical files in an effort to discredit Ellsberg after he leaked the Pentagon Papers on the origins of the Vetnam War.

Ehrlichman, 49, and his codefendants, convicted Watergate burglars G. Gordon Liddy, Bernard Baker and Eugenio Martinez, showed no outward sign of emotion as the guilty verdicts were returned.

Ehrlichman was cleared of one count of perjury relating to his grand jury testimony on the White House plumbers unit which prosecutors said planned the break-in.

With his wife Jeanne at his side, Ehrlichman talked briefly with reprters before leaving the courthouse. He said he ordered his lawyers to appeal the convictions, which together carry a maximum sentence of 25 years in prison and a $25,000 fine. He said he expects "complete exoneration."

"I have and have for many years had an abiding confidence in the American judicial system. Nothing has happened today that has shaken this confidence," said Ehrlichman, who was forced to resign April 30, 1973, as Nixon's domestic affairs adviser and No. 2 aide when the Watergate scandal reached the White House. Nixon at that time called Ehrlichman one of the "finest public servants I know."

The other defendants also were expected to appeal.

Oak Manor History Of Slips And Slides

By JEFF GREER

Oak Manor, the unincorporated neighborhood west of Fairfax where lawsuits are flying over house-wrecking soil slippage, is no stranger to slides and troubles with flooding during storms.

Slides were found in 1958 on the then undeveloped lots from which homeowners now are having to remove their houses, county records show.

There were far fewer county controls on subdivisions during the postwar building boom when Oak Manor had its beginnings.

Both the developer and the engineer for Oak Manor were members of the Marin County Planning Commission at the time: Adelbert Von Rotz, then a San Anselmo city councilman,

Former Chief Justice Is Buried In Arlington

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Earl Warren, the 14th Chief Justice of the United States, was buried with military honors in Arlington National Cemetery yesterday after colorful funeral rites at Washington Cathedal.

Under a bright blue sky, his family and the Supreme Court justices with whom he served for 16 years said a final farewell on a sunny cemetery knoll as officiating clergymen spoke the traditional words of committal:

"May the soul of Chief Justice Earl Warren rest in peace. We commit his body to the earth from which it came. May the Lord receive him."

There were three vollies, taps and a rendition of "America the Beautiful" by the U.S. Army Band. Then the American flag, which had draped the casket as it rested a day and a half in the Supreme Court building, was folded in a neat triangle by Army pallbearers in their dress blues and passed to Warren's successor, whitehaired Chief Justice Warren E. Burger, who walked across the grass and gave it to Mrs. Warren.

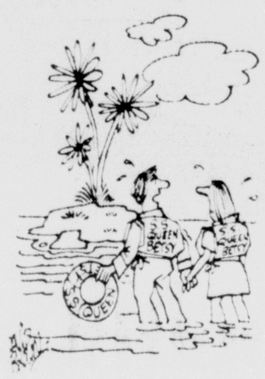
Each of the 13 justices said a few words of comfort to her and some of the other 39 members of the Warren family, including grandchildren.

Earlier President and Mrs. Nixon were among the lawyers, judges, members of Congress and dignitaries from past and present officialdom who gathered at the cathedral to pay their last respects.

Supreme Court police bore the casket into the huge Gothic edifice with members of the court following.

"He never lost that warm human spirit that made him one of the people even as the people were part of him," Rabbi Alvin I. Fine of San Francisco, a personal friend, told the cathedral audience.

TODAY'S WORLD



"It's probably just as well it turned out this way. I'd never have been able to scrape up the money to pay later for the cruise."

Ford Hints At Possible Guidelines On Inflation

SANTA FE, N.M. (UPI) — Vice President Gerald Ford said yesterday that inflation was the problem that concerned Americans most and that President Nixon soon would announce the specifics of a plan to fight it.

While stressing that he was not speaking for the President, Ford indicated the plan might include guidelines for reduced public spending. He also said federal controls on wages and prices would not be reinstated.

Ford made his remarks at the 1974 Lieutenant Governors Conference where more than 30 state executives had gathered. He later attended a classified weapons briefing at the Los Alamos Scientific Laboratory before leaving for California.

"Every poll indicates inflation is the matter of gravest concern," Ford said. "We have to come up with something that will be reassuring and will indicate to the American people that there is a plan.

"The President is going to in the next week or so set forth the specifics."

He said the battle against inflation must include a maximum effort to balance the federal budget and sacrifices at the federal, state and local levels of government. But there would be no tax increase.

Tension Eases A Little On Baltimore's Streets

BALTIMORE (UPI) — Sporadic fires and disturbances continued last night, but police said there was no repeat of the widespread looting that swept through many parts of the city Thursday night when about half the police force walked off the job to join fellow striking municipal workers.

A police department spokesman said "several dozen" strikers returned to work overnight. Police spokesman Dennis Hill estimated 600 officers were still on strike early today.

Circuit Judge James Murphy scheduled a hearing today to determine whether to hold local 1195 of the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees in contempt for refusing to obey an injunction against the police strike.

Murphy also ordered three union leaders jailed if a 13-day walkout by 3,500 blue collar municipal employees is not ended by 10 a.m. Monday.

The 115 state police officers who were ordered into the city yesterday by Gov. Marvin Mandel were sent home early today, Hill said. Hill said 695 officers were on patrol last night and early today as the state police officers joined detectives and traffic officers transferred to street duty.

Negotiations between city officials and representatives of striking police and blue collar workers resumed last night for the first time since Monday. Neither side would comment on the substance of the talks although Mayor William D. Schaefer said "whenever you have talks there's reason for encouragement."

A spokesman for the mayor said additional talks would resume today.

Police unhappy with a six per cent increase in pay and fringes offered municipal workers, began strict enforcement of laws early this week in support of the blue collar strike. Thursday night, officers in two crime-ridden districts turned in their guns and began picketing.

As the walkout spread to other districts, violence flared in some areas of the city. Stores were vandalized and one alleged looter was shot to death.

The blue collar strike started July 1 when garbagemen refused to work despite their union's acceptance of a six per cent pay package. The strike rapidly spread to more than one-third of the city's blue collar workers and the union finally decided to support the walkout.

TRAFFIC CONTROL — Nonstriking Baltimore city policemen and Maryland state troopers direct traffic following a rock show last night in downtown Baltimore. State police were called to Baltimore Thursday following looting when numerous policemen decided to strike for higher pay.

OAKLAND (UPI) — State conciliator Thomas Nicolopulos said yesterday negotiations to end the AC Transit strike were moving forward, but at a "snail's pace."

WIRE NEWS BRIEFS From Everywhere

Sees Change In Detente Stance

BRETTON WOODS, N.H. (UPI) — Sen. Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., believes the American detente with Russia is opening President Nixon's eyes more than the public realizes, prompting him to request $5 billion for the defense budget.

Thurmond

Thurmond, the ranking member of the Senate Armed Services Committee and a leading advocate of strong military power, said yesterday the President's recent visit to the Soviet Union made Nixon see the immediate need for a stronger military position.

"He looked those people in the eyes — and he saw exactly what was going on," Thurmond said. "He asked for a $5 billion (increase) in defense spending."

Thurmond said the request for a spending increase was made in a private meeting with congressional leaders and involved a need to shore up U.S. military positions.

Death Sentences

SEOUL (UPI) — A South Korean military court handed down death sentences today to seven persons, including six former student leaders and a poet, for attempting to topple the government of President Park Chung-hee.

A military spokesman said the court at the same time sentenced seven persons to life imprisonment, 12 persons to 20 years and six others to 15 years on the same charge.

Denies Request

ST. PAUL, Minn. (UPI) — A federal judge yesterday denied a government request to revoke the bond of Wounded Knee trial defendant Russell Means.

U.S. District Court Judge Fred Nichol, however, also rejected Means' request to go to Rosebud, S.D., this weekend.

The government wanted Means' bond revoked on grounds he participated in a fracas at a Sioux Falls, S.D., courthouse while attending a related trial and had been arrested recently on a charge of assault at Mission, S.D.

Payment Delayed

SAN CLEMENTE (UPI) — President Nixon has worked out an agreement with the holders of the mortgage on his San Clemente home for an extra six months to pay a final $600,000 mortgage payment, according to the White House.

A spokesman said Nixon agreed to make an interest payment of $16,999.52 yesterday, because he could not afford to pay the entire amount due on the San Clemente property. The final payment is due July 15.

Greater Capacity

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (UPI) — Agreement has been reached to expand the initial capacity of the trans-Alaska oil pipeline from 600,000 barrels a day to 1.2 million barrels.

The Alyeska Pipeline Service Co. said yesterday that its partners reached the agreement and the completion date of the expanded capacity would depend on the availability of materials and manpower.

A company statement said a completion date of mid-1977 was set by the partners.

Voices Criticism

BERLIN (UPI) — The Neues Deutschland, East Germany's Communist Party newspaper, today attacked the West German decision to establish an environmental office in West Berlin.

Cookiemaker Says Bakers Hurting Now

CARNEGIE, Pa. (UPI) — Cookiemaker Lou Calabrese says American bakers are feeling the heat of inflation.

"Costs have tripled within the past 8 to 12 months and certain things just are not available," said Calabrese, 45, owner of the Caroline Baking Co. in this west Pittsburgh suburb.

"If prices continue rising like this, I could be out of business in another eight months."

Calabrese produces only one type of cookie — the anise pizzelle, a crisp, miniature waffle with a licorice flavor. Although the pizzelle originated in Belgium, it is popular in the French, Italian and other ethnic communities.

When he began producing cookies commercially in 1952, high school students would turn out about four pizzelles per minute each night in the basement of Calabrese's mother's home. He sold them at neighborhood groceries.

Today, Calabrese rolls out 90 pizzelles a minute on a machine he designed that looks like 45 miniature waffle irons. The cookies are packaged by hand and shipped all over the country.

"I think I'm the only company in the United States that has lasted 20 years producing only one type of cookie," said Calabrese, who named his company after Caroline Kennedy.

Inflation and product shortages began troubling Calabrese this year when the company from which he purchased a $25,000 packaging machine told him that plastic was no longer available for production of the small containers in which his cookies were shipped. The machine now sits idle in a corner.

"Eight months ago, I was paying $3 per pound for oil of anise — the gum base which is imported from China — and now they want $40," Calabrese said. "Sugar has gone from $10 to $35 per 100 pound sack, flour from $6.50 to $14.70 and eggs from 27 cents to 68 cents a pound."

To offset the higher operating costs, Calabrese said he, his wife Clara and their three children — two college-age girls and a boy in high school — began working seven days a week.

"I see prices increasing even higher and that means I may have to cut the weight. The cookies are about 4 inches in diameter and abut 1/8 of an inch thick," he said. "I may have to put six in a pack instead of seven. I'll have to gamble."

U.C. Faculty Pay Boosts Are Vetoed

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Gov. Ronald Reagan has vetoed a bill to provide faculty members of the University of California with a 6.2 per cent salary increase, it was announced yesterday.

Reagan proposed a 5.45 per cent increase for UC faculty members in January and the state budget he signed last month contained that figure.

In his veto message, the governor said the bill by Sen. Nicholas Petris, D-Oakland, attempted to "reinstate proposals that were rejected during the 1974-75 budget process. The budget is the proper vehicle for this type of measure."

Petris insisted a 6.2 per cent raise was "justified by comparison of University of California salaries with academic salaries paid in eight comparable institutions."

He said there was "no factual or statistical" basis for an increase of 5.45 per cent.

Warning Out On Safety Devices

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — California's Department of Industrial Relations yesterday warned employers of firms selling safety devices supposedly authorized by the state.

"The state is not in the business of selling job safety signs of any kind nor does it permit any individual or firm to sell any job safety device on its behalf," said Richard Wilkins, chief of industrial safety in the state Department of Industrial Relations.

Wilkins warned that certain sales representatives for commercial job safety signs, placards, and posters are giving the impression that they are employed by the state to market such products.

Tahoe Basin Construction Moratorium

TAHOE CITY (UPI) — California Regional Tahoe Planning Agency (CRTPA) yesterday approved, on a 5-2 vote, an interim plan which opponents complain will sharply restrict building in the state's portion of the Tahoe Basin.

The proposal will be in effect for six months until a master plan is ready.

A judge in Placerville has indicated however he may issue a temporary restraining order stopping the interim plan from going into effect.

The meeting, a resumption of a stormy session last month, was in a high school which is under construction. The fire department refused to allow more than 320 persons in. An angry crowd of about 200 milled around outside and tried to hear the proceedings over a loud speaker system.

The angry tone of the crowd began when the cruise ship Dixie locked with about 100 persons. About 60 persons carrying signs reading "no on moratorium" met the boat at the pier.

George Finn, who has a $43 million lawsuit against the bi-state TRPA, led what he called a "reenactment" of the Boston Tea Party.

Dressed in Indian war paint, feathered headdress and buckskins, Finn threw hay bales from the deck into the lake as the crowd cheered and sang the national anthem.

The CTRPA, recently enlarged by two members and given broader power over basin activities, has been considering adopting the ordinances of the bi-state California-Nevada (TRPA), plus a number of additional restraints on development. Critics said adoption would amount to at least a six-month moratorium on construction other than single-family dwellings.

At the last meeting, Robert Wright of the California attorney general's office said the proposal by new member Robert Van Allen of Hawthorne was legally not a moratorium, but he conceded the practical effect would be "the prevention of construction."

There were fears expressed that the agency would supplant the bi-state TRPA, which environmentalists have said has failed to meet its responsibilities to head off pollution and overdevelopment at the lake.

Sen John Tunney, D-Calif., submitted a statement saying "the failure of TRPA to do the job is forcing all of us who are concerned about the future of Lake Tahoe to look to other mechanisms to get the job done."

Larkspur Is Not Happy Over Funding

The Larkspur Park and Recreation Commission has decided it doesn't like the way the county intends to divide funds from the statewide parks bond measure.

Shel Zatkin, city recreation director, said the commission agreed Thursday to oppose county supervisors' plan to give the county $430,000 from the bond measure while leaving another $430,000 to be divided among Marin's 11 cities on the basis of population.

The commission will ask the city council to urge supervisors to apportion the entire $860,000 to cities and unincorporated areas on a per capita basis, he said.

Under the supervisors' plan, Larkspur would receive $27,946. But under the park and recreation commission proposal, the city would receive about $50,000, Zatkin said.

Whichever formula is used, Zatkin said the commission agreed to spend the city's share on Waterfront and Piper parks and land adjacent to Corte Madera Creek.

Cab Rate Hike To Be Argued

The Fairfax Town Council will consider a request for a rate hike for the Yellow Cab Co. when it meets at 8 p.m. Monday in the Fairfax Womens Club.

The council also will announce two appointments to the city design and environmental review board and review a 90-day moratorium on issuance of building permits.

The council will meet in closed session at 8 p.m. Tuesday to screen applications for the post of city administrator.

WILLIAM T. BAGLEY
Abuse of public trust

Bagley Hits Charter Jet For Senator

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Republican William T. Bagley, Republican candidate for controller, has criticized as an abuse of public trust the use of a charter jet to fly a senator to a legislative committee hearing.

Bagley's Democratic opponent, Assemblyman Kenneth Cory of Garden Grove, authorized the expenditure of $1,782 to fly Senate President Pro Tem James R. Mills on a roundtrip from San Diego to Sacramento.

The same trip would have cost $55.52 on scheduled airlines, which were on strike at the time of the flight last fall.

In reference to the charter, Bagley, a San Rafael assemblyman, asked yesterday, "How is the public supposed to renew its confidence in government when legislators abuse the public trust?"

Mills, a San Diego Democrat, made the unusual flight at the request of Cory, chairman of the Joint Committee on Public Domain.

Mills' presence was required at the Nov. 19 meeting of the committee's subcommittee on crude oil pricing in order to approve issuance of contempt citations to seven oil companies which had refused to supply their records to the subcommittee.

The subcommittee needed the vote of at least one senator to approve the contempt citations. Cory said, "It would have been more costly to the legislature and the subpoenaed witnesses (11 oil company executives) to reschedule the hearing."

Mills was in Washington, D.C., on legislative business and was not available for comment.

The Legislature was not in session at the time of the subcommittee hearing. The committee staff did not realize the need for Mills' presence in Sacramento until 10 a.m. and the hearing was scheduled to begin at 1:45 p.m.

Clay Lacy Aviation of Van Nuys submitted a bill to Cory dated last Dec. 18, but it did not reach the state controller's office until July 2. A check was issued this week.

Bagley criticized the delay in paying the bill until after the primary in which Cory was nominated. Bagley said it was "hardly the type of behavior which inspires public confidence."

Cory said the Joint Rules Committee was somewhat reluctant to send the bill to the controller for payment.

"I would have paid it myself if they didn't approve it," Cory said.

Bus Requests Carried Out

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The school board has granted every request — about 600 — from students who don't want to be bused out of their neighborhoods for racial integration next fall.

The busing exemptions for the seventh, eighth, ninth and 10th grades mean that six of the city's seven junior high schools will remain racially unbalanced.

"If you don't have the ability to say 'no,' then there's nothing," said Carlos Cornejo, acting integration chief of the San Francisco Unified School District. He said the integration plan will not be effective and he wants to leave his post.

Art Gallery Opens Show This Weekend

Sky Art Works gallery will hold a summer showing of new paintings, sculpture, graphics and crafts by Bolinas artists July 21 through Aug. 30 at the gallery, 11 Wharf Road, Bolinas.

The exhibit will open tomorrow with a reception with music and refreshments from 2 p.m. to 5 p.m.

Discount Bus Fares End Monday

The local bus fare in Marin for children, students and elderly persons will increase from 15 to 25 cents Monday.

The hike was approved yesterday by Golden Gate Bridge District directors at the request of Marin County Transit District directors. The county contracts with the bridge district for the local service. (See another bridge board story, page 1.)

(A headline in early prints of Thursday's Independent-Journal incorrectly said the district's transportation committee had called for free bus rides for the three groups.)

Elimination of the10-cent discount — (everyone else pays 25 cents for local bus rides) — was needed to prevent cuts in service, the county transit board said. The step will raise $69,100 a year, according to bridge district estimates.

The staff of the bridge district unsuccessfully protested what it called "forcing children, students and senior citizens into bearing the total load." It urged that the discount fare be raised to 20 cents and that everyone else also pay a nickel more, or 30 cents instead of 25.

The staff said it knew of no other public transit system in the nation that did not offer a discount to the three groups.

In a related action, the board accepted a compromise with Marin over disputed costs for bus service to those who ride commuter buses only in the county. The full bill this fiscal year was estimated at $351,000, but the district accepted $85,000 for the second year in a row.

Several directors warned the county will have to pay the full bill next year or face cuts in bus service.

Golden Gate Bridge District directors also:

SAUSALITO — Protested the City of Sausalito's shift of the district's ferry feeder bus stop from Anchor Street to Humboldt Street, objecting the move increased walking district to the ferry. Director Dean N. Meyer of Mill Valley suggested the city was harrassing the district, but a Sausalito citizen in the audience said the move was to clear access to the Parking Lot No. 1.

FERRY — Received staff report that delivery of the first new ferry probably will be Nov. 1 instead of Oct. 1 because of delays in completing its generator system. It originally was due June 1.

TEAMSTERS — Approved a new wage package with Teamsters Local 624 raising the hourly pay for 23 bus service employees from $5.09 to $6.40 in six-month steps through June, 1977. The package will cost the district an additional $76,398 over the next three years.

MARIN CITY — Heard another plea by Nesbitt Crutchfield of Marin City to give special consideration to his community's unemployed workers when filling new positions. The board approved his request for an additional 15 days to apply for jobs in the bus division.

ENGINE — Allocated up to $27,975 to overhaul the spare diesel engine for the Sausalito ferry.

TOLLS — Received staff report that the annual auction of unredeemed items left as pledges in lieu of tolls raised $150 more than the $109 owed in unpaid tolls.

BUSES — Received report that 591,906 passengers rode district buses during June, up 43,938 over the total the same month last year.

Search In Guatemala For Patty

GUATEMALA CITY (UPI) — Col. Genaro Alvarado Robles, chief of Guatemala police, has ordered an intensive nationwide search to determine if Patricia Hearst is in this Central American country.

Acting on news reports from San Francisco that Miss Hearst and two members of the Symbionese Liberation Army — William and Emily Harris — may have secretly entered Guatemala, Alvarado said yesterday he has ordered a check of "all strategic points" in the country, including Guatemala City.

"We are extremely interested in determining the veracity of these reports and to arrest Miss Hearst and the others if they are here so as to prevent any possible contact with local subversive groups," he said.

"We will collaborate with the FBI to find her, and if she is in Guatemala territory we shall find her."

Alvarado said he has not been contacted by either San Francisco authorities or the FBI about the trio's possible arrival in this country and he was making the search on his own.

Guatemala is bordered by four nations —Mexico, El Salvador, Honduras, and British Honduras. He said persons entering this country could come in on nine main roads from those nations, assuming they had made the journey either by road from the United States or by air to one of those four neighboring nations and then by road into Guatemala.

In both the above examples the last number is 3 — thus the deadline is November 30, 1974

As indicated above, starting in August, 1974, all cars bearing the number 1 (one) as the LAST digit must have a device installed by the last day of September. Each month thereafter a new digit becomes the key. The schedule continues sequentially (see above schedule) for ten consecutive months through the last day of June, 1975 for cars with 0 (zero) as the LAST digit.

ALERT TO MOTORISTS

If you own a 1966 through 1970 car, chances are between Aug. 1 and June of next year, you will be required by law to have an additional exhaust emission control device installed at a cost not exceeding $35. The California State Automobile Association wants to alert motorists that the date they are required to have the new device in operation is determined by the last number of the car's license plate. Also the models, whose registration is changed due to sale, transfer or reregistration in California must comply immediatley.

Bolinas Lagoon Report Reveals Support Of Natural Processes

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — Naturla processes — including erosion and siltation — should be allowed to continue unimpeded in the Bolinas Lagoon and on Bolinas Beach, according to Army Corps of Engineers survey reports.

The beach and lagoon have for years been the center of a controversy between those who would like to see some recreational development there and others who want the areas to remain in their natural states.

The corps report affirms the concerns of the environmentalists, saying that ecological concern is more important than the shortterm gain which would result from dredging the lagoon or controlling shoreline erosion.

The studies have been a long time coming. The lagoon report by authorized by Congress in 1956 and the beach study was authorized in 1967.

The Army report agrees with the County General Plan for the lagoon, which has ruled out substantial improvements. The county also has rejected a proposal for dredging a small boat storm refuge there.

The reports will be referred for review to the Board of Engineers for Rivers and Harbors in Washington, D.C.

Written communications should be directed to the board, ATTN: DAEN-BR, Kingman Building, Ft.Belvoir, Va. 22060. Deadline for comments is August 12.

If the board contemplates any action contrary to the reports' recommendations, local interests will be informed and asked to comment prior to final action.

First Black Named Appeals Court Clerk

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Emil E. Melfi has become the first black man in the nation to be named a clerk of the U.S. Court of Appeals.

Chief Judge Richard Chambers yesterday announced the appointment of Melfi, 59, to the $30,000-a-year post. The selection was approved by all 13 judges of the court.

Ohio Prison Guards Remain On Strike

COLUMBUS, Ohio (UPI) — More than 1,150 prison guards at four of Ohio's major prisons remained on strike today as Ohio National Guardsmen took their places in at least one prison.

The strike protesting the Legislature's failure to enact a pay raise for state workers began last Saturday at the Lebanon Correctional Institution. It spread to three other prisons, including the state's main maximum security facility at Lucasville.

FAST AND STEADY — Bill Sanborn of Terra Linda, who owns and races turtles, proudly displays one of the Best — Wino, who set a world record in the weekly Wednesday night races at Zack's in Sausalito.

Champs Live In His Garage

By LEW CODDINGTON

Neighbors in his Terra Linda neighborhood might be surprised to learn it, but Bill J. Sanborn has a racing stable in his garage.

Housed within it are more than 80 of the fastest, most aggressive competitors around, including two world record holders.

They are Sanborn's turtles, who have won honor after honor at the Wednesday night turtle races at Zack's restaurant in Sausalito and in other races throughout Northern California.

"It's a neat thing to do," says Sanborn, 31. "Turtle racers are just a bunch of nuts trying to have fun."

And fun they do have, as crowds of over 200 sometimes jam the rear sundeck at Zack's, yelling as the turtles charge toward the finish, gnashing their teeth if their favorites are running as slowly as a . . . well, as a turtle.

And how did Sanborn get involved with this madness? "About 11 years ago, I went to a reunion of some people I had gone to school with. We went to Zack's for dinner, the turtle races were going on, and it just seemed like a good thing to get into," he said, as if explaining a fondness for good books or fine wine . . .

Turtle racing quickly became an addiction. After a couple of weeks, he had his first winner. A year later, he became master of ceremonies. His stable kept growing as he bought, borrowed, traded and inherited the shelled reptiles.

He keeps them in his garage in a lighted, heated, 40-cubic-foot metal tank partly filled with water. Though the turtles rarely get out to socialize, they have a menagerie of neighbors in the worms, fish, iguana, boa constrictor and rats to feed the boa found elsewhere in Sanborn's house.

The iguana is somewhat of an outsider, though. He usually stays at Dixie School in Terra Linda, where Sanborn teaches fifth grade.

The turtles vary widely in size, ranging from "midget" (shells less than two inches long) to "supermonsters" (over 8½ inches). There are five other racing classes in between.

At Zack's, two kinds of races are held. In the perimeter race, turtles dash from the center to the edge of a circle 18 feet in diameter. In the steeplechase, turtles climb an eight-foot ramp, coast down a 2½-foot slide and swim through a six-foot water trough.

Larger turtles generally are faster. The world record for the perimeter race is 1.4 seconds, shared by two of Sanborn's turtles — Wino, a supermonster, and Miss Nancy, a monster. That's four and a half miles an hour — faster than a human being normally walks.

Miss Nancy also holds the steeplechase record of 8.2 seconds. Sanborn knows these things because he keeps the official record book. In fact, Sanborn has moved into turtle racing's executive class — organizing races, keeping records, working as M.C. In fact, these days he usually lets friends actually race, or "jockey," his turtles.

Ken Blasingame of Novato jockeyed Miss Nancy's record perimeter run, and Fred Reese of Mill Valley set those other two records with Sanborn's turtles.

Sanborn and several of his friends will travel to Napa Aug. 4 to stage the sixth annual world championships at the Napa Town and Country Fair.

One turtle Sanborn is sure to take is Sandy, a 10-year-old redear who is the world's winningest turtle, having chalked up 284 victories in eight years.

Sandy's career appeared at an end recently when she developed arthritis of the right front foot — but like many another famous athlete, she was given some shots and is now back at full strength.

There are at least five major racing stables with a total of about 300 turtles, which show up regularly at Zack's. There are dozens of jockeys.

But as Bill Sanborn sits there in his T-shirt with a turtle on it, his feet on a footstool shaped like a turtle, with ceramic turtles, candle turtles and inflatable toy turtles in his living room and a boat named "Turtle" in his garage, it is easy to see why there is only one man who has earned the nickname of "Bill Turtle."

NEW WHEELCHAIR DESIGN

John Craven, a graduate student in engineering at the University of California at Berkeley, demonstrates a new design in wheelchairs which features a seat that adjusts in height from a low of 10 inches to a high of 27 inches. Made especially for quadriplegics and others who have lost use of their legs and most functions of the arms, the chair can be made low enough to use in a vehicle without altering the vehicle itself. The self-powered chair was developed by a team of UC engineers under a project supported by the Veterans Administration.

Reagan Lets Bill Become Law To Place Proposals On Ballot

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Gov. Ronald Reagan let become law yesterday a bill to put 13 proposed constitutional amendments on the Nov. 5 ballot.

He said if he had signed the bill by Assemblyman Mike Antonovich, R-Glendale, some might interpret the move as an endorsement of the proposed amendments and "this would be inaccurate."

The governor said he allowed the proposal to become law without his signature because he believed Californians should have the opportunity to vote on the constitutional changes.

Among the major amendments approved by the Legislature in the last days before its five-week summer vacation and which will appear on the ballot were these:

TAX — Requires the Legislature to provide extra benefits to renters comparable to any increase in the homeowner's exemption from property taxation. (SCA26-Petris, D-Oakland).

REGENTS — Reduces the term of office of appointment members of the University of California board of regents from 16 to 12 years on March 1, 1976; eliminates from the board the presidents of the state Board of Agriculture and the Mechanics Institute; and adds the vice president of the UC alumni association. (SCA45-Rodda, D-Sacramento.)

VOTE — Returns the right to vote to certain exconvicts and strikes the provision forbidding a mentally ill person from voting. (ACA38-Dixon, D-Los Angeles).

HOUSING — Repeals the requirement that low-rent public housing approved by a city council or board of supervisors be subject to ratification by the voters. (ACA40-Brown, D-San Francisco.

CIVIL SERVICE — Would exempt from civil service the chief administrative officer and five deputies of the California Postsecondary Education Commission. (ACA76-Vasconellos, D-San Jose.) The voters rejected an identical proposal June 4.

A Blood Supply Crisis Develops In Massachusetts

BOSTON (UPI) — More than 130 of the 172 hospitals in Massachusetts ran out of blood yesterday, and a spokesman for the Massachusetts red cross laid the blame on summer vacations.

"We're asking people to call us no matter where they are and give blood as soon as they can," said Miss Margie Gandolfi, a Red Cross spokesman.

"Hospitals are in a state of panic. They can't even meet emergency transfusions," Miss Ganfoli said.

The Red Cross, which has put out an emergency appeal for blood, supplies 90 per cent of the estimated 1,500 to 1,600 pints of blood used daily in the state.

Board of Education Sets Budget Review

The Marin County Board of Education will review a $6,056,881 preliminary budget for 1974-75 at a special meeting Tuesday at 8 p.m. in the county schools office.

It is $367,875 higher than this year's spending plan due to merit raises given employees and inflation in all spending categories.

Laguna Bel Marin

Individual Waterfront Homes

Located in fashionable Marin County on one of the few tide free lagoons in the entire Bay Area, Laguna Bel Marin offers a life style that most people can only dream about.

For here within an easy commute of San Francisco and the northerly East Bay is a resort-like community in which each individual home opens directly onto a sparkling recreational waterway where you can swim, sail, canoe, even fish from your very own back yard.

Each of these individual homes is architect designed and handsomely built of rustic materials to blend with the beautiful natural setting. All are oriented so that both indoor and outdoor living areas open onto the lagoon via broad decks and massive use of glass to take every advantage of the sweeping view of water, sky and distant hills.

By visiting us now during our Grand Opening, you'll have first selection of a wide variety of luxuriously-appointed three and four bedroom plans, each offering unusual flexibility for everyday family living as well as sumptuous entertaining.

Her Chief Cause Is Respectability

By JEFF GREER

"I'm not the least bit interested in giving a spiritual reading to Mrs. Jones down the street who wants to know if she should run away with the man next door," declared Dr. Patricia Diegel.

The former Jungian psychologist now tuned in on parapsychology and metaphysics, bustled through Marin and Sonoma counties this week.

She gave a few readings, presumably on more important things than a bored housewife's fling. She also gave several lectures and a series of interviews on her chief cause — to bring respectability to the practitioners who give advice on the basis of readings, tarot, astrology and other arcane techniques.

"I want to turn something that is fringe into a profession," she said. She seeks to weed out the con artists and to mold persons with parapsychological talents into a guild.

"The 'doctor' is a doctorate in psychology from Golden Gate University (in San Francisco) . . . they were the only school that would give me credit for the three and one-half years of chiropractic I studied earlier," she breezily explained.

During 25 years of metaphysical studies, she said, she's become "a true clairvoyant" and "done 7,300 readings and given 2,000 lectures," as well as founded a metaphysical center in Honolulu and incorporated a nationwide organization of spiritualists called "CosmOlink" with 63 centers in the U.S. including the San Rafael Metaphysical Center at 52 El Camino Terrace.

"I call my initial reading an 'immortality consultation' — it's a reading of the person's past lives and helping them be better in this one through my training in psychology."

In her view practically everyone lived previous lives or incarnations. Some were persons, others animals and some were "elementals," living in trees, rocks, or even Hawaiian volcanos, she explained.

Mrs. Diegel perched on a chair, clad in a capacious Hawaiian print dress. She waved a be-ringed hand at her audience, and said, "I can read minds. When I'm giving a reading I don't have to do all the mathematics the astrologers use.

"I can give a reading from a handwriting sample or a picture. I don't have to have any information in advance, but I prefer a questionnaire filled out the day before the reading.

"Then I can go to the inner planes and work to read the time track the person is on. I can do it faster in a sleeping state than in a waking state."

There is a spiritual scale ranging from zero to 1,000, rating mankind's climb from animal to ultimate development, Mrs. Diegel teaches. At some rungs on the metaphysical ladder, a person may have powers to make objects materialize and do other seemingly magic tricks — and then may lose these powers by going on to higher planes, she said. "Some are more evolved spiritually than others because they've had more lives before . . . 66 and two-thirds per cent of the people are still below the psychic level," she said.

But "others are 'new souls' on their first existence in this world," she said. "Many of the San Francisco Flower Children were new souls. They were beautiful . . . but some of the dope pushers and the people with heavy karma from bad previous lives, ruined it all."

Spiritualists sometimes during seances actually reach "disincarnated beings who have passed over," she said, but she believes that most famous spiritualists actually "read the minds of the other participants" rather than talk with ghosts.

She formerly lived in Sacramento and gave readings there — once divining that her customer was a policeman.

"I asked, 'Are you here to arrest me?' and he said 'never.' He wanted help solving a murder case." She said he got it, from other psychics to whom she referred the detective.

She disagreed with a statement that newsmen traditionally are sceptical of all such "readings."

"Sceptics are the very easiest to read," she admonished.

JUST 17 YEARS OLD

Young Musician Shines In Inverness Festival

By JOAN LISETOR

This is a musical summer for 17-year-old Dennie Mehocich. She is a violinist in the Inverness Music Festival Orchestra and tomorrow will conduct the "Concerto for Flute and Strings in F-Major" by Antonio Vivaldi at the festival's chamber concert at 8 p.m. at the First Presbyterian Church in San Anselmo.

Dennie, who has studied the violin in school since she was in the fifth grade and privately since she was in the seventh grade, got into conducting accidentally.

"I tried it, and I liked it," said the San Rafael High School senior, "but I really like playing the violin. Conducting is fun, but the violin is my first love.

"Conducting you more fully appreciate the things you have been taught as a violinist. You are responsible for the whole orchestra, and must convey feelings about the music to the orchestra when you are conducting. Then they pick up your feelings, the sense of how you feel about the music, and convey them to the audience."

Dennie has some ideas about where she would like to go to college, but is not sure. She is also undecided whether to major in music or biological science, or both.

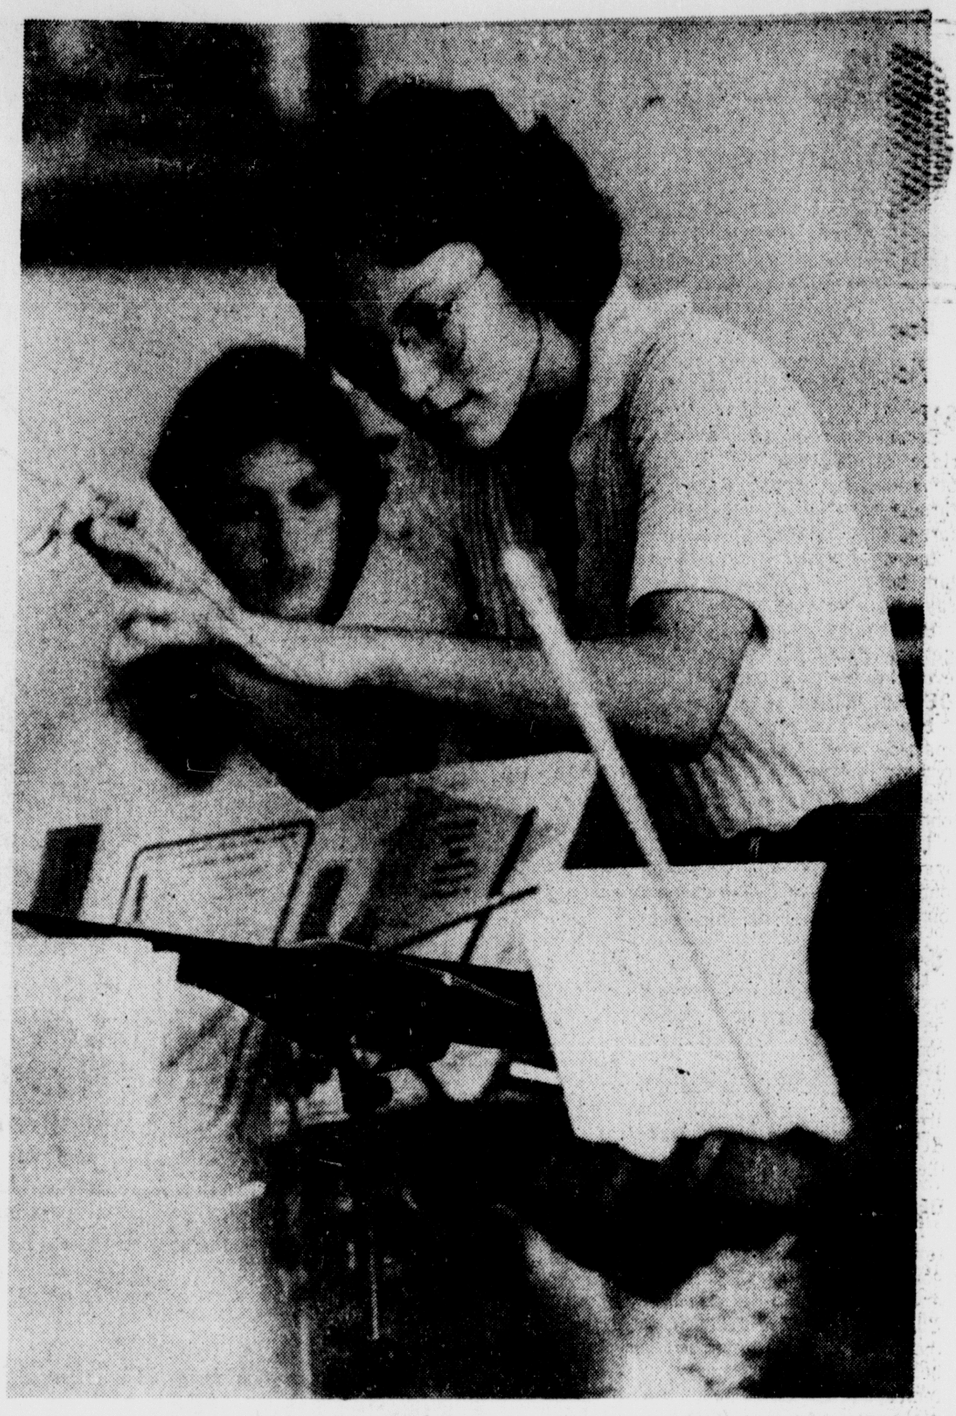
She said she has found no prejudice toward her as a female conductor. She has never thought of herself as a woman musician, just a musician.

"If you are good enough you don't have to worry if you are male or female. If I were intense I wouldn't let the fact that I am a woman stop me from being a conductor," she said.

"In class we are treated the same. Nothing more is expected, except to learn the score. On the podium I never think I have to be super because I am a woman. I want to do my best."

Dennie's parents, Anthony and Helen Mehocich of San Rafael, never had to tell her to practice. She always put time aside during the day for her music, she said. She now practices two hours a day.

Although she has conducted in public before, Dennie said, tomorrow will be the first time the audience has included more than just parents and devoted friends.



DENNIE MEHOCICH, 17, of San Rafael rehearses a piece she will conduct tomorrow night at the Inverness Music Festival's chamber concert at the First Presbyterian Church in San Anselmo. The musician said that conducting gives her the full appreciation of the things she has been taught as a violinist. (Photo by Jim Kean)

THE SUBURBAN SCENE

Princess Elizabeth Of Denmark Takes In Novato Western Weekend

By MOLLY MARIN

Princess Elizabeth of Denmark enjoyed Novato's Western Weekend and loved the hot dogs, beer and people during her 10-day visit with Col. (ret.) and Mrs. Ridgely D. Kemp in Novato.

The princess, who is the cousin of Denmark's Queen Margrethe, wanted her first visit to California to be a quiet one, according to Mrs. Kemp, so they spent most of the time sight seeing in the Bay Area.

The Kemps became friendly with the princess while they were in Denmark from 1967 to 1970.

OTHER FOREIGN visitors in Marin are the family of Dr. Jorge Alberto Taiana. His wife, Senora Matilde Puebla de Taiana, has arrived in San Rafael with her sister, Elvira Esther Puebla and daughter Mercedes Taiana, Dr. Taiana, Minister of Education and Culture in Argentina and the late President Juan Peron's personal physician, will arrive in San Rafael later this month.

Purpose of the Taiana's visit is to attend the wedding of their daughter Maria del Carmen Taiana, who is on diplomatic duty with the Ministry of Foreign Affairs in the office of the Argentine Consulate General's Office in San Francisco, and Craig Belfor of San Rafael.

Craig is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William Belfor of San Rafael.

The wedding will be on July 28.

CAROLE BERG of Kentfield will host a reception tonight at her home for the musicians presenting the Inverness Music Festival Debussy and Mozart program.

The reception will be held following the 8 p.m. performance at the Marin Veterans Memorial Building.

Honored will be Milton Thomas, violist; Yukiko Kamei, violinist; Francoise Regnat, pianist; Nathaniel Rosen, cellist; Jill Shires, flutist, and Dorothy Remsen, harpist.

Musicians from throughout the Bay Area have been invited, and other guests will include festival director Hugo Rinaldi and Mrs. Rinaldi; Mitchell Ross, who judged the festival's youth awards; and members of the festivals board of directors.

SPENDING A month touring Europe are Mrs. Joseph Sciallo and Mrs. Art Hogan, both of Petaluma, with their niece, Susan Braga of Valley Ford, and Mrs. Sciallo's granddaughter, Theresa Sciallo of Santa Rosa.

They will visit friends and relatives in Northern Italy and Switzerland and also tour England, Holland, Germany, Austria and France.

MRS. PAUL LATHAM Smith of San Rafael has returned from a 50-year reunion of her graduating class at Cornell University in Ithaca, N.Y.

After the reunion she visited with former classmates in Buffalo and Rochester, N.Y., and with her brother, James E. Duggy, in Boca Raton, Fla.

THE WEDDING tomorrow of Philadelphia Cousins and Barton Alexander in Christ Episcopal Church in Sausalito has been the occasion for several parties.

Capt. and Mrs. Arie Bleicher entertained at a shower Sunday at their home in Mill Valley. Deborah Bleicher will be the maid of honor. The Noel Martins of Mill Valley hosted a barbecue and swimming party for members of the bridal party Wednesday at their home in Mill Valley.

Mrs. John McWilliams of Pasadena, the bride's grandmother, whose given name is also Philadelphia, entertained at a luncheon yesterday at the home of a grandson, Donald Blacker, in Tiburon. The bridegroom's mother, Mrs. Gordon Alexander of Toledo, Ohio, will give a dinner for the bridal party tonight at the home of Philadelphia's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ivan Cousins in Sausalito.

LIVING IN Santa Clara are the newlywed Mr. and Mrs. Lynn G. Yarbrough (Diana C. Lopes.)

The couple was married June 29 at the United Methodist Church in Campbell and went on a wedding trip to Hawaii.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Manuel V. Lopes of Mill Valley, and the bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Stewart B. Yarbrough of Campbell.

MR. AND MRS. Aaron E. Rucker of Kentfield, celebrated their 54th wedding anniversary at their summer home at Dollar Point, Lake Tahoe. The couple, Marin residents since 1933, were married in San Diego on June 24, 1920.

DR. AND MRS. Edward J. Smith of Mill Valley will be honored July 21 on their 25th wedding anniversary at a cocktail party and buffet supper to be given by their neighbors, Mr. and Mrs. Miles Lupien. The 20 guests at the party will include the Smiths' two sons, Wayne, 22, and Craig, 23. Both the Smiths and the Lupiens have lived in Mill Valley over 20 years.

SASHA AND Susan Makovkin, former Mill Valley residents are living and working in Mendocino, where both are potters. Makovkin also teaches at the Mendocino Art Center and produces custom-designed dinnerware. Susan is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Caleb Cope of Mill Valley.

Couple Repeats Vows At Church In Novato

Grace Lutheran Church in Novato was the setting for the July 6 wedding of Christine Lee Oppenlander of Novato to Michael Scott McFarland of Liverpool, N.Y. A reception followed the ceremony at Rolling Hills Country Club in Novato.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Chris Oppenlander of Novato. Her maid of honor was Joyce Flugger of Petaluma and bridesmaids were Robin May of Novato and Sue McAttee of Terra Linda.

Michael, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Mac McFarland of Liverpool, chose Gary Perry of Charleston, W. Va., as his best man. Ushers were the bride's brother, Norman Oppenlander of Novato, and Shawn O'Connor of Philadelphia, Pa.

Christine was graduated from San Marin High School and attended Santa Rosa Junior College. She was previously employed at Hill Convalescent Hospital in Novato.

The bride is the granddaughter of Col. and Mrs. R. D. Evens of Glen Ellen and Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Oppenlander of Junction City, Kan.

Michael was graduated from Liverpool High School and Onondaga Community College in Syracuse, N.Y. He is serving with the Coast Guard in Saulte Ste. Marie, Mich.

The bridegroom is the brother of Patrick, Timothy, Christine and Robert McFarland, all of Liverpool, and the grandson of Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Moody of Clear Lake Highlands and Mr. and Mrs. M. S. McFarland of Woodland.

The newlyweds will live in Saulte Ste. Marie after a wedding trip to Liverpool.

ON WEDDING TRIP ALONG COAST

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Maxwell Lee Jr. are on a California wedding trip before returning to their home in San Rafael. The bride is the former Joan Margaret (Maggie) Mercer, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard H. Mercer of San Anselmo. Her husband is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Maxwell Lee of San Rafael. Volunteer Organizations Face Crisis In Areas Of Leadership

By BETTY FROST

Leadership for the volunteer organizations that involve women seems to be getting harder and harder to find.

Several months went by before the top spot was filled to complete the slate of the Parent-Teacher-Student Association of a large public high school.

Nominating committees seem to be able to find many who are willing to keep the books and write the minutes, but the presidency responsibilities are something else.

One long established auxiliary, whose members are now getting along in years, found that such a small nucleus of active members were taking all the responsibility that, after much soul-searching, they decided to disband.

In another case a mother, who had been elected and installed as the president of the P-TA of an elementary school, enrolled her children in a private school. Members are now looking for a new leader.

PERHAPS A higher incidence of single parents than in former years may explain in part the smaller pool of potential leaders. Mothers who work and have the full responsibility for school age children may not feel that it is possible to take on outside tasks. Yet one widowed mother in Mill Valley has accepted a second term as president of the P-TA of the school her young children attend.

One church-affiliated league resolved the leadership crisis in a creative way. They established an executive board of four members, who share the presidential function.

As women go back to college campuses and join the work force in capacities hitherto denied them, perhaps part of their liberation includes leaving behind demanding volunteer activities. By example, they may be expressing a different kind of leadership.

School programs are being enriched by contributions of expertise. A mother, who is an architect conducts a tour of the central city for elementary school children as part of a program on city planning. A nurse gives a course in physiology for her son's classmates. Both boys and girls enjoy informal sewing instruction in the home of a parent, who is a skilled seamstress.

Working directly with the children seems more satisfying to these women then attending board meetings with other women.

A NEW kind of house-sitting is providing a useful service and giving employment to the financially hard pressed elderly. A Marin moving concern hires older people to stay in a house to assist the movers. After the van has left with all the household articles, the person in charge locks the house and delivers the key to the new owner or the real estate firm.

This new service enables the householder to go ahead to the new location, knowing that all details will be taken care of.

Del Goetz, innovative founder of Advocates for Women, originated this method shortly after she became an owner of a Mill Valley moving and storage firm.

ALISON LURIE

Engagement Of Couple Announced

Mr. and Mrs. Herschel C. Lurie of San Rafael have announced the engagement of their daughter Alison Lurie to Lee S. Harris, also of San Rafael.

Alison was graduated from Terra Linda High School and the University of California at Davis. She is employed at Atkins-Kroll in San Francisco.

The future bride is the sister of Rosanne Lurie of Berkeley and Carole and Donald Lurie of San Rafael.

Lee is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Harris of San Rafael, the brother of Stuart Harris of Foster City and the grandson of Lillian Lowey of San Rafael.

He was grduated from San Rafael High School and Harvard University. He will attend the University of San Francisco Law School in the fall.

SHIRLEY GRAVES

Ross Valley Council, P-TA Elects Officers

Shirley Graves of Ross has been named new president of the Ross Valley Council, Parent-Teacher Association.

Mrs. Graves has also been treasurer and legislation chairman of Redwood High School P-TA. She has been a member of the council for two years and a member of the P-TA for 14 years.

Activities planned for the year by the Ross Council include a workshop and idea exchange in September for unit officers and chairmen and a program series later in the school year.

The P-TA council, said Mrs. Graves, brings together the groups of 15 schools to exchange ideas for future programs.

Mrs. Graves is also a member of Peter Pan Chapter, Children's Home Society, and past president of North Bay Council of Chatpers; Northgate Group; Marin Opera Action; Service Commission, St. John's Church; Marin Federated Republican Women; and Marin regional chairman of Spring Opera Theatre Association.

A native of Joliet, Ill., Mrs. Graves has lived in Marin for 28 years and was graduated from San Rafael High School and the College of Marin. She is the wife of Jefferson J. Graves Jr., an investment officer at Crocker National Bank in San Francisco.

Mrs. Graves is the mother of Gordon Ness, 20; Merry Ness, 18; Roberta Graves, 15, and Courtney Graves, 7. Her interests, she said, include collecting antiques, especially toys and children's books.

Officers to serve with Mrs. Graves are Mrs. Ted Van Middle of Woodacre, vice president; Mrs. Royal Radke of Fairfax, secretary; Mrs. Donald Mindham of Corte Madera, treasurer; Mrs. Charles Mathis of Woodacre, parliamentarian; Roy Davis of Larkspur, auditor, and Mrs. Adolph Lubamersky of Corte Madera, historian.

Council chairmen are Mmes. Richard Grechman of Kentfield, membership; Stewart Boxer of Greenbrae, legislation; John O'Conner of Corte Madera and Van Middle, motion picture-television and Jules Becker of Ross, juvenile justice.

Honorary service award chairman is Mrs. Ernest Perry of Corte Madera and Marin Scholarship Association representatives are former council presidents, Mrs. Alonzo Ferrell, Mrs. Mathis and Mrs. Graves.

Executives Tend To Live Longer

Executives who have reached the highest levels in the business community experience favorable longevity, according to a study made in the Statistical Bureau of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co.

This decreased mortality rate is believed to reflect the physical and emotional fitness of business executives for positions of responsibility.

Many of those who attain high status are able to cope with and even thrive on stressful situations by harnessing tensions for productive use, according to a survey of 1,078 corporate executives.

Marin Camps Get Free Milk

The California State Office of Food and Nutritional Services is providing free milk to children attending Girl Scout camps in Marin County.

Milk is available at Marin County Girl Scout Day Camp, Nature's Haven Day Camp, Camp Bothin Girls Scout Camp and Arequipa Horse Camp.

Marin Campers at Camp Sugar Pine, the San Francisco Boy Scout Council camp in Dorrington, will also receive the free milk.

Doctors Warn About Hazards While Boating

Boating is becoming increasingly popular as an outdoor sport, perhaps because it can be enjoyed by the entire family. However, physicians warn, it may turn into a hazardous activity, if safety precautions are not followed carefully.

To prevent accidents and drowning, horseplay and overloading or incorrectly loading a boat should be avoided, and all trips planned well.

The same precautions observed to prevent foodborne illness on land are important on boats. All potentially hazardous food should be kept either hot or cold as needed, and leftover food that cannot be refrigerated properly thrown out. All utensils and equipment used must be clean.

HELEN HELP US!

By HELEN BOTTEL

He Wants To Marry But She Favors Just Living Together

RAP:

Because my parents' marriage is miserable, and my boyfriend's parents went through a messy divorce, I'm turned off to marriage.

Instead, I want to live with him, but he's very straight, and says it's a wedding or else.

How can I convince him that getting married might spoil everything? — NORINE

DEAR NORINE:

How can I convince you that marriage won't spoil a basically good relationship, and a non-marriage won't help a poor one?

Live-togethers can go through traumatic "divorces" too — the only difference being there's no burden of legal fees. — HELEN

NORINE:

If you want your wishes respected, then you should show respect for his wishes. Since your boyfriend doesn't go for living together, and you won't buy marriage, perhaps you aren't right for each other. Remember the old saying about the square peg . . . — SUE

DEAR RAP:

I'm a gal with a really hot temper. Recently I started going with a really great guy and I've promised myself that I'll try to suppress my anger. The problem is that whenever he does something to get my temper up, I hold it in and this makes me very quiet. Then he asks me what's the matter, and he thinks I'm sulking.

Should I keep on answering, "Nothing," and act not-normal, or be myself and explode? — AFRAID TO GET MAD

DEAR ATGM:

Trying to hide anger is like leaving a full bottle of wine in the sun: it blows its cork and everything is spoiled or wasted.

Level with your boyfriend when he makes you angry. Perhaps you two can talk the problem down to size. — HELEN

ATGM:

Better he should know you have a lively temper than think you're moody and hard to understand.

Anger may be one letter away from "danger," but suppressed anger can be one step away from an ulcer. — SUE

DEAR HELEN AND SUE:

I sent my niece a nice graduation present. It's been more than a month, and I haven't received a "thank-you note." I didn't expect one!

Now today I received an invitation to her wedding. We live 2,000 miles away, so, of course, we can't go.

Since I've given her about nine presents for which I've never been thanked (birthdays, Christmas, etc.) — these dating back to the last time her mother wrote a note of appreciation —do you think it's really necessary for me to buy a wedding gift? — WANTS TO BE APPRECIATED

DEAR WTBA:

No!

People who don't bother to express appreciation for gifts deserve no more than "Best Wishes" cards. . .if that! — HELEN AND SUE

Pre-School Party Fun If Planned

A party for a pre-schooler can be a real pleasure if the party is planned from a child's eye view. Remember that children may become overly excited by large groups. Their attention span is limited. And competition may cause tenseness.

Rather than prizes, give identical party favors. Also, balloons, hats and candy cups are festive take home decorations.

Plan a number of games and change after short periods of time. But be sure everyone has a turn. Avoid elimination games with the very young. The first one out becomes restless and rejected.

Group activities such as singing games where everyone joins in are better choices. Dress-up is another activity that young girls enjoy. Provide a variety of hats, handbags, jewelry and what-have-you and let them work in pairs getting all dressed up.

Figurine Can Make The Mood

Figurines make a marvelous table decoration. One collector of figurines from Copenhagen uses them to create a theme for all her entertaining.

The collector can find animals, birds and whimsical characters among her collection to provide her with an almost endless variety of groupings that delight her guests all year round.

Also she feels it's more fun for both her and her figurines to give them a real place in her home, instead of just the shelf space they usually occupy.

Michael, Claudia Favored Names

COLOGNE, Germany (UPI) — Michael and Claudia are the most beloved names in West Germany, according to a survey by a Cologne radio station.

The station polled listeners and said the top five male names were Michael, Thore, Peter, Wolfgang and Christian.

ARTIST STUDIED IN KYOTO

Japanese Batik Workshop Set

By BETTY FROST

The Japanese batik process, which is different from other batik techniques, will be demonstrated by Kyoko Matsumoto, Japanese batik designer, at a workshop session tomorrow from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. at the Batik Art Place in Mill Valley.

Robin Grey, a batik artist herself, uses the Mill Valley studio to produce her own work and conducts classes for Marin residents interested in the ancient art.

The Japanese artisan has been in San Francisco about 10 months, and recently gave a show at the Japanese Trade Center in San Francisco, which Miss Grey saw. The Mill Valley woman was so impressed with the quality of Mrs. Matsumoto's work, that she arranged the workshop session. Examples of Japanese batik work will also be on display, and anyone interested in this ancient art form is welcome to view them tomorrow, Miss Grey said.

Mrs. Matsumoto, 26, is a native of Kyoto. She studied at the Kyoto Industrial Design Research Center. There she served a two-year apprenticeship, observing one of the great Japanese masters of batik. During most of that time she was strictly an observer, watching the master at work, cleaning his brushes and doing small chores around the studio.

Later she did her own work under the supervision of the master craftsman. She also exhibited some of her batik designs in Japan before coming to California. She was associated with Minoru Yoshida's Research Center in Kyoto, as a member of the dyeing research team.

Bamboo stretchers are used to hold the white cotton fabric firmly in place. Mrs. Matsumoto's first step is to apply the design by brush in hot wax. After the wax dries, she brushes color on with a soft brush. Sometimes she uses some simple Japanese kitchen utensils, such as a bottle brush and a kitchen scrub brush to achieve certain effects. She also carves fine grained sponges to make block prints.

The batik designs can also be used on silk in long lengths and are popular for kimonos. A small square is often used to cover a pillow.

Mrs. Matsumoto would like to break with the tradition of using batik design for utilitarian purposes only, and to employ the medium for decorative art, too.

"The Japanese have great control over their tools, excellent dyes, which don't muddy even in combination, plus a chemical that will adjust a given dye to a half tone," Miss Grey explained.

"In batik from other countries, such as Indonesia, Africa, Polynesia, and South America, the hot wax is applied more generously, and the fabric is dipped into a basin of the dye. The crackly look is deliberately produced by cracking the wax, which acts as a masking agent.

"The Japanese use the wax with greater control, and they paint, rather than dip, their fabric to add color."

When Mrs. Matsumoto came to California, she was Kyoko Saito. She recently married Hitoshi Matsumoto, also a native of Kyoto, in San Francisco. Matsumoto, an artist, has been studying in the United States for seven years. They had never met in Japan, nor do the families know one another. Matsumoto acts as interpreter for his bride.

The two will return to Kyoto soon, where Matsumoto has an exhibit of his paintings scheduled. They plan to return to the Bay Area, and perhaps to Marin in six months.

Sometimes Duds Can Foretell The Future

NEW YORK (UPI) — When you dream about clothes, you're also forecasting events in your life.

That's what it says here in a new book on dreams' meanings.

Say the dream concerns something as basic as an apron. The interpretation is that "as a general guide an apron in a dream represents a material gain and-or change for the better. If it was torn, you may expect a small benefit."

At the other end of the alphabet, say you dreamed of a zipper. "Social chagrin is the message if you dreamed of a stuck or broken zipper, but if it fastened easily, the dream predicts satisfaction in minor matters now pending."

Or take a look around the middle of the alphabet—at lace. Says the book, "A dream of garments made of lace signifies unusual popularity with the opposite sex and-or success in love affairs."

Consider what a dream about clothes includes: "... varies greatly with details ... as the more clothes you had in your dream the more urgent is the warning to prepare for difficulties ahead."

SEW SIMPLE

Padded Effect Can Be Copied

By EUNICE FARMER
(Distributed by Register and Tribune Syndicate)

DEAR EUNICE,

I saw a dress I would love to copy. The collar and cuffs were very unusual. They were machine stitched with five or six rows of stitching, but instead of looking flat, they actually looked quilted. Is it possible to achieve this effect with an ordinary sewing machine? MRS. J.M.B.

DEAR MRS. J.M.B.:

The trapunto, or padded effect, can be achieved with an ordinary sewing machine. Place a piece of polyester fleece (the type used in quilts) on your under collar and cuffs before construction.

Be sure to cut away about ¾ inch from the outer edges and catch stitch the fleece to the under collar and cuffs. This way the fleece will hold in place but won't add extra bulk to the seams.

After the collar and cuffs have been turned and pressed, you are ready to carefully top stitch, using the width of the presser foot as a guide if that is the spacing you desire for your stitching. As with all details, they must be accurate. Test your stitching on a scrap of fabric first.

It is natural for the presser foot to shift the top layer of fabric forward, so you must do everything possible to prevent this. If this does occur, you will find bias wrinkles between the machine stitching. There is a yellow tape available which can be placed on your fabric and stitched, thus avoiding the stretched look.

There is hardly any detail that can't be successfully copied if you have the patience and desire as well as experience in handling fabrics.

DEAR EUNICE,

Could you tell us how to make a "dungaree skirt" from a pair of dungarees? I am a semi-capable sewer and I would like my skirt to look finished, not just patched. The jeans I would use are in wearable shape but have shrunken in length. EDIE K.

DEAR EDIE,

I must admit that any of the skirts I have personally seen that are made of jeans do look rather patched and bunchy, possibly because they were done by someone who didn't know how to sew.

First, you will need two pairs of jeans to make one skirt. The in-seam of the jeans must be ripped to the crotch area, right where the zipper ends. You will need the legs of the other pair to cut a triangular piece to make the skirt A-line and give it the room needed for walking.

You will have a much smoother job if you place the layer of jean fabric on a flat surface, then place the center front or center back on top of this extra layer of fabric. Decide how much extra you will need, pin in place and machine stitch with a lapped seam just as the original jeans had. Do the same with the other side and you should have a wearable skirt. They all look somewhat patched, but that is the look of today. It doesn't matter if parts of the new skirt are more faded than others. Again, this seems to be the look that everyone wants.

Incidentally, if you wish to make a jean skirt from scratch, there are patterns available.

DEAR EUNICE,

I havf been sewing with knits for a few years, but only recently attempted to make a knit bikini. I've had trouble finding a good supportive lining for the bra portion of the bikini. I have other store-bought swimsuits which seem to have a quilted and padded tricot lining which gives the body I need. Where can I buy this type lining? MRS. G.B.

DEAR MRS. G.B.:

You should be able to find the padded tricot at any department store or fabric shop that sells lingerie fabric. It is similar to the kind used when making nylon robes, although some is a little firmer and made especially for bra support.

When you do cut the padding for your bra, cut the dart out in a edge and zig-zag the raw edges together. This will give the fit you desire without the extra bulk of a dart in the fabric.

Forest Industry Crisis Shifts

VICTORIA, B.C. (UPI) — The spotlight in the British Columbia forest industry crisis has shifted from the International Woodworkers of America (IWA), who tentatively settled their contract, to the pulp and paper unions which have shut down most of the province's mills.

The IWA yesterday reached a tentative contract agreement with the 120 companies represented by Forest Industrial Relations (FIR) after a mediation effort by the provincial government.

Labor Minister Bill King announced the settlement here yesterday after about five hours of negotiations. No terms of the pact were disclosed but it reportedly calls for cost of living improvements and a higher rate for top scale IWA tradesmen.

IWA regional president Jack Munro said his negotiating committee was recommending the pact to their 32,000 members, half of whom have been on strike since the last FIR offer was rejected last week.

The offer they rejected called for a 12 per cent wage hike, plus benefits, on a one-year contract. Their last pact expired last June 14.

Munro urged the striking workers to return to their jobs in preparation for a vote on the latest proposal.

But 11,000 pulp and paper workers, members of the Pulp, Paper and Woodworkers of Canada (PPWC) and the United International Paperworkers Union (UPIU) continued their wildcat strikes which have shut down 20 of the province's 22 mills.

The pulp workers walked out Wednesday and by Thursday all four major newsprint mills were shut down and no newsprint was moving to markets in Canada, the United States or around the world.

British Columbia produces about 1.5 million tons of newsprint annually, most of which is exported to the Western United States.

The pulp unions are seeking a revision of their pay rate structure above whatever is offered the IWA workers.

PPWC officials were not available for comment.

UPIU head Pat O'Neal said he has had no contact with the Pulp and Paper Industrial Relations Bureau, which represented 15 companies involved in the dispute.

He said his membership would not accept parity with the IWA but conceded that the IWA settlement was a step towards settling the pulp industry's problems.

"I think it's hopeful," O'Neal said, referring to the IWA tentative agreement.

The UPIU and the PPWC are demanding $7.50 hourly for top tradesmen under their current contract, which expires June 30, 1975, the same category of worker earns $6.94 an hour.

Additional Sailors Take Midway Leave

TOKYO (UPI) — An additional 22 sailors from the trouble-plagued U.S.S. Midway jumped ship before the aircraft carrier left Yokosuka this week for a training cruise, a U.S. Navy spokesman said today.

The spokesman said five other sailors have been missing since before the Midway's June 14 cruise, when 55 crewmen complained of racial bias, long duty hours and maltreatment in the brig and refused to board the ship.

the same site as the present temporary float, is scheduled to open in the spring of 1976.

The report states that even under extreme conditions increased air pollution from more traffic will be undetectable beyond 1,000 feet "and very small beyond 300 feet." Both operation of the ferries and terminal-related traffic will add less than 8 per cent to present air contamination levels, it said.

It cautions that piers supporting the terminal could affect tidal currents, thus could "theoretically affect the boat channel" to marinas along Richardson Bay. "These questions are as yet unanswered and will be determined prior to final construction." according to the report.

The report figured peak traffic could increase from about 1,300 to 1,450 vehicles an hour, but the resulting increase of noise by two or three decibels "would not be considered a significant impact."

Noting the small terminal building would be only one story high, the report says that "in general, there would be no adverse visual impacts."

The report estimates the maximum number of ferry passengers that could accumulate in the downtown area at one time would go from the current 582 to 1,500 with the new vessels.

But another way, the report says the ferry now can carry 6,325 persons to Sausalito each day; the new ferries can carry 11,250 daily.

Another result of the increased tourist traffic would be "substantial" pressure for more than 100,000 square feet of new commercial space in Sausalito. The downtown now has about 150,000 square feet of commercial space.

The report includes a resolution passed unanimously by the city council three years ago. It declared the city's "full support" of the bridge district's plans to expand the ferry system.

The report also points to the district's power under state law to build the terminal despite Sausalito's objections.

al Hospital and the others to the D.C. jail.

Russell said the inmate being hospitalized had been suffered a broken arm before the convicts seized the cellblock and hostages Thursday.

The seven hostages remained in captivity along with the unidentified woman inmate who apparently decided to remain with the convicts of her own free will.

Russell said the transfer came off without a hitch.

The police convoy, led by several squad cars, sped away from the rear of the courthouse with the inmates peering through steel gratings in the vans, some smiling at newsmen who were held behind police lines across the street.

Reporters were not allowed to talk to them.

Russell had announced the impending release at 3 a.m. He called it "an act of good faith."

Convicted Wife Slayer Is Captured

A convicted wife slayer who escapted from San Quentin's maximum security area last month has been apprehended by police in Victoria, B.C.

Escape artist Neil Edward Darrow was captured last last night, according to William D. Nyberg, prison information officer, who said he had no details of the arrest.

Darrow, 26, first was missed at the prison June 12 and for several days prison officials believed he was hiding within the walls.

Darrow is a jewelry maker by trade. He was convicted last year of first degree murder after he shot his wife during a quarrel at a Sacramento hospital.

During his trial he produced what appeared to be a gun and ordered everyone in the courtroom to the floor, but was overpowered by deputies. The "gun" turned out to be rolled up magazines.

In another escape attempt in Sacramento, Darrow overpowered a guard at the county jail and made it to the roof before surrendering.

He also escaped from California Medical Facility at Vacaville for a few hours by using the identification card of another inmate employed at an outside work project.

Inmate Is Fair From Stabbing

A San Quentin inmate, whose jugular vein was slashed yesterday, was reported in fair condition today in the intensive care unit of Marin General Hospital.

Roy Guerra Jr., 21, underwent emergency surgery in the prison hospital after the knifing and then had extensive arterial surgery at Marin General, according to a prison spokesmen.

Guerra was stabbed at 1:17 p.m. during an exercise period in the prisons lower yard, according to William D. Nyberg, prison information officer. Two suspects have been placed in isolation and a prison-made knife, probably used in the attack, has been found, Nyberg said.

Guerra had been at the prison since July 5 and is serving a term for assault with a deadly weapon in Amador County.

Prison officials said the stabbing was the result of a squabble between two Mexican convict groups, the Mexican Mafia and the Nuestra Familia.

Play Performance Is Scheduled

The Bolinas Company, a theater group, will present a preview performance of J. P. Donleavy's play, "A Singular Man" at 8:30 p.m. next Friday and Saturday at the Bolinas Community Center.

The production, directed by Roy Buckman, will premiere at the center on August 16 and will be performed Aug. 17, 23 and 24.

Oak Manor History Of Slips And Slides

and the late John C. Oglesby, then county surveyor.

Commission minutes show that both men abstained from voting during hearings on the various units of Oak Manor, but planning staff members of that era recall that they did talk about their plans.

A handwritten memo in county public works files reveales that slides first were detected on what is now the 500 block of Oak Manor Drive in September 1958. James V. Wiese, now chief construction inspector for the public works department, reported to Marvin W. Brigham, public works director at the time, that he and a soils engineer urged Von Rotz to have tests made and to take steps to stop the sliding.

There is no record that the tests were made.

The lots in the focal area of the present slide weren't built on until 1961. That August, the planning commission granted a variance to Roland E. Schumaker of San Anselmo to build on the steep lots, with only 15-foot frontyard setbacks instead of the 25 feet normally required.

Dr. Donald Falkenberg, who's recently been spearheading Oak Manor Homes Association efforts to have the county halt the slide and repair partly closed Oak Manor Drive, filed a petition in 1961 with the planning commission opposing the setback variance. The petition said only that the 17 neighbors who signed it believed "construction ... would serve to detract from the beauty and value of the adjacent properties."

The petitioners failed, however, to appear at the hearing, according to planning commission minutes. The variance was granted. There was no reference to the slide problem, nor to the Oak Manor Association's repeated earlier complaints that drainage in the whole canyon was inadequate, causing homes to be flooded.

Even before Von Rotz submitted his tentative map for Unit 1 on May 16, 1951, Von Rotz's crews had installed an 18-inch drainage pipe all along the canyon. The canyon's narrow bottom was filled as much as 30 feet deep in places, to provide a flat area wide enough for Oak Manor Drive. Shelves were cut into the steep sides of the canyon for the houses that were to be built.

Public Works Director Brigham's misgivings about the drainage are hinted in rough notes in the files of the May 3, 1954 hearings on the tentative map for Unit 2 — where the slides are. According to the scribbles, Brigham felt there wasn't "enough dope" on drainage because "pipes haven't been sized properly ... could be a back-up"

Planning staff members reported that the occupants of the earlier Unit 1 complained that they feared flooding during stormy weather.

The late Dr. William F. Upton, planning commission chairman, moved approval of Unit 2 after telling the Unit 1 residents that the problem could be solved because Brigham would have to approve improvement designs including drainage before the unit could be built. The minutes don't show whether Von Rotz or Oglesby — by that time no longer a commissioner — argued their own case. Newspapers of the day didn't even report the unit approval.

Brigham did require Von Rotz to put in additional underground drains to tap seepage from springs found on the lots were the slides are occurring. Brigham also recommended that the county permit less than normal width for Julie Ann Crest, a side road gouged out of the hills above the troubled lots. He said a full-width road would require even more fill across the steep ravine at the top of the lots.

The little road never was paved, and served only as a fire trail until the fill began collapsing three years ago.

Marin County had no grading and excavation permit laws when Von Rotz began sculpting the canyon walls — such laws didn't go on the books until 1962. Planning staff veterans recall they drafted the first residential lot slope control in the early 1950s. Von Rotz voted for it but his own project was too far advanced to be affected by the new law.

Today, the slide area centers on a vacant lot where tilted, shattered foundations remain from a house that's been moved away. A neighboring house appears to have cracked in half.

The scene testifies to the free-wheeling postwar building boom in Marin County, when almost everyone was proud of the county's mushrooming population growth and the developer was king.

Powerful Quake Felt In Panama

PANAMA CITY (UPI) — A powerful earthquake rumbled through most of Panama last night, sending city dwellers rushing into the streets in panic, but no casualties or damages were reported.

"It shook hard for about 20 seconds," a spokesman for the National Guard said. "But thank God we have had no reports of personal misfortunes or damages."

In Boulder, Colo., a spokesman for the National Earthquake Center said the temblor registered 7.3 on the open-ended Richter scale, powerful enough to cause major damage in a populated area.

Former USO Leader Dies

PALO ALTO, Calif. (UPI) — Justin M. Morrill, former executive director of the USO, died yesterday at the age of 69 while on a visit here.

Morrill, a resident of New York City, held the post from 1966 until his retirement in 1972. He had been with the United Services Organization since its inception in 1941.

He is survived by his wife, a sister, a daughter, three granddaughters and a grandson.

OBITUARIES

IDA MAGEE

Ida E. Magee, a 14-year resident of Greenbrae, died yesterday at a local hospital after a long illness. She was 87.

She was a native of Oregon and came to the Bay Area in 1927 with her husband, the late Capt. William A. Magee, skipper of the express liner "Harvard" on the route from San Diego to San Francisco. He also was bar pilot in San Francisco harbor for 25 years.

Mrs. Magee moved to Greenbrae 14 years ago after her husband's death. She was a member of the Larkspur Women's Club and of Unity of Marin.

She is survived by a son James B. Magee of San Anselmo, a sister Mabel Hillstrom of Eugene, Ore., five grandchildren and six great-grandchildren.

Memorial services will be Wednesday at 11 a.m. at St. John's Church in Ross. Her ashes will be scattered at sea.

DANIEL NICHOLS

Funeral arrangements were pending today for Daniel Nichols, 23, of Fairfax who drowned Thursday while attempting to rescue another swimmer in the water near Seadrift Beach.

Though Nichols disappeared while attempting the rescue, the 14-year-old boy he had tried to help swam safely to shore, according to Marin County Coroner's office.

Nichol's body was found washed ashore yesterday by a couple walking along the beach.

Nichols was born in East Canton, Ohio, and attended public schools there. He came to Marin about a year ago to visit friends and decided to move here.

He was a machinist.

Nichols is survived by his father, Albert, of East Canton, and several brothers and sisters.

Laotian Leader Has Suffered A Heart Attack

VIENTIANE, Laos (UPI) — Prime Minister Souvanna Phouma has suffered a heart attack, a cabinet member said today. The United States and Thailand rushed medical teams here to treat him.

Sisouk na Champassak, defense minister in Souvanna's coalition government, confirmed that an illness suffered by the prime minister last night had been diagnosed as a heart attack.

"We don't know yet how serious it is and I am just following developments," said Sisouk, the leader of rightist members of the coalition government.

In Bangkok, a Thai government spokesman had earlier reported Souvanna suffered a heart attack. Lao government spokesmen have not been available for comment.

Player Wins British Open Golf By Four Strokes With 282 Total

LYTHAM ST. ANNES, England (UPI) — Gary Player of South Africa, one of golf's million dollar winners, Saturday won his eighth major championship when he took the British Open title for the third time with a one-under-par 70 for a 72-hole total of 282.

Player, the reigning U.S. Masters champion, was the only man to finish under par and led the 103rd championship throughout its 72 holes. He earned a check of $13,200.

Briton Peter Oosterhuis, who partnered Player for the final 36-holes, finished second with a 71-286, while Player's great friend and rival, Jack Nicklaus, was third, 71-287. Hubie Green, 71—288, was fourth.

Friday, when he dropped four shots to par and saw his five stroke lead cut to three, Player played defensively by hitting irons off the tee. Saturday he decided to defend his lead by attack and he did it superbly until faltering on the last four holes with the championship already won.

The 37-year-old South African, who breeds horses at his Johannesburg ranch, virtually wrapped up the $120,000 championship with an eagle at the 486-yard par 5 sixth. Having bogeyed the two previous holes to offset a birdie-birdie start, this was a tremendous psychological blow to his rivals and lifted his own morale.

Player reached the green in two and left himself a simple four-footer which he gladly accepted. To rub it in, he then birdied the seventh and turned in 32.

With challengers Nicklaus, Green and Oosterhuis turning in 34s it was virtually all over but the shouting because Royal Lytham's treacherous back nine continued to sit up and bite despite a lack of wind and brilluant sunshine for the final round.

The final day gallery of 17,455, which brought the total attendance to 90,625, gave Player, dressed in his customary black, a standing ovation when he reached the 18th green. He smiled, doffed his cap, but showed no real emotion until his final putt dropped.

There was drama to come.

He refused to take a drop, "I don't want to take a drop unless I have to," and putted up left-handed to within 10 feet. He missed the putt, bogeyed the hole, but his errors came too late to be of help to Oosterhuis.

Firing Of Coaches A Bad Human Act

"It was a bad human act." This one short sentence spoken to me by Reggie Jackson completely sums up the Tuesday night firing of coaches Irv Noren and Vern Hoscheit of the Oakland Athletics. They are being replaced by Bobby Hoffman and Bobby Winkles. Hoffman will be the bullpen coach while Winkles will replace Noren as the third base coach.

ALVIN DARK is the man to blame for this latest Oakland turmoil. He has wanted his own coaches ever since he got the manager's job. Charlie Finley finally bowed to his wishes.

In no way will this latest move have any effect whatsoever on Oakland's bid for a third consecutive world championship. If they were able to survive Finley's unbelievable treatment of Mike Andrews during the World Series, then this is just another of a large number of small drops in a big pool.

As you might expect, I am very glad to have Bobby Winkles coming to the area. But as both Sal Bando and Reggie said this was not the way it should have happened. People shouldn't be treated in such an undignified manner.

The position of coach on a major league team is largely unimportant once the season starts. All a coach has to do is perform a few daily tasks and not make any waves. In early May Dark asked Noren to resign because he had "let me down." Noren told Dark that he (Dark) had no authority to fire him. Dark got that authority on Monday night and then he waited until after Tuesday night's game to tell his ex coaches they were through.

HOSCHEIT was very explicit in his denunciation of both Dark and Finley. He said, "I'm going to retire. When you meet people like this it's time to get out. The manager's no good. He's a horse ---- manager. Finley is no good. He's a liar. He promised us a raise."

Noren started out quietly but as the realization began to hit him he became more and more bitter. He had this to say, "Ask the Cleveland players what they think of him. Dick Williams taught this club how to win and he's just following on his coattails. Getting fired by Charley Finley is no disgrace. I've got more class than either one of them. Getting fired here is a plus."

WINSTON CHURCHILL was once cornered at a party by a woman who observed, "Mr. Churchill, you're drunk!" Churchill replied, "Madam, you're ugly." Not the least bit taken back, the woman repeated, "Mr. Churchill, you're drunk." Nodding, Churchill said, "Madam, you're correct, but I'll be over it in the morning."

Like Winston Churchill the A's are probably over their latest conflict. Irv Noren will have a coaching job in Anaheim by next year at the latest. Vern Hoscheit I can only wish well to. Alvin Dark can return to his bible. I recommend that the next time he talks to Mr. Finley he quote Numbers Fifteen, Verse Three, "If any man make a vow to the Lord, or bind himself by an oath, he shall not make his word void, but shall fulfill all that he promised."

PONDERING A PUTT — Jack Nicklaus took a careful look at his lie on the second green before putting in yesterday's third round of the British Open. Nicklaus carded a 70 to move into contention behind leader Gary Player. (UPI Telephoto)

12-Inning Victory For San Anselmo

SANTA ROSA — Pat Blanquie came home on Matt Gini's infield hit with two out in the last of the 12th inning yesterday to give San Anselmo an 8-7 victory over Southern Marin National in the Babe Ruth District 9 baseball tournament.

In yesterday's other game, Sonoma Valley exploded for six runs in the fifth inning to defeat Novato National, 6-4.

San Anselmo starting pitcher Pete Jecobson went 10 innings, the tourney limit, giving up six hits while striking out 10. The victory sent San Anselmo into a game today against Sonoma Valley at 2 p.m.

A two run single by pitcher Mike Johnson and a double by Jeff Ford that netted two more highlighted Sonoma Valley's big inning, which began with four walks. Johnson went the distance, striking out seven.

In other action today, San Rafael was to meet Rohnert Park at 8 a.m., followed by Redwood Empire against West Side (Santa Rosa) at 11. The winners of those games clash at 5 p.m., and the day finishes with Central Marin against Southern Marin American at 8 p.m.

Kilgore First Round Winner

APTOS — Bee Kilgore of Tiburon got a rough time in the first set but coasted the rest of the way to victory in the opening round of the first Aptos Seascape Racquet Club Invitational tennis tournament yesterday.

Miss Kilgore, No. 5 seed in Girls' 18 for Northern California, defeated Judy Louie, 7-5, 6-0. She faces Janet Brogan in today's action.

Ozark Happy As Protege Tops Giants

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — There can't be a happier guy on the Philadelphia Phillies today than Manager Danny Ozark.

Not so much because the Phillies are tied for first place in the National League East but because he was right about Dick Ruthven.

Last spring the Phillies management wanted to send Ruthven to the minors for seasoning but Ozark insisted the young pitcher could learn more on the parent club. He won his point then and cashed in on it last night as Ruthven, signed right out of Fresno State in the special phase of the free agent draft, pitched the Phillies to a 6-2 victory over the San Francisco Giants.

True, Ruthven hasn't exactly been a ball of fire this year but he has been the victim of nonsupport on numerous occasions. last night, with 16 members of his family looking on, the 23-year-old righthander from nearby Fremont struck out 10 batters, matching his career high, and spaced seven hits for his fourth victory in 11 decisions.

As a result of the triumph, in which Del Unser and Mike Anderson each drove in a pair of runs, the Phillies are tied for first today in the NL East with the St. Louis Cardinals.

"Dick is a good learner," Ozark said of Ruthven, "and I thought he would be better off with the big club where we could work with him. He's still learning how to pitch but you can see he's making progress all the time."

It was especially windy at Candlestick park last night and it took Ruthven a few innings to get loose. The Giants nicked him for a run in the first on a walk and two hit-and-run singles and scored their other run in the sixth on doubles by Gary Matthews and Chris Arnold.

"The cold bothered me more than anything else," said Ruthven. "Sure, I was anxious to pitch well in front of my family and friends. The last time they saw me here I didn't pitch well. But the big thing is that I was able to contribute something to the team."

GOOD THING GOING

Dobson, Yanks Halt A's Again

NEW YORK (AP) — Pat Dobson and the New York Yankees have a good thing going against the world champion Oakland A's.

The Yankees made it five of six against the A's last night when Dobson turned back the champs for the third time this season, 3-0, on a brilliant two-hitter.

The veteran right-hander, who is only 4-11 against the rest of the American League, limited the hard-hitting A's to a leadoff double in the sixth inning by Larry Haney, a .127 hitter, and a leadoff single in the ninth by Bill North.

The Yankees stretched their winning streak to five games, their longest of the season. Dobson walked two and fanned seven.

"We're a fast ball-hitting team and he's a breaking ball pitcher," was the theory of Oakland third baseman Sal Bando. Dobson agreed.

"I didn't have the adrenalin flowing or anything like that," he said. "I just had a super curve ball. When I have that, it makes my other pitches look that much better, including my fast ball."

Catcher Thurman Munson scored the game's first run in the second inning after rookie left fielder Claudell Washington misjudged his line drive and it went for a leadoff double. One out later, Munson scored on Lou Piniella's single.

Loser Ken Holtzman, 9-11, allowed only two more hits until the eighth when he was tagged for two more runs on Sandy Alomar's double and singles by Roy White, Walt Williams and Bobby Murcer.

49ers Expect Rookies, Pickets

SANTA BARBARA (UPI) — The 49ers are expecting a full turnout of newcomers and a group of picketing veterans as they open their rookie camp here today.

Top draft choice Wilbur Jackson, who suffered a severely sprained ankle in the coaches All-America game last month, remains in a cast.

FOOTBALL STRIKE

O.J., Unitas On Opposite Sides

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

O.J. Simpson and John Unitas, two of the most glamorous names in pro football, found themselves on opposite sides of the picket line yesterday when the strike of National Football League players concluded its 12th day.

Simpson, the all-time single season rusher, was on the picket line with the other Buffalo veterans as the Bills opened their training camp at Niagara University, but Unitas, perhaps the greatest quarterback in league history, crossed the line and became the first and only veteran to report to the San Diego Chargers' camp.

While the picketers were marching in front of various training camp sites across the country, opposing sides in the strike conferred in Washington for seven hours with a federal mediator who reported "no particular progress" in the negotiations.

Mediator James S. Scearce, after listening to both sides, recessed the talks and asked both the owners and the players union to "reconsider and reevalutate their positions." He said he would be in contact with them next week and expressed hope that further discussions would take place then.

Simpson, who is not a member of the NFL Players Association, joined his teammates on the picket line and seemed to enjoy himself.

"I don't even know all the issues we're asking for," admitted Simpson, who spent some of his time on line joking with Bills' owner Ralph C. Wilson Jr., who was a visitor at camp.

Unitas, whose status with the Chargers is in doubt this season because of his age (41), had announced in advance that he would appear at camp as scheduled. Veterans picketing the Chargers' camp waved at Unitas as he crossed the line and he waved back but there were no incidents.

One NFL veteran, who already had crossed the picket line, seized an opportunity to blast the strike and the Players Association president, Bill Curry.

Steve Kiner, a linebacker for the Houston Oilers whose career came close to ending once because of a drug problem, chided Curry — a teammate of his at Houston— and the other NFL veerans for supporting the strike.

"Curry is political about this," said Kiner. "I guess he's thinking ahead to the day he might run for the Senate."

Livermore, Stockton Softball Winners

Channel Lumber of Livermore beat Artichoke Joe's of San Bruno, 5-1, and Jim Paige Chevron of Stockton downed Albert's Men's Wear of Alameda, 5-9 yesterday in the third annual San Rafael Fast Pitch softball tournament at Albert Park.

Action continues today at 9 a.m., with host team Suburban Auto meeting Artichoke Joe's at 1:30 p.m. at Hidden Valley School in San Anselmo. Finals will be held tomorrow at 6:45 p.m. at Albert Park.

Yachts To Resume In America's Cup

NEWPORT, R.I. (UPI) — The second of three rounds of trials begin today to select the U.S. 12-meter yacht that will defend the America's Cup.

All three contenders were taken out of the water in preparation for the races.

Courageous, which showed well in the initial trials in June, had her aluminum hull polished for five hours Friday by the boat's crew.

Intrepid, winner of a majority of its races so far, was taken out of the water Thursday and had the minor faults on its underbody corrected for the first time since it arrived here from California.

The wooden-hulled Intrepid has a crew which includes three Marinites — Doug Best of Belvedere and Bob Norman and Steve Taft of Mill Valley.

Valiant, which did poorly in the opening round, returned from reconstruction at its Mamaroneck, N.Y., home and officially was measured and hauled. The boat's new shape is more conventional than her previous design.

The most obvious change in the boat is in the rudder, which extends about 40 inches below the hull and rises all the way out of the water. A spokesman said the boat is performing much better with the new design.

An Extra Dollar For The Champ

THE TIPOFF:

One west coast outfield star will be romancing and guzzling himself right out of stardom unless he straightens up suddenly. Could have a lot to do with the club's managerial situation.

Q. The up and coming fight between George Foreman and Ali has me fit to be tied. I say the heavyweight champion should receive more money than the challenger. My husband states that Ali's name will attract more people. He has dared me to do this, so I am sending you one dollar to give to George Foreman so that I know the heavyweight champion is getting at least a dollar more than Ali. O.I.? K.? Mrs. Ada F. Mister III, Honolulu, Hawaii.

I have fit the dollar to be tied to the champ's favorite charity and passed it on to his office in Hayward, Calif. Of course, I don't think either fighter is being short-changed with Hank Schwartz of Video Techniques verifying they're each guaranteed five million bucks for their Zaire (Africa) zinger in September.

Q. I always doubted, until recently, that you really took the trouble to answer readers' questions. Can you give me some information on the old Passaic Wonder Team? — C.O., Pearl River, N.Y.

The principal of Passaic (N.J.) High School — Samuel Jarksey —proudly informs me that the Wonder Team from his school was enshrined in the Naismith Basketball Hall of Fame this past April. From 1919 until 1925, when it was upset by neighboring Hackensack, the Passaic Wonder Five won 159 straight games with an average margin of 39 points! And their feats were extolled by such metropolitan journalists as Ed Sullivan and Damon Runyon, mushrooming basketball's popularity on the eve of the Roaring '20s.

Q. Several years ago, four Cleveland Indian batters hit homers consecutively; is it a record? Also Tony Cloninger hit two grand slam homers in one game. A pitcher, right? How many pitchers have not homered in their major league careers? — David Benedict, Adrian, Mich.

We've said it before — aficionados interested in such information should invest in the Book of Baseball Records by writing to Elias Sports, 11 W. 42nd St., New York 10036. On page 110, it shows that four Indians did hit homers consecutively in the sixth inning on July 31, 1963, to tie a record already set by the Milwaukee Braves in 1961 and tied again by Minnesota in 1964. Tony Cloninger's record feat in 1966, shared with six other men, is on page 24. I'd need an encyclopedia to list the pitchers who've never hit homers.

Q. In your opinion, do you think the Golden State Warriors will fold or move? They just don't draw that well, so how does Mieuli pay those big contracts to Thurmond, Barry and Mullins? And what's the problem with signing first round draft picks? — T.M., Loomis, Calif.

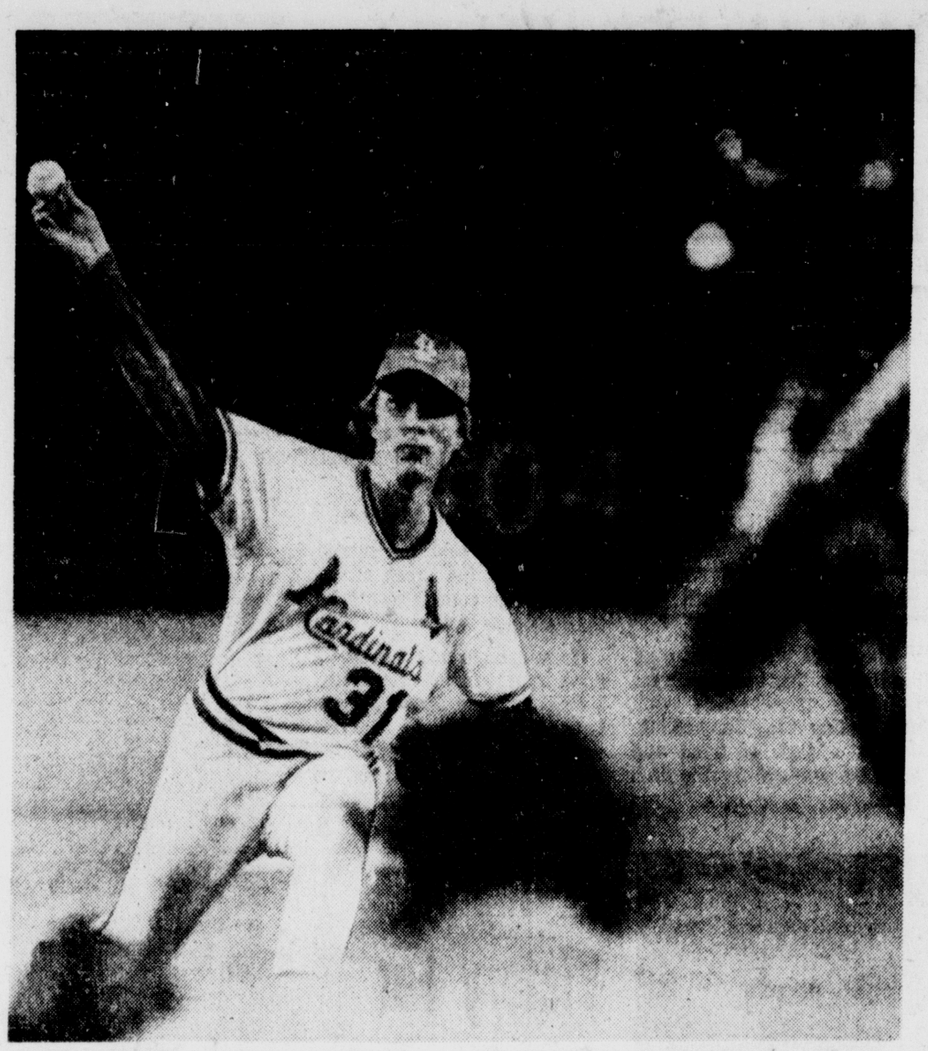
You want a whole book on the Warriors? One, they will not move. Two, their checks never have bounced, though owner Franklin Mieuli has finished in the black only once in 11 years. ("I rob Peter to Pay Paul," says Franklin, who also owns a chunk of the profitable SF 49ers.) Three, Franklin has been adamant about not giving no-cut contracts to rookies and has lost several as a result but looks like he's going to relent in the case of Keith Wilkes of UCLA.

Q. Please answer, as our 1973 batting crown hangs in the balance. With runners at first and third, nobody down, the batter bunts to the third baseman who throws home too late, all hands safe. My friend claims this should qualify at least as a sacrifice since the runners advanced. My contention is that the hitter was going for a base hit and it should be ruled a fielder's choice. Isn't it a score- keeper's judgment? — Hawk Herendeen, Freemont, Calif.

Consulted with Joe Sargis of UPI, who is an official scorekeeper for the Giants and A's and he agrees that it's a scorekeeper's judgment call. He must determine if the batter was going for a sacrifice or a base hit, with the game situation influencing the judgment (e.g., if the batter's team was ahead by five runs, obviously he wasn't trying for a sacrifice.)

PARTING SHOT:

Joe Louis, who's never been notorious for picking them right, is on record as saying that Muhammad Ali no longer has the legs to stay away from the thunderous punches of George Foreman in their September title fight.



FINE FORM — St. Louis Cardinals' pitcher Bob Forsch was in fine form as he served up a pitch in the eighth inning against the Atlanta Braves last night. Forsch fashioned a four-hit shutout in his second major league game.

Padres Defy Old Adage By Winning Close Ones

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

Someone once said that the ability to win one-run decisions is the true mark of a championship team but you'd never know it by looking at the standings in the National League West.

Lefthander Randy Jones tossed a five-hitter and Dave Winfield doubled in Bobby Tolan with the game's only run in the first inning last night to lead the San Diego Padres to a 1-0 victory over the Montreal Expos.

The victory gave San Diego a 21-7 record in games that have been decided by one run—best in the National League. But it's those other games that have been giving the Padres trouble.

A look at the NL West standings tells the story. Contrary to baseball lore, the ability to win one-run games isn't always the mark of a championship team—in fact it doesn't even guarantee a winning record. The Padres are in last place in the NL West with a 39-53 record, 22 ½ games behind the division-leading Los Angeles Dodgers. Manager John McNamara is pleased with his club's dramatic flair although he admits that it has had its price.

"We seem to have a habit of keeping the people right there in their seats," McNamara said. "But it's getting tough on my hair."

The people in San Diego seem to be enjoying the Padres new brand of baseball as well, so much so that some of them even are attending the Padres' home games. The team drew 24,511 last night to raise the Padres' home total for the year to 664,717, the most San Diego has drawn since its entry into the National League in 1969. The previous high—for a full season—was 644,272 in 1972.

Reds 7-4 Pirates 0-3

Rookie righthander Tom Carroll scattered eight hits in eight innings and Johnny Bench scored the tie-breaking run from second base on one of Pittsburgh shortstop Mario Mendoza's three errors in the second game. Don Gullett fired a five-hitter in the opener to beat Pittsburgh for the first time in his four seasons in the league.

With the score tied 3-3 in the fifth inning of the nightcap, Bench blooped a double and scored when Mario Mendoza's throw to first on Dan Driessen's slow grounder pulled Willie Stargell off the bag.

Mets 5 Dodgers 2

Ted Martinez' two-run single touched off a four-run seventh inning that carried the Mets over Los Angeles. The Mets opened the seventh with back-to-back singles by John Milner and Jerry Grote and Don Hahn laid down a bunt single to load the bases. Martinez then followed with his single to left to drive in Milner and Grote.

Astros 9 Cubs 4

Lee May drove in four runs with a double and his 15th home run to highlight a 13-hit attack that powered Houston past the Cubs. It was the Astros' fourth straight triumph.

Braves 7-0 Cards 3-10

Reggie Smith drove in four runs during a nine-run first inning and the Cards went on to defeat Atlanta behind the four-hit pitching of rookie Bob Forsch in the nightcap to snap a six-game losing streak.

The Braves won the opener 7-3 with veteran righthander Bob Gibson walking home the goahead run in the eighth inning and moving within one strikeout of becoming the second pitcher in history to fan 3,000 batters.

The Cardinals routed Buzz Capra, the National League's ERA leader, when they sent 13 men to the plate in the first inning of the nightcap. Smith drove home the first run of the inning with a sacrifice fly and capped the rally with a three-run double.

Wilkins Cooking In Golf

COLUMBUS, Ohio (UPI) — Mardell Wilkins, a former cook who didn't take up golf until she was a high school senior, had one of those good days yesterday in the first round of the $40,000 Borden-LPGA Classic.

Miss Wilkins, 26, of Vista, Calif., shot a three-under-par 69, the first time in three years on the pro tour she had broken 70. It gave her a share of the first-round lead with Sharon Miller.

Her round of 35-34–69 on the 6,410-yard par-72 Riviera Country Club course also was the first time as a pro she played 18 holes without a bogey. And it also marked the first time she had even a share of the lead in a tournament.

"I'm kind of new at this," said Miss Wilkins, who served as a cook at a convalescent home run by her mother before she turned professional. "I worked my way up from dishwasher," she laughed.

Miss Wilkins, whose biggest paycheck ever was the $742 she earned this year at Baltimore, said she had been "scrapping and economizing as much as I can."

Asked what she did to economize, she said, "Obviously I don't eat in as expensive restaurants as some of the others and I try to save on dry cleaning and clothes."

Miss Wilkins birdied the fourth hole with a 15-foot putt, the 13th with a six-footer and the 15th with a four-footer.

Wilkes Finally Signs Contract

Combined A.P. and UPI

OAKLAND — The Golden State Warriors signed All-American forward Keith Wilkes of UCLA to a multi-year contract with the National Basketball Association.

General

LONG BEACH, Calif. — Perry C. Moore, athletic director at Colorado State the past six years, was named to a similar post at Long Beach State University, succeeding Dr. Lewis Comer, who resigned May 9.

Boxing

OAKLAND, Calif. — The young woman who charged heavyweight champion George Foreman beat her dropped a suit against the fighter Friday but gave no reason for the action.

Pamela Clay, 19, dismissed her attorney, Kent Russell, of the firm of Melvin Belli and Associates. She then formally withdrew the suit in superior court.

The suit had asked $5 million in damages for the alleged beating.

Golf

PASADENA, Calif. — Charlie Barenada, a 20-year-old college student from Hawaii, took over the lead in the U.S. Amateur public links golf championship Friday, even though he wasn't pleased with his round.

Barenda's two-over-par 74 gave him a three-day total of 215, one under par for 54 holes. Going into today's final round, he held a one-stroke lead over Frank Mazion of San Francisco, who had a 73 Friday and a 216 total.

Tennis

RALEIGH, N.C. — Billy Higgins of Carefree, Ariz., No. 3 seed and top-ranked survivor, will try to stave off 10th seed Mike Cahill of Waukesha, Wis., today in the semifinals of the southern tennis tournament.

Jeanne Evert, the top seed and sister of Wimbledon Singles champ Chris Evert, will battle No. 4 seed Lindsay Morse of Pasadena, Cali., in the women's division.

Higgins defeated Jim Delaney of Potomac, Md., the No. 7 seed, 3-6, 7-5, 6-2, in quarterfinals Friday and Brian Teacher of San Diego, No. 4 seed, blasted Harry Bunis of St. Louis, 7-6, 4-6, 6-3.

Miss Evert continued her winning ways, downing Joanne Russell of Naples, Fla., 6-4, 6-1 while Miss Morse defeated Carry Fleming of Fort Lauderdale, the No. 5 seed, 6-3, 6-7, 7-5.

Hockey

CLEVELAND — Cleveland Crusaders' general manager Jack Vivian announced the signing Thursday of defenseman Paul Baxter to a multi-year contract.

Wet Track Forces Stones To Withdraw

LONDON (UPI) — Dwight Stones, holder of the world high jump record, pulled out of the English amateur athletics championships at London's Crystal Place today because of the wet conditions.

Stones, who cleared 7ft 6-½ins last year, said: "I have just arrived back from Athens where the temperature was 90 degrees so I do not want to risk being taken out of this stadium on a stretcher today.

"Naturally I am disappointed but I just cannot afford to take the risk of an injury in such bad conditions."

Stones proved correct for as soon as the event started Britain's David Phillips, the first competitor, crashed into the side of the rubber matting surrounding the high jump and was carried off the track with a damaged throat and had to receive attention.

Phillips received attention on the for ten minutes then was taken away on a stretcher with his head heavily bandaged.

Williams Captures 1st Angel Victory

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

The jinx is over and so is California's longest-ever losing streak.

The Angels had gone winless since June 29 but they finally broke an 11-game losing streak last night as Winston Llenas and Frank Robinson hit solo homers to lead them to a 7-0 victory over the Boston Red Sox—and hand Dick Williams his first victory since he became their manager.

The Angels started their backward spin with a loss to the Texas Rangers on June 30 while Whitey Herzog was the interim manager following Bobby Winkles' dismissal. Williams, the former manager of the Oakland A's, took over the next day and waited patiently an awfully long time before he got his first win as California's manager.

"I don't like to lose a lot but it doesn't bother me too much," Williams said, but then he quickly reversed course and added, "I don't think I've ever lost this many as a manager and it's not that easy to take, either."

The Angels, a superstitious lot, thought of breaking the "evil spell" Tuesday night when Williams sent Bobby Valentine out to home plate with the starting lineup cards. Valentine, with a black cat cradled in his arm, passed under a ladder while walking to the plate.

Williams didn't think of it as strange at all.

"What the hell, we had to do something. But I think we needed a game like this to snap us out of our slump," he said.

Royals 7, Tigers 2

Steve Busby notched his 12th win of the year, allowing 10 hits, as Kansas City beat the Royals to extend the Tigers' losing streak to six games. Busby, 12-8, allowed only three hits after the third inning and bested Mickey Lolich, 10-10.

Indians 9, Twins 5

Jim Perry won his ninth game of the season and Charlie Spikes drove in three runs as Cleveland put a halt to Minnesota's five-game winning streak.

Rangers 4, Brewers 3

White Sox 4, Orioles 3

The White Sox beat the Orioles for the second straight night in the identical fashion—winning with two outs in the ninth. Ed Herrmann doubled to the leftfield corner to score Bill Sharp from first base with the winning run.

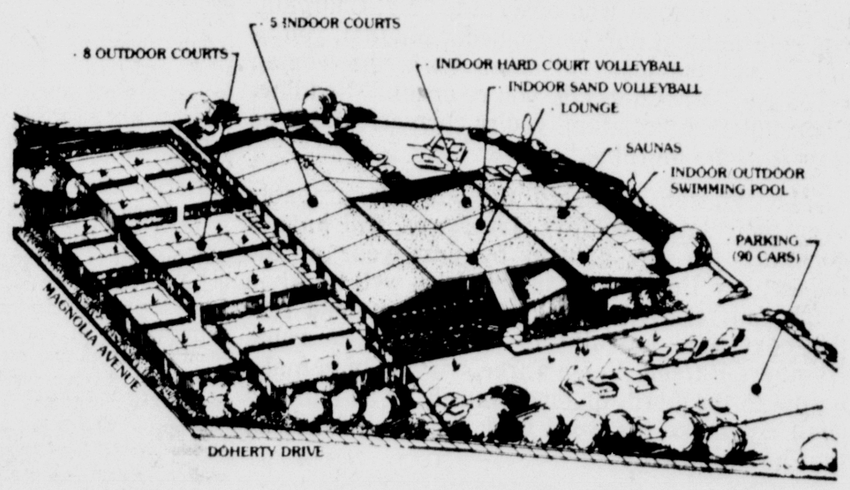
MT. TAM RACQUET CLUB IS OPEN NOW!



(WITH 41% OF THE AVAILABLE MEMBERSHIPS ALREADY SOLD)

The first of thirteen indoor and outdoor courts at our new tennis Club in Larkspur are now available.

And coming shortly thereafter: indoor/outdoor swimming pool, badminton, volleyball, basketball, saunas, lockers, lounge, bar and more.

Construction began in early May and thirty days later we had reached our quota of Charter Members. Initiation fees were then increased.

Initiation fees must be raised again when the membership reaches 450. But for the approximately 125 new members who join now the rate will remain $1150 for single memberships, $1650 for families. A saving over the impending fee of more than 20%.

A 20% deposit will hold your membership at the existing rate.

We invite you to call the club house now for an application 924-6226.

OAKLAND'S VIDA BLUE

The Same Man, Win Or Lose

By JOE SARGIS
UPI Sports Writer

OAKLAND (UPI) — Vida Blue is in a funk.

Here Blue is pitching his best baseball in a long time for the world champion Oakland A's, yet he seems bored by it all. And that includes pitching and talking about pitching.

"Too much is made of pitching," Blue said the other day after he had stopped the Cleveland Indians on four hits and snapped Gaylord Perry's winning streak one short of the American League record.

"So many hours are spent going over hitters," he continued. "Then there are those pitching charts. You know, the ones they keep during a game showing which batter hit which pitch, and all that sort of stuff.

"I guess it would mean something but it really doesn't because all pitchers pitch the same way — fastball in, fastball out, curve in, curve out, slider away and all that boring stuff.

"I'm not trying to be smart about this. There is no science to pitching baseball. I go out there and throw the ball and you try to hit it, and if you hit it, hit it good. Sure, I like to win, but it's not everything. This is only a game and I can't see why everyone gets so worked up. There have to be a lot more important things in life than this."

The fact Blue had beaten Perry only minutes earlier in a battle of Cy Young award winners had nothing to do with his comments. Vida has expressed similar feelings when he has lost. Simply, Blue is the same man whether he wins r he loses.

He doesn't like being interviewed, although he always is polite. Once in a while during an interview he slips in an ugly word or two and if someone has a microphone or a tape recorder tuned to the conversation, Vida quickly apologizes.

"I'm sorry man," he says. "I hope you can rub that out. I don't always mean the words I say. They come out because that's the way I am. You can go and write whatever you like and that's all right with me. I have a job to do, and so do you. Write it any way you like. I really don't care."

Despite what he says openly, Blue is a fierce competitor who takes as much pride in his pitching as say Gaylord Perry.

"That man is a pitcher, a real pitcher," Blue says of Gaylord. "You can learn a lot watching him. This time I beat him but maybe the next time I won't. He's a winner because when he goes out to pitch he lets you know he is in charge.

"Still, he isn't much different than most pitchers. Honestly, we all pitch the same way. We move the ball around and try not to give a batter a good pitch to hit. If you keep your mistakes to a minimum, you win. If you don't, you lose."

At the moment, Blue is 9-8 on the year but his record easily could be 13-4. He's been the victim of non-support in half a dozen games and in most of the ones he has won, it's always been by only a run or two.

No complaints for Vida, though, on that count.

"The guys are trying," he says. "It's not always their fault. Don't forget, the other guy may be pitching a pretty good game. It's just the way baseball goes. You win some, you lose some. That's all there is to it."

HE WANTS NO GIRLS IN LEGION

HARTFORD (UPI) — The director of American Legion baseball in Connecticut says girls have no place in the games the veterans organization sponsors.

Earl Petersen of Manchester, Conn., said no girls have asked to join one of the 52 teams in Connecticut.

He said girls shouldn't compete in the same program with boys.

"It's too rough and competitive to compete with boys," he said.

SNEED GOLFING WELL

Name Confusion May Be Ending

BETTENDORF, Iowa (UPI) — Ed Sneed is making certain there's no more confusion between his name and that of the other "Sneads" on the professional golfers tour.

Sneed, who won the Greater Milwaukee Open last week, holds the lead entering today's third round of the $100,000 Quad Cities Open after shooting a six under-par 65 in yesterday's second round.

The 29-year-old Columbus, Ohio, golfer reached the halfway mark at 10 under par, one stroke ahead of former U.S. Amateur champion Bruce Fleisher and Mike Morely Jr. He was two strokes ahead of Labron Harris and another Snead, veteran Sam Snead.

"There's one way that I am sure you could tell us apart," quipped Sneed, who also has a win at last year's Kaiser Open to his credit. "Sam is the one with all the money in his pockets."

Sneed picked up $26,000 at the Milwaukee tourney and could grab a $20,000 first place paycheck if he holds onto the lead here.

Sneed, who led after each round at Milwaukee, said he gladly accepts the pressure of the frontrunner position.

"I can't understand what golfers mean when they say they like to lay back a couple strokes off the pace," he said. "I better get them while I can, and I'm playing with enough confidence to do so now."

The elder Snead, 62, who narrowly missed a hole-in-one on the par three 13th hole, shot a six-under-par 65, but was quick to praise the "magnificent" putting by Sneed.

"His putting was so, so great," said Snead, who's seeking to end a nine-year victory drought on the pro tour. "If I can get this old putter of mine hot for two more rounds, I might be able to go after him."

Snead's nephew, J.C. Snead, has won $89,000 on the tour this year, but passed up the Quad Cities Open.

Friday's best round was a course record equalling 63 by Fleisher, who attributed his strong play to his ability to concentrate.

Also within striking distance of the lead were Babe Hiskey and Dave Stockton.

Earthquakes Home

SAN JOSE (UPI) — The San Jose Earthquakes, who picked up nine points on their most recent road trip, are at home tonight against the Denver Dynamos, who are in the thick of the fight for first place in the North American Soccer League's Central Division.

Gaters Resume In Baltimore

BALTIMORE (UPI) — The Golden Gaters, riding a three-match win string since the Wimbledon break, meet the Baltimore Banners here tonight.

Much of the Gaters' drive toward the top of the Pacific Section of the World Team Tennis league can be attributed to the improved play of top women's singles player Lesley Hunt.

JOE SUTIKA

Paralyzed Youth Stars At Plate

ALLEN PARK, Mich. (UPI) — Joe Sutika belted out three singles and a double for the Bethseda Bombers Thursday night—even though he's paralyzed from the waist down.

The 14-year-old youth bats and plays third base on his knees. One of his teammates runs the bases for him.

"He's fantastic," said David Post, 13, one of Sutika's teammates. "He throws better than most of the kids that play here."

Sutika, who has been paralyzed since birth, is an avid sports fan. He bowls in a regular league and has entered the pull-ups competition in a Junior Olympics.

"I just can't get enough of sports," he said.

He shrugs off occasional ridicule from thoughtless children but gets upset when adults stop and stare as he fields a hard grounder on his hands and knees.

"I think the word (crippled) should be taken out of the dictionary," he said. "I think of myself as handicapped, not crippled."

Tricolor May Fly At 'Glen'

WATKINS GLEN, N.Y. (UPI) — The French tricolor appears destined to wave over the auto racing capitals again as the powder blue Matras shove off from the front row today in search of their sxith straight World Championship of Manufacturers checkered flag.

Gerard Larrousse turned in the fastest time in yesterday's combined Six Hours Endurance and Trans-Am qualifying when he was clocked in one minute, 43.698 seconds for a speed average of 117.23 miles an hour.

Teammate Jean-Pierre Beltoise was a tick of second slower, bringing his Matra around the 3.37-mile circuit in 1:43.893.

Arturo Merzario pushed the pesky Italian-made Alfa Romeo into the second row of the grid with a 1:44.148 clocking. Merzario and Mario Andretti are the likely co-pilots for the one remaining Alfa Romeo. The other entry was demolished when Rolf Stommelen of Germany crashed in flames. Stommelen suffered minor facial burns.

Ironically, Merzario wheeled Stommelen's car to the fourth best qualifying time of 1:45.791 before the accident.

The Martini & Rossi turbocharged Porsche Carrera, second to Matra in the 24-hour LeMans, moved up to the second row in the rolling grid after Herbert Mueller of Switzerland fashioned the day's fifth best time of 1:53.760.

In Trans-Am qualifying, Bobby Fisher of Lafayette, Calif., turned in the best time for Group 5-under 2 liters at 2:01.822; in a Chevron B23; Mike Keyser of Towson, Md., zipped his Toad Hall Carrera to a 2:00.481, best in the Group 4 pack.

Litchfield Shines In Adult Debut

Perry Litchfield of Belmont, making his first appearance in the adult division of Country Club Bowl, rolled games of 265, 215 and 243 to highlight this week's action at Marin County lanes.

Litchfield, 17, had previously bowled in the junior division at Country Club.

The top performance of the week was turned in by Dave Williams at Greenbrae Lanes with a three game series of 811. Williams had games of 254, 278 and 279.

Nancy McPherson of San Rafael leads the Northern Girls Eliminations at L & L Castle Lanes in San Francisco with a total pin count of 4,471. Nancy rolled games of 207, 200 and 186 to take a 28-pin lead over second place Janice Kanui.

Vets Picket Santa Rosa Raider Camp

SANTA ROSA, Calif. (UPI) — A dozen vets picketed outside an empty Oakland Raider practice field yesterday without any direct confrontation between the strikers and rookies.

Player representative Willie Brown said "we've said many times the rookies can practice all they want."

Brown and Coach John Madden reached a tentative agreement to allow three Player Association representatives to meet with the rookies to inform the young players of the issues.

Top draft pick Henry Lawrence, offensive lineman from Florida A&M, perhaps spoke for all the first-year players when he said, "I have a lot of mixed emotions about this strike. I haven't made a definite decision. I just definitely want to play football."

Hall's Four Hits Pace Kelleher Win

Kelleher Lumber, paced by the slugging of Alvin Hall, trounced Villa Builders, 13-4, yesterday in a Marin County Joe DiMaggio League baseball game at Tamalpais High School in Mill Valley.

Hall had four for four, including a double and a home run to lead Kelleher to its seventh win without a loss.

CAMPAIGN FUNDS

Moretti, Roth File Statements

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Unsuccessful Democratic gubernatorial contender Bob Moretti amassed $1.4 million during his campaign, including a $2,000 contribution from tennis star Billie Jean King, state records showed today.

Another unsuccessful Democratic candidate, millionaire William Matson Roth, of Ross, raised $1.24 million—most of it out of his own pocket and from his mother, Lurline.

Roth's and Moretti's postelection campaign finance reports were the first to be filed with the office of Secretary of State Edmund G. Brown Jr. by major candidates for governor.

Midnight yesterday was the deadline for filing the statements in what was the most costly gubernatorial primary election in state history. Candidates whose statements are postmarked by midnight are considered to have met the deadline.

Campaign finance statements filed just prior to the primary showed the major candidates had collected nearly $8 million. The previous record for primary elections was in 1966 when candidates of both parties spent $2 million.

The $8 million figure is expected to be surpassed when all post-election reports are in.

The post-election reports of Brown, who won the Democratic primary June 4, and Controller Houston I. Flournoy, who won the Republican race, were either incomplete or were not on file late yesterday, along with those of the other major candidates.

The statement by Moretti, DVan Nuys, the former Assembly Speaker, showed in addition to Mrs. King's contribution, $5,000 from Assemblyman Jack Fenton, D-Montebello, one of Moretti's chief lieutenants, and $1,200 from Assemblyman John Knox, D-Richmond.

Moretti's previous reports showed $21,000 from the Retailers Good Government Council, a $50,000 loan from Union Bank, a $25,000 loan from California General Management, $25,000 from the California Medical Political Action Committee and $20,000 from Carmen Warschaw, former national Democratic committeewoman, and her husband.

Roth, a San Francisco area resident, received a $250,000 gift from his mother which he coupled with $675,000 in his own funds to make a $925,000 loan to his campaign.

William M. Brinton, a San Francisco attorney, gave Roth's campaign $10,000, Laurance S. Rockefeller added $3,000 and Lucille W. H. Khoshland, listed as a Hillsborough housewife, chipped in $4,000.

Land Is Wanted For Park Areas

RENO (UPI) — The U.S. Forest Service has requested withdrawal of about 14,000 acres of national resource lands to enlarge the Humboldt National Forest in Elko and White Pine counties.

The Bureau of Land Management said the withdrawal request asks that the lands involved remain open to all mining and mineral leasing laws.

The proposed withdrawal includes land in Bull Run Mountains south of the Duck Valley Indian Reservation and land in Ruby and Huntington valleys adjacent to the present national forest boundaries.

Armed Forces See Shortage Of Doctors

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The armed forces have told Congress they are running short of physicians with the end of the doctor draft and have been forced to cut back on medical care for retired servicemen.

Meanwhile, a study by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare is considering whether to overhaul drastically the whole military medical system and perhaps begin charging servicemen for some of their medical care.

A Pentagon statement delivered to Congress last month and made available at the Pentagon yesterday said, "a dimunition of services at some installations is occuring at the present time ... This situation does impact most acutely on the retirees and their dependents."

Under the law first priority goes to active duty servicemen, second priority to their dependents and lowest priority to the retirees.

The HEW study is considering whether it is fair for men and women in uniform, whose salaries have been increased to civilian levels in recent years, to "pay less for their health care services than the remainder of the population."

A Pentagon spokesman said services need about 12,800 physicians but are now about 1,800 short. The draft ended one year ago and to entice doctors to volunteer, Congress just last month authorized annual bonuses of $13,500 — which would give a starting military doctor a salary of about $30,000. Officials said the shortage was expected to worsen in the next year.

The bus fare in Rome is one of the lowest of any major city in the world — 50 lire or 8 cents.

Two Demos Say Economy Major Issue

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Democratic Sens. Edward M. Kennedy and Henry M. Jackson agree that the economy—not Watergate—is the issue Democrats should take to the voters in next fall's congressional elections.

The two senators were among a procession of potential 1976 Democratic presidential candidates who spoke to Democratic Party chairmen from around the country at a two-day meeting which wound up yesterday.

Kennedy of Massachusetts and Jackson of Washington hardly mentioned Watergate in separate speeches yesteryay, and each said the public is crying out for solutions to inflation, unemployment and high interest rates.

Kennedy called for action on a broad range of domestic areas, including tax reform. He said the present federal tax system benefits "the special interests, ... the rich and powerful."

"We can restore the American dream ... we can restore it to the kinds of things that the proudest chapters of our history have been proud of," Kennedy said. "That is the heritage of our nation. It isn't the skepticism and cynicism of a Watergate —that's an aberration."

Jackson said Americans were concerned by scandal, "but what's really bugging the people is the gross mismanagement of the economy by the Republicans."

"We've never been in such an economic mess as we're into today," Jackson said.

Sens. Walter Mondale of Minnesota and Lloyd Bentsen of Texas and Gov. George Wallace of Alabama appeared Thursday. The economy was high on each of their lists, although Wallace put stress on the need for the party to "move to the middle."

Library Slates Three Programs

Judy Navas and her mime class from College of Marin will perform Tuesday at 10:30 a.m. during children's storytime hour at the San Rafael Public Library.

On July 23 at 2 p.m., Capt. Donald Woford of the San Rafael Fire Department and his crew from Company No. 1 will bring a fire truck and equipment and talk about fire prevention and fire service at the library.

Girvin Wait, of the Marin Mineral Society, will display and discuss rocks and minerals during the storytime hour at the library at 2 p.m. July 30.

Stockton School Chief Is Resigning

STOCKTON (UPI) — Supt. J. Roland Ingraham Jr., 59, of the Stockton Unified School District said yesterday he was resigning July 30 to take a private post.

Ingraham, who held the district post four years, said he would join the American Association of Foundations for Medical Care to help develop a training system for monitoring health care.

PASSENGER CAR TIRE GUARANTEE

Montgomery Ward guarantees each of its passenger car tires for a specified number of miles when used on passenger cars or station wagons, except taxis. If your tire does not give you this mileage because of:

- defects in material or workmanship,
- normal road hazard failure,
- premature tread wearout (2/32 inches or less remaining);

Montgomery Ward will:

1. During the first 10% of guaranteed mileage, replace the tire free.
2. During the remaining guaranteed mileage, replace it for a prorata charge based on mileage used.

Nail punctures repaired free during the entire guaranteed mileage.

For guarantee service and adjustments, return tire to any Montgomery Ward branch with the Guarantee Booklet issued at the time of sale.

Charge after first 10% of guaranteed mileage based on selling price in effect at the time of return at branch to which returned, including federal excise tax.

Passenger tires used on taxicabs, and motor vehicles other than passenger cars are guaranteed on the same basis against defects in materials and workmanship only.

HOW TO KEEP WELL
By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Grandmother Compares Pioneer Women With Today's Females

You can't win 'em all! Not too long ago, I wrote that many modern mothers couldn't compete with the "frontier women who raised eight children, did all the housework, helped with the chores, and never complained, even though exhausted and depressed." One of our Times-Picayune (New Orleans) readers took exception, but in a humorous and informative manner.

"HAVE ENJOYED your column for years, but not so much this morning. I am one of the present-day mothers with five children and two grandchildren who "... couldn't compete ...'"

Ten years ago, I went back to school as a freshman after staying at home for 20 years. I should receive my master's degree this summer. My major is history and that's what brings me to the point of my letter.

"'... most frontier women did not complain ...' because they were dead before they got around to complaining. If you check the cemeteries, you will find that the average family consisted of a husband and four wives.

IF WE ACCEPT the fact that these women were subject to the infections aligned with childbirth in those days, we take care of a certain percentage of them.

But there is a great possibility that the work they did was too hard for them and made them more susceptible to other diseases than their husbands were.

"One more thought — frontier women didn't go to P-TA meetings and that does take a toll. Keep up the good work, but don't run us down any more than you have to ..."

This woman is absolutely right and deserves credit for pursuing her education. Most frontier men and women were toughened from the day of their birth. They supported themselves by long hours of manual toil.

The women shared the work, insecurity, and drudgery with their husbands, but they also did the housework, and had the babies and raised them.

A VISIT TO the doctor was a luxury and when illness did strike, it was the wife and mother who suffered most. In those same cemeteries, we s how few infants and childr made the grade.

Dr. Van Dellen welcome reader questions. While h cannot reply to them indivic ually, he will answer those c general interest in his co umn. Write to Dr. Van De len, c/o the Independent-Jou nal, PO Box 330, 1040 B St. San Rafael, Ca. 94902.

ULCER SURGERY

A reader writes: My docto had peritonitis from a rupture duodenal ulcer she didn't kno she had. The surgeon told her the ulcer didn't heal she woul have to have two-thirds of he stomach removed. Does th mean she has cancer?

REPLY

No. Duodenal ulcers rarely, ever, become malignant, whic is not true of those located i the wall of the stomach. Thi type of surgery is suggeste when the ulcer fails to heal

COLA VERSUS COFFEE

A reader writes: One of m coworkers is a 52-year-old ma who has a cola drink for break fast, lunch, and dinner, and i between. He never takes tea o coffee. I would like to know i cola drinks act like tonics?

REPLY

Most cola drinks are stimu lants in that they contain caf feine. In addition, many are sweet and the carbohydrate adds a little zip by increasing the sugar level of the blood.

Artist To Talk On Frescoes

Tomorrow at 8:30 and 10 a.m. services at the First Presbyterian Church of San Rafael, artist Lucienne Bloch Dimitroff will discuss the series of five frescoes she has painted for the church.

Reverend Charles C. Griffin will lead the combined service and discussion.

The five panels depict Old Testament tales of Creation, Exodus, and the prophets.

Mrs. Dimitroff created mosaic and fresco murals for many Bay Area churches and institutions. In Marin, she has done a mosaic for Redwood High School, and a map for Bell Savings and Loan in San Rafael.

Her home is in Gualala, Calif.

THE PROPHETS — This fresco of Old Testament prophets — including Elijah rising in flame and Jeremiah enchained for prophesying Jerusalem's destruction — stands in the narthex of the First Presbyterian Church in San Rafael. Tomorrow at the church artist Lucienne Bloch Dimitroff will discuss the five murals, including this one, which she has done for the church.

Series Of Lectures Scheduled

A series of four lectures on "The Root of Religious Consciousness" will be given by Dr. Robert Bellah Tuesday through Friday at San Francisco Theological Seminary in San Anselmo.

Dr. Bellah is Ford professor of sociology and comparative studies at the University of California at Berkeley, and chairman of the Center of Japanese and Korean Studies.

Lectures will be at 7:30 p.m. in Alexander Hall at the corner of Austin and Kensington Roads in San Anselmo.

Banjoists Will Provide Music

Banjos will be the musical background for tomorrow's service at 10 a.m. at the Community Congregational Church in Tiburon.

Larry Kennedy, founder of the Marin Banjo Band, and David Hudnut will provide the unusual accompaniment.

At 7 p.m. tomorrow at the church, William Quist and Stephanie Shermann will perform pieces for four-hand piano by Mozart, Ravel, and Satie.

Group Will Sing The Haydn Mass

The Haydn Mass, performed by the San Geronimo Valley Singers, will be performed at tomorrow's 11 a.m. service at the Fairfax Community Church in Fairfax.

It will be performed for the combined congregations of the First Congregational Church of San Rafael, St. Augustine's Episcopal Church, and the Fairfax Community Church.

Pastor Candidate To Give Sermon

Sherwood Cummins will be the preacher tomorrow at 10 a.m. at the Redwoods Presbyterian Church in Larkspur.

He is a candidate for pastor at the church, and after the service there will be a meeting of the congregation to vote on his selection for the post.

Novato Rummage Sale Is Scheduled

The annual rummage sale of Our Lady of Loretto in Novato will be Thursday through Saturday in the parish hall at Grant and Virginia Streets.

It will be open Thursday and Friday from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m., and Saturday from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. On Saturday eveything goes for half price.

Church Meeting

The Marin Lutheran Church in Corte Madera will hold its semi-annual congregational meeting tomorrow at 10 a.m. at the church at 649 Meadowsweet Drive.

Drive-In Church Proves Popular

PORTLAND, Ore. (UPI) — The Rev. Dale E. Galloway said he heads THE most unusual congregation in all of Portland, but claims since founding his drive-in church here 1½ years ago he's preached to more people than any church in the city.

Galloway spent 10 years as the pastor of a Medwestern church before selling his house and founding the New Hope Community Church here. He uses the 82nd Street Drive-in in southeast Portland for his 10 a.m. Sunday service, and has added an 11 a.m. service at the indoor Southgate Theater in Milwaukie, a Portland suburb.

"I don't like the walls and those kind of barriers," he said. "I don't even like the pulpit. I think that sets up barriers between people and God."

"We've been going a year and a half and we've already preached to more people than any church in the city," Galloway said. "We go to where the people are and then answer life's problems. People are beaten down psychologically by life's problems, and we try to give them an inspirational lift."

The drive-in services are conducted rain or shine, and the modish-looking Galloway said people just turn on their windshield wipers and he just bundles up during Oregon's winter rains. Worshippers usually number about 200 per service on a normal Sunday, but said this Easter he had 1,000 at the two services. The conventional service includes a choir made up of the membership, hymn singing and a collection.

"It's the only church I've ever pastored that receives money in the mail," he said.

"The drive-in churches are a fantastic idea," he said. "The drive-in service itself lends to a more informal service to begin with. More people who are handicapped or who otherwise wouldn't go to a regular church come here. It's not the size or the signs, but the spirit that makes the church great."

The first drive-in church originated with the Rev. Robert Schuler at Garden Grove, Calif., about 20 years ago and has now expanded to a huge, walk-in, drive-in facility. Galloway said his plans call for a similar facility 20 years from now.

Galloway said it has been a dream of his to bring people together from all backgrounds, and said the drive-in churches are one way to reach people in Oregon, a state which he said is noted for its lack of church-going people.

"It's more inspiring to be outside, to look up and see the hills, the sun, or even the rain."

Galloway also said his church advertises more than other traditional churches, and estimated spending $500-$600 per month on radio, newspaper, direct mail and even television advertising. More than 40,000 direct mail ads were sent out before this year's Easter service.

"We believe we really have something to advertise," he said. "And that puts it all back on you to deliver when they come on Sunday."

The church also provides study groups for the congregation. There are presently 12 such groups taught by laymen, trained by Galloway.

He said he has received very little negative reaction from other churches in the area. "We're not in competition with them. We reach a whole group of people they don't ever reach," Galloway said. "I want to build a program around human need, not carrying on an institution. I don't think what's over the door means that much."

Ways Eyed To Reach World's 'Unreached'

By GEORGE CORNELL

NEW YORK (AP) — Loaded with facts, findings and theories about the status of Christianity in the world, evangelical leaders meet in Lausanne, Switzerland, next week to plan strategies for "reaching the unreached" around the earth.

It's a big order. More than 2 billion people — over two-thirds of the globe's 3.5 billion population — have never actually been offered the gospel message, according to preliminary studies compiled for the occasion.

But the International Congress on World Evangelism July 16-25, bringing together leaders of the evangelistic wing of global Protestantism, aims to coordinate personnel and techniques for doing the job.

"We are persuaded that God has brought us to one of history's great moments, that the hour has come for Christians everywhere — to unite in bold new efforts . . . to make disciples of all nations," says the call to the congress.

It is described as the most geographically representative evangelical assembly ever held, including 2,700 picked participants from most Protestant denominations in 150 countries.

Preparations have been going on for months, with a dozen weighty study papers circulated among participants and voluminous, detailed reports readied on the extent of belief — and lack of it — in each country of the world.

In one preliminary document, the Rev. Dr. Peter Beyerhaus, of the University of Tubingen, Germany, urges the formation of a continuing worldwide association to evangelize "the unreached two billion."

He says the target should be "to reach every living person with the good news within the next 10 years." At present, there are about 1 billion Christians in the world, Protestant, Roman Catholic and Eastern Orthodox.

The congress was planned by an international, interdenominational committee headed by Angelican Bishop A. Jack Dain, of Sydney, Australia, with U.S. evangelist Billy Graham a key influence in the affair.

North Americans will make up only about a fourth of the participants, with a heavy proportion coming from "third world" areas of Africa, Latin America and Asia.

Showing Of New Film Is Planned

"Isn't it good to know?," a new film that involves the viewer in the life-experiences of real people, will be shown July 21 at the Aldersgate United Methodist Church, 220 Nova Albion Way in Terra Linda.

The film will be shown at 8 p.m.

"Isn't it good to know?" was edited and produced by J. Michael Hooser, a 26-year-old filmmaker who uses a varying number of images on the same screen, creating a multi-media effect that draws the viewer into the picture. Included are scenes from the Dino De Laurentiis production of "Barabbas" through the courtesy of Columbia Pictures.

Rev. Jim Hutchison made arrangements for the free showing. The film will also be shown at a number of other churches in the area.

Dinner Theme Is 'Americana'

A dinner and social gathering sponsored by the Serenity Spiritualist Church will be held next Saturday.

"Americana" will be the theme of the event, which will be at 6:30 p.m. at the American Legion Log Cabin in San Anselmo.

Reservations may be obtained by writing to Box 137, Forest Knolls, Calif.

Change In Colson To Be Discussed

The apparent sudden conversion of Charles Colson, former White House tough guy, will be examined tomorrow at 11 a.m. by Pastor Kenneth Ohrstrom at the First Baptist Church in Petaluma.

At the 6 p.m. service, Christian education director Kevin Moyer will introduce a new chorus and will instruct from the book of Colossians.

Confession Lauded

NEW YORK (UPI) — A proposed Declaration of Faith under study by the Presbyterian Church in the U.S. has been lauded as "potentially historic" by the American Jewish Committee because the confession specifically repudiates antisemitism.

RELIGION IN AMERICA

Evil, Not Good, Is Seen As Key To New Morality

By DAVID E. ANDERSON
UPI Religion Writer

Religious leaders of all theological and political persuasions agree that the Watergate scandal reveals some kind of flaw in the instilling of a moral base through the educational process.

One response to that vacuum has come from the National Educational Association (NED), a major teachers' union.

The NEA has announced that, with Watergate as the catalyst, it has put together a series of lesson plans on the problems of morality associated with the government scandal.

"Too often," an NEA spokesman said, "Teachers have felt they could only show good citizenship by being totally loyal to the government and never questioning what it actually does."

He added that the NEA lesson plans show that the "system is fine" but some individuals within it have caused problems.

The lesson plans are divided into three age groups — kindergarten to fourth grade, fifth through ninth grade, and 10th grade through the junior college level.

At the earliest grade levels, children play a game called "Playing Fair," in which they deal with playground situations with an attempt to learn how to treat others fairly.

Some theologians, however, are worried that attempts to teach children about morality in the post-Watergate era still make dramatically wrong assumptions about people's innocence.

"We cannot bring a stronger morality to public places," according to Roman Catholic lay theologian Michael Novak, "nor increase even by a little the circle of morality in our private lives, unless first of all we clear the mist of false innocence from our eyes."

Novak, writing in the current issue of A.D. magazine, a joint publication of the United Presbyterian Church and the United Church of Christ, stressed that the lesson of Watergate is not that there is some higher morality of a mythical past to recapture.

"Our children need to be told often and accurately about the power of evil," Novak said.

"Once we grasp the power of evil in each of us," he added, "we are in a better position to base our families upon an accurate Christian realism."

Novak presently serves as assistant director of the Rockefeller Foundation's humanities program.

For Novak there were two wrong lessons to teach about Watergate: first, and suggested by several of the young men caught in the web of the scandal, was politics is always corrupt and people should stay out of it; secondly, the sentimental and nostalgic idea that there was some "higher morality of our ancestors."

"Can any truly believe that the nation is less moral in 1974 than in 1934...or in any other year?" he wrote.

The trouble with Americans, he said, was that "we want to be moral so ardently that we begin to imagine that we are moral. We want others to believe that we are a good people."

But the founding fathers, he said, did not delude themselves about the goodness of the American people.

"They didn't trust anybody.

"American democracy is built upon the premise that human beings are too corrupt to trust."

He said the real lesson of Watergate should be aimed at preparing children "for a world in which injustice and falsehood and corruption occur with high regularity."

The need, he said, is to develop a Christian realism which will uncover "one deception at a time, day by day...setting up systems of detection that penetrate public masks and hold powerful tendencies in check."

IN SEARCH OF ARK

Tom Crotser of Dallas, Tex., points to a painting of Mount Ararat and the location in which he hopes to find Noah's Ark when he leads 63 members of his commune on a trip to Turkey in search of the holy vessel. On previous trips Crotser returned with wood he said had been scientifically dated at 4,000 to 5,000 years old. He also said photographs taken from satellites show something shaped like a boat is on the mountain at the 12,500-foot level.

Role Of Women Is Sermon Topic

"Hello Darkness, My Old Friend" is the title of a sermon to be given tomorrow at 11 a.m. by Bettye Doty, associate minister of the Marin Fellowship of Unitarians, at the church at 240 Channing Way in San Rafael.

She will discuss the role of woman throughout history, myths, and theology — with a special attention to the equation of women with the powers of Darkness.

Greek Orthodox Church Sets 'Holiday' Festival

The Greek Orthodox Church of Marin is planning a "Holiday in Paradise" for July 21st in Paradise Park in Kenwood.

Festivities will include singing, dancing, volley-ball, and swimming. There will be a Greek shish-ka-bob dinner and Greek pastries.

The park opens at 9 a.m. and liturgical services will be held at 10 a.m. Information may be obtained from the church office.

A-Bombs Blackmail Threatened

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Several nuclear blackmail threats have been received in California, and more may be forthcoming in the future, the state Office of Emergency Services said yesterday.

Dale Cook, information officer for the Atomic Energy Commission in San Francisco, denied there had been such incidents. He said the information on how to act in case there were such threats was being issued because of a "flurry" of talk and articles on the possibility.

The threats prompted the agency to send a warning note to local law enforcement officials advising them of a 24-hour, emergency telephone number of the Atomic Energy Commission to contact in case they receive such a blackmail notice.

Stephanie Bradfield, spokeswoman for the Emergency Services Office, said San Francisco police had received a threat "involving some kind of nuclear material and a San Francisco bank."

She said she could not provide further details.

Mrs. Bradfield and R. L. Vickers, director of the office, issued a memo June 28 to sheriff's and police departments which read:

"Recently headlines have proclaimed terrorists might even go nuclear. Terrorism heightens the feat of nuclear theft and even books have been published on this subject.

"This type of publicity increases the possibility of such an occurrence, and, in fact, several threats have already been received regarding dispersal of radioactive materials. No doubt the number will increase in the immediate future."

Mrs. Bradfield could not provide examples of such cases except for the San Francisco incident.

"We don't keep records of anything like that," she told a newsman.

The June 28 memo advised that the FBI should be contacted if a nuclear threat is received.

ALMANAC

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

Today is Saturday, July 13, the 194th day of 1974 with 171 to follow.

The moon is between its last quarter and new phase. The morning stars are Mercury, Venus, Jupiter and Saturn. The evening star is Mars.

This is the 79th birthday of American actor Sidney Blackmer, and American educator Mary Emma Wooley was born July 13, 1873.

On this day in history:

In 1863, opposition to the federal Conscription Act led to riots in New York City, in which more than 1,000 persons were killed.

In 1865, Horace Greeley wrote an editorial in the New York Tribune in which he said "Go West, young man, go West and grow up with the country."

In 1878, the Russo-Turkish War ended.

A thought for the day: U.S. historian Henry Brooks Adams said, "What one knows is, in youth, of little moment; they know enough who know how to learn."

Start Promoting Trumps From The Start For The Best Results

"Second hand low" was a good rule at whist, the game from which contract bridge descended, but it doesn't always apply in the modern game. In some situations even a moment's delay may be fatal.

HEART ACTION

West opens the king of hearts and leads the other heart to East's ace. East can see from the dummy that the defenders can defeat the contract only if they can get two trump tricks.

The first step in East' campaign is to lead a third heart. South must step up with the queen of spades to shut West out.

CRUCIAL PLAY

The defense now hinges on East's alertness. If East has one eye on the television set and the other eye on the game, he will play his low trump. If censured for this, he can quote the old rule and argue that since he was second to play to the trick he was correct in playing low.

See what happens if East does play his low trump. South wins with the king of spades and returns a trump, clanking the ace and jack together. South then claims the rest of the tricks.

QUITE DIFFERENT

The result is quite different if East steps up with the ace on the first round of trumps. East then leads a fourth heart, and West's jack of spades is sure to make a trick. If South ruffs low, West overruffs; and if South ruffs with the king, West's jack becomes the high trump.

DAILY QUESTION

With neither side vulnerable, partner opens with three diamonds.

The next player passes, and you hold:

♠ - A 10
♥ - A 10 9 8 5 3
♣ - 8 7 3 2.

What do you say?

ANSWER: Pass.

Your partner has a bad hand, with long topless diamonds. Let him go down quietly at three diamonds rather than get to some higher contract and go down doubled.

ART REVIEW

A No-Nonsense Approach To Life By A Sonoma Painter

By ADA GARFINKEL

Mood and bigness are vital ingredients in the paintings of Sonoma artist Ted Christensen.

Christensen's rugged paintings of nature, painted on location from coast to coast and in Hawaii, Mexico, Canada, and Europe, are vigorous expressions of the artist's intense, no-nonsense approach to life.

In a show of 40 works mounted in the Marin Civic Center's first floor exhibition gallery and third floor supervisors' foyer, the artist's best paintings are his grand views of atmospheric elements and sculptured terrain, executed in brisk impressionist dabs and strokes.

"Waterfall — Cascades" on the first floor is one of Christensen's largest paintings, and one of his best. Measuring 84 by 68 inches, it is a close-up view of a torrential surge of water rushing over boulders made sculptural by contouring cool and warm and light and dark hues. The artist's techniques create the effect of dazzling sunlight.

Also on the first floor, "Waterlilies — Cazadero," is an impressive triptych measuring eight feet across. This is a painting which needs to be seen from a distance if one is to appreciate its liquescent transparencies and rich subtleties.

Christensen's sensitivity to atmospheric conditions of low-keyed and brooding turbulence are effectively seen in "Cloud Storm — Switzerland, Low Clouds — Napa Valley," "Beach at Asilomar," and "Fogging in - Mendocino."

Christensen's work is in the collection of the Library of Congress in Washington, D.C., and he had a residence grant at the Wurlitzer Foundation in Taos, New Mexico in 1968.

He varies his surfaces. Most of his paintings are in acrylics. Some are very mat and fully covered with pigment. In others, an alla prima laying on of stroke-on-stroke of color allows exposure of the support.

Where he has mixed his paints with an additive to achieve a full-bodied and glossy relief surface, or has added sand for a grainy effect, as in "Winter Stream V," he has done so very effectively.

These paintings are the visual diary of a roving outdoorsman. They make possible a vicarious and pleasurable journey.

This exhibit, sponsored by the Marin Museum Association, will continue through Aug. 2, and may be seen weekdays from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

U.S. Backs 200-Mile Sea Coast Use Limit

CARACAS, Venezuela (AP) — The United States has agreed to recognize the right of coastal nations to control fishing, undersea oil drilling and other economic exploitation for 200 miles off their coasts, a concession pleasing to U.S. East Coast fishermen and Latin American nations but upsetting to West Coast shrimp and tuna men.

The U.S. delegation to the United Nations Conference on the Law of the Sea announced the U.S. position yesterday and reiterated America's readiness to have territorial waters, where countries control navigation as well as economic exploitation, extended from the current three miles to 12 miles out to sea.

Walter The Great Was Also A Softie

THE BASEBALL EXPLOITS of Walter "The Great" Mails have been adequately reported on the sports pages of the I-J and elsewhere since his death last week.

Generally, he comes through as a guy with a high opinion of himself, a clown, almost a loudmouth (but never vulgar.) That is about the image which Walter himself liked to project.

But there is another Walter Mails who deserves to be remembered and honored. He is Walter "the softie," always concealed by Walter "The Great."

WALTER "THE SOFTIE" was first revealed to the editor of the I-J more than 20 years ago. It happened this way:

One evening after hours the editor answered the office telephone.

"This," said the aging voice at the other end of the line, "is Mrs. Newby out at San Quentin. I want to go to the Marin Centennial Pageant tonight but I don't have a ticket. A friend promised one, but it hasn't materialized. I don't know what to do."

The editor knew it could only be Mrs. Newby, the postmistress at San Quentin, widow of a San Quentin guard, mother of Walter "The Great" Mails, and herself a part of Marin County history.

"Well, Mrs. Newby, it's only a couple of hours till the pageant starts, I don't have any more tickets. It's a sell-out. I don't know where to get any more tickets. But if you go to the box office when you arrive, I'll see somehow that they have a ticket in your name," said the editor.

It was simply a matter of correctly guessing that the producers of the pageant most certainly would want Mrs. Newby to see the production — one way or another. When informed, they quickly arranged a ticket for her.

MRS. NEWBY subsequently told her "boy," Walter, about that nice (then) young man at the I-J who got her a ticket when all else had failed.

Walter "The Great" stopped by the I-J not long afterward to express his personal appreciation for the effort on behalf of his aging mother. He began in his usual blustering manner, but tears came to his eyes and he wept in gratitude.

Walter "the softie" was revealed.

For the rest of his life, Walter "The Great" never missed a chance to "put down" the editor of the I-J in public repartee. And for the rest of his life, Walter "the softie" never missed an opportunity to do something nice for the editor's family.

WALTER "THE GREAT" Mails is remembered by most as the blustering, loud mouth baseball pitcher. And so he would probably like to be remembered.

But those of us who came to know another side of him remember him fondly as Walter "the softie" who went through life almost secretly heaping kindness on people who shared the secret of his "softness." We honor his memory, not for his baseball exploits, but because he was in humbler moments truly a great man.

RICHARD C. (DICK) FOX has said some things to the San Rafael city council which needed repeating in the community.

"I have hopes," he has written, "that the city council will look favorably on every opportunity, large or small, in acquiring public access along the canal."

Amen.

San Rafael's preliminary plan hits the nail on the head in one respect when it says, ". . . Public access to the canal is extremely limited; the only real beneficiaries are the people who live adjacent to it or who use it for boating."

A second Amen.

A planning ordinance proposed for adoption by the council contains this provision: "SHORELINE ACCESS. Permanently guaranteed public access to and along the waterfront shall be included in new development proposals adjacent to the Bay, San Rafael Canal and Gallinas Creek.

Amen for the third time.

We leave it to the city council, the planners and engineers to determine the merits and/or demerits of the specific proposition which Fox urges on the city, but we can all heartily endorse what Fox has to say about the need for and desirability of increased public access to the San Rafael Canal.

IN THEORY, the Canal has a great potential value to the whole community. That can be readily accepted.

But a ride up and down the canal aboard a boat makes it abundantly clear that the public is effectively cut off from any enjoyment of the water, except in those few small areas where there is public ownership of the shoreline.

One is moved to conclude that the canal was lost to the public when private development enclosed it.

This is a short-sighted conclusion.

A longer view is contained in Dick Fox' suggestion that the city should look favorably on every opportunity, large or small, to acquire public access along the canal. If every council does that for the next few decades, at least our children or grandchildren will live to see San Rafael Canal become an asset to all the people.

Bouquets And Brickbats

BOUQUETS to Marin Municipal Water District directors for taking preliminary steps toward getting Russian River water via the North Marin intertie.

BRICKBATS to AC Transit strikers for trying to expand the walkout to non-striking agencies like BART and the Golden Gate Transit District.

BOUQUETS to representatives of the county and Ross Valley cities (San Anselmo and Ross) for working together on an area-wide growth control ordinance.

BRICKBATS to the Golden Gate Transit District for charging more for commuter books from July 1, while accepting the old lower rate for those who stocked up on the old commute books before the price change.

A BOUQUET to Governor Reagan for including $172,500 in the state budget for purchase of a park and historical site at Rancho Olompali north of Novato.

"I'm going to bed. All they do is sit there and discuss their reactors."

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

Do Not Devalue Creek Properties

Planning commissions are very good but let us inform the citizens who elect these people, what they are planning. If it wasn't for Warren Perry, the residents that live on Butterfield Road and Sleepy Hollow area along the creek that adjoins their property would never know what the San Anselmo City Council proposes at their next meeting. At his own expense we each and all got a letter with the proposal that could cause us the loss of property and depreciation of our homes.

I know the I-J has long been negative responsive to closed meetings, too sparse information of actions that interfere with the citizens who are too busy working, worrying about home difficulties.

Let all concerned be at the San Anselmo Council chambers July 15 at 8 p.m. to voice their views.

Thank you, ex-Mayor Perry of San Anselmo.

Help U.S. Needy, Not Those Abroad

Freedom of speech and freedom of press and a right to govern by elections the way we want our country to be run. Equality for all. The right to go where we want without violating others privacy and without fear of violence. Do we have this?

We have a very corrupt government and a weak congress that thinks more of "Party" lines than what the people of this country need and want. Judges that consider the criminal and not the victim. Light sentences so they do and can come out and commit worse crimes the next time.

There is only one way that the country can come out of this for the people and I mean all the people to stand up and be counted. We want:

1. Honest Government now and not three years from now. No president is above the law and he should remember that.

2. We want Congress to take steps to stop inflation, to stop supporting the other countries and help our needy here at home. Too much money is going out, and we can't afford it any longer. Our own people need our help. Americans should always come first.

3. Make jobs for the young so they get off welfare and in that way they may develop a pride in this great country. Take care of our veterans; they well deserve it.

John Burton Has San Rafael Office

Congressman John L. Burton has opened an office at 910 D Street in San Rafael to serve his Marin County constituency.

Although the office telephones were installed nearly two weeks ago, the new number is not available through Information. Persons seeking the number are being given the number of the now vacant campaign headquarters in Larkspur.

We are informed that the situation will be remedied later in the month when new telephone operator books are issued. However, until that time Marinites without transportation are left without immediate access to their Congressman's office.

A press release to the Independent-Journal and the county's weekly papers carried both the address and phone number of the new office. While I am cognizant of the I-J's policy of not printing phone numbers in news items, I am concerned that Congressman Burton's constituents might be frustrated in their attempts to reach his office.

To that end, I am requesting that you print this letter which includes the telephone number of the new office — 457-7272.

Kissinger Has Built Up An Effective State Department

WASHINGTON — We are three-fourths of the way through this grimmest of centuries that marked, after 1940, America's rise to unparalleled power. Whether given our deep domestic division we can use this power wisely to keep the peace in a world with the fearful overhang of nuclear annihilation still in uncertain balance.

In 1900 those two dour brothers, Brooks and Henry Adams, the last intellectual lights of the great New England family, examined Brooks's prophecy of America's coming economic supremacy. They took a dim view of our capacity to hold the line against war and anarchy as the British had held it for the preceding century.

TO THIS OBSERVER a test of our maturity turns on the fate of Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger and the future of the Department of State over which he is attempting to preside. The question is not merely whether he is to be brought down by those chivying him over the wiretaps.

Under the star system for which the press and Kissinger himself are responsible, it is made to appear that the Secretary of State is the end-all and be-all of American foreign policy. If he resigns in the fall, and those close to him believe the chances of this are 50-50, then the glue factory, as the Department is known by its more contemptuous critics, falls into a great big hole in Foggy Bottom.

FOR SEVERAL REASONS this is deeply disturbing. First, it is simply not true. In the nine months he has been Secretary, Kissinger, despite his long absences from Washington, has moved in several respects to make the Department a more effective agent to implement foreign policy.

He has put able career officers into important posts. For example, Joseph Sisco, with a broad background in the Middle East, was persuaded to refuse an attractive outside offer and stay on to be Under Secretary for Political Affairs. Others in assistant secretary posts are carrying on the work of the Department.

Whether Kissinger is in the Middle East, in Russia or wherever, they work at the liaison task with Congress — 16 separate appearances during the Secretary's latest absence — so important to the continuity of policy. That is another reason to correct the impression that Kissinger's departure would leave a void for the remaining two years of the administration; foreign governments would feel that they had no place to turn in their relationship with the United States.

UNLIKE HIS immediate predecessors, Kissinger keeps in close touch with the most important elements of policy while he is away. A large volume of traffic passes both ways through the efficient communications system. Increasingly Kissinger leaves decisions to associates.

One problem is the duality of his role as Secretary and adviser in the White House on national security affairs. The NSC staff he heads has been reduced in size with several members brought into the State Department. At a meeting in the White House just before the latest SALT talks, Acting Secretary of State Sisco sat next to the President while Kissinger in his NSC role sat across the table.

EVER SINCE the United States moved into the big power orbit, the State Department has been a scapegoat, with foes and even friends blaming the messenger for the bad news. Before 1940 it was a tight little operation dominated by a few senior foreign service officers. Except for the five years under Dean Acheson, morale in the sprawling colossus has been low.

Returning to Washington with presumably six to eight weeks at his desk in the Department, Kissinger will spend a certain number of days before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee in the investigation he requested into his previous testimony on the wiretaps. He will also be interrogated about his association with David Young and the plumbers unit in the White House.

IN THE OPINION of this observer, an objective inquiry will absolve him of the insinuation of perjury and similar charges hurled at him at his press conference when he returned from the Middle East.

Kissinger, the immigrant, has served his country well. The uses of power in a divided and chaotic world are often abhorrent to idealistic Americans. The blame has been heaped on Kissinger as an agent of that power. The American dilemma is whether any agent can serve, confronted by a nation divided over the legitimacy of the power role.

Nixon, The Globetrotter: 'Have Reactor—Will Travel'

WASHINGTON — President Nixon's game plan for the summer is to stay out of Washington as much as he can. After the Middle East and the Soviet Union he went to Key Biscayne. Then he stopped in Washington to feed the dog and went out to San Clemente.

After San Clemente he expects to go to Japan. After Japan it's anybody guess.

"Ron, get me Henry on the phone."

"Yes sir, Mr. President . . . Henry's in Rio de Janeiro watching the World Champion Wrestling Matches."

"Well, get him for me anyway . . ."

"Here he is, Mr. President."

"HENRY, THIS IS the President. Have you given any more thought to where I can go after Japan? . . . Hmmn, you think New Guinea? . . . No, I've never been to New Guinea. I'd like that very much . . . Shall wer offer them a nuclear reactor? . . . You think they'd settle for a plain kerosene generator? . . . Good, I'll order one up . . .

"Okay, so we go to New Guinea . . . Where else? . . . Borneo? . . . Why am I going to Borneo? . . . SALT talks . . . I see. Borneo has the best salt mines in the Far East . . . You figure if we can't make a SALT treaty with the Soviet Union we can make one with Indonesia? . . . That's using the old head, Henry . . . Okay, that takes me into September. What then? . . . What's that? . . . I could take a 90-day cruise on the SS France? . . . I know the food is delicious, Henry, but how do I justify taking a cruise at that time? . . . To visit Hong Kong and encourage trade with the United States? . . . Ron says it will play in Peoria. . . What do I do ater the cruise? . . . You want me to climb Mount Everest?

"LET ME ASK you this, Henry. Why would I want to climb Mount Everest? . . . To be the first President of the United States ever to hold a summit talk on a summit? . . . I like it . . . All right, we're into the spring . . . What do I do then? . . . I go back to Washington? . . . What on earth for? Henry, you know I hate Washington . . . Well, wouldn't you hate Washington if they were saying all those terrible things about you? . . . They're saying them about you,too? . . . I know, Henry, I'm sorry . . . Okay, you think I should go back to Washington for a week, just so people will feel I'm working on the domestic problems of the country . . . But I'm warning you, Henry, I'm not going to stay for the weekend.

"WHERE DO I go after the week in Washington? . . . You think you can get me on the Film Festival jury in Cannes? . . . Will they be showing 'Patton'? . . . Oh, that's too bad . . . No, don't refuse it . . . I'll take Pat and the kids . . . Is there any country close to Cannes where I can stop off for a rest? . . . Spain? . . . That's a perfect idea. The Spanish have always liked me and I think Franco will go all-out to see we have a good reception . . . To make sure, I'll give him a fleet of helicopters . . ."

"Now we have to think about next summer . . . What about going back to Russia? . . . We can't do it? It's Brezhnev's turn to visit the United States? . . . Does that mean I have to come back to Washington next summer? . . . Oh, Henry, is there any way we can get out of it? . . . Maybe we could leave a note for him and tell him Pat and I had to go to Peking . . . You don't think that would work? . . . All right, I'll come back for the meeting, but he'd better make it short.

"LOOK, THIS call is costing money . . . When will I see you? . . . After the World Wrestling Championships, you're going to Spoleto for the concerts? . . . I see, and then the horse show in Ireland? . . . Right, I got you . . . And then the Tunisian tennis finals, and after that you're going to the dog sled races in Alaska? . . . You have a pretty exciting summer ahead of you . . . Listen, if you're ever in Washington I'll give you my number . . . I may not be here but the answering service will always know where I am . . . Yes, Ill tell Nancy you're fine. Goodby, Henry, and don't forget to write."

$1.3 Million Bungling By 'Big Brother' Government

Here is what I promised to wonder you with. The figures are accurate down to the last cent.

So, now read this:

$1,387,171.90

ONE MILLION three hundred eighty-seven thousand, one hundred seventy-one dollars and ninety cents —

That is the cost of the Administrator's office from 1957 through July 10, 1974. This is principally for salaries and social benefits.

WHAT DID YOU get for it? Conniving — ignoring recommendations of duly appointed commissions and committees and hiring incompetents, not recommended, whose tenure for several years cost you heavily and still nothing accomplished — abrasive contacts with several grand juries.

There was quarreling with the courts, pushing in where there was not the slightest authority to do so. They gladly went along with the sups when they wanted to abdicate. Because of their ineptness there was ball-up after ball-up.

Big sounding conglomerates ended in confusion.

THE ALARMING situation now is that the report of the firm of consultants urges that the administrator's office be enlarged, which would not only give us "Big Brother" government with the accompanying additional costs which at the rate that account has been climbing lately would double in no time at all.

1958—$ 43,255.61	1967—$107,551.36
1959—$ 30,068.04	1968—$109,281.33
1960—$ 30,070.94	1969—$124,789.68
1961—$ 22,173.96	1970—$132,167.65
1962—$ 17,188.56	1971—$140,221.40
1963—$ 29,266.10	1972—$122,169.12

BATTLE WITH HUNGER

A Critical Food Shortage For Millions Of Asians

By JOHN DILLIN
The Christian Science Monitor
News Service

WASHINGTON — The greatest food deficit in human history is unfolding in Asia . . . so warns a U.S. development expert.

Lester R. Brown of the Overseas Development Council says Asian countries may require imports to feed more than 200 million people within the next 12 months.

Fertilizer shortages are compounding Asian food problems that already were serious because of the Arab oil embargo and steadily increasing populations, Brown says.

U.S. Agriculture officials, advised of Brown's predictions, agreed that Asia's food deficit probably will reach an all-time high of more than 50 million metric tons this year — even with favorable weather.

Indian alone is expected to require 7.5 million tons of imported grains. And a failure of the Indian monsoon, which has been poor so far, could add another 15 million tons to that deficit. The U.S. "couldn't meet" such an additional demand, says a USDA official.

The impending food crisis has developed at a time when world grain reserves are estimated at less than a month's supply — a modern-day low. Any major crop failure now in a principal producing country would immediately tighten food supplies around the globe, U.S. officials say.

Brown, a former administrator of the USDA's international agricultural development service, asserts that Asia's food troubles could challenge Western statesmenship.

"Political leaders," he says, "may decide to cast Asia adrift . . . and say it's too big. They may say the inflationary impact of shipping food out of the United States on that scale would be more than could be tolerated.

"We live on a planet of limited size and capacity, and yet the annual gain in the demand for food gets larger and larger.

"At the turn of the century, food demand rose on the order of four million tons a year; by 1950, growth was maybe 12 million tons a year; by 1970, about 30 million tons a year."

U.S. efforts to meet this rising demand by putting 50 million idle acres back into crops have "hardly gained an inch" in the battle with hunger, Brown says.

The nations most in need of the food are often those least able to pay for it — the developing countries of Asia, Africa, and South America.

The Food and Agricultural Organization of the United Nations last month issued a report indicating that without a reversal of population trends, underdeveloped nations might need imports of 85 million tons a year of grain by 1985. Droughts, floods, and other problems could push that gap to 100 million tons, the report indicated.

At average 1973-74 prices, such imports would cost those countries $16 billion to $18 billion a year. "It is clear," the report concluded, that "the majority of . . . developing countries will not be able to finance such heavy imports."

The problems can all be traced back to population, Brown asserts. In the long run, nations like India, Pakistan, and Bangladesh must manage to feed themselves, and doing that will require controlling population.

Two developing Asian nations, he says, have achieved outstanding success in the population area — Singapore and China.

Limited success has been recorded in a number of developing countries — South Korea, Taiwan, Singapore, Hong Kong, Barbados, Mauritius, Tunisia, Egypt, Chile and Costa Rica.

One of the most miserable failures, he indicates, has been India, where Prime Minister Indira Gandhi's leadership on this issue has been "sad."

"Not that they can stop population growth overnight; but Mrs. Gandhi is simply not making an effort now. It's difficult to imagine anyone being more indifferent to the problem than she is, unfortunately," Brown asserts.

India's attitude, he says, presents Western leadership with a dilemma. How can they ask their own people to plan their families, to eat less meat, to endure higher prices for food and cotton goods and shoes — unless other nations are willing to help themselves.

"It's not an unreasonable expectation," he says, "because the United States cannot feed India over the long term. India must feed itself. We can help out in the short run. But that help . . . is not likely to be forthcoming unless Americans get every assurance that India is doing everything it can."

Minnesota Is Curbing Shoplifting

By MICHAEL FEDO
The Christian Science Monitor
News Service

MINNEAPOLIS — Shoplifting! Is there no way to stem its demoralizing and costly tide?

Each year, shoplifting costs U.S. businesses a whopping $14 billion and in the process adds 2 per cent to the cost of most retail products.

In an effort to find an answer, Minnesota has initiated a statewide program patterned after one now in use in several cities — Shoplifters Take Everybody's Money (STEM).

The figures the statewide effort has garnered point to an encouraging trend.

Since STEM's beginning here in April, 1973, the State Crime Bureau reports that shoplifting arrests have declined throughout the state, with some communities showing nearly 50 per cent reductions. The state average is a cut of nearly 20 per cent.

The case of teen-age Debbie is typical of the problems involved and the need for a solution.

When she graduated from a suburban Minneapolis high school this spring, she anticipated enrolling at a state college in September. But because of a shoplifting arrest a year earlier, Debbie can't get a loan to meet college expenses.

Many shoplifters are teen-age females who come from good homes and have enough money to pay for the items they have taken.

Because of Debbie, and thousands of young persons like her who are caught shoplifting each year without realizing the possible consecuqnces, the Minnesota Retail Federation, in coopration with local chambers of commerce, last year launched the anti-shoplifting campaign in more than 40 Minnesota communities.

STEM has made massive use of media, films, posters, and brochures to get its message before the public — especially the young. The amateur or teen-age shoplifters commit more than half of the shoplifting in the U.S., officials say. In Minnesota, $500,000 is stolen through shoplifting every shopping day.

STEM hopes to discourage young people from shoplifting and emphasizes the economic impact of the activity.

The STEM concept originated in Philadelphia a few years ago and is operating in a number of U.S. cities. Minnesota, however, is one of the few states which has adopted the program.

Al Brodie, STEM program coordinator, says the reductions in Minnesota are significantly impressive when measured against the national statistics which report a 10 percent average annual increase in shoplifting arrests.

"Most retailers have long considered the teen-age shoplifter one of his biggest headaches," said Brodie, pointing to a statement by Joseph Giunta of the Illinois Youth Commission.

"Today's kids don't seem to think of shoplifting as a crime," writes Giunta, "but rather as a game."

Federal Judgeship Resignations Over Present Pay Bringing Reform Calls

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Many of the nation's federal judges, who make $40,000 a year and can retire on full income, are complaining they cannot manage in this time of rapacious inflation. Some are leaving the bench to get back into lucrative private practice.

There's also concern that a freeze on the salaries of U.S. district judges may chill hopes of the judiciary to keep the best available talent on the bench.

Five judges have resigned since the Senate voted 71 to 26 last March against raising salaries for congressmen, the judiciary and other high bureaucrats.

Despite a 30 per cent increase in the cost-of-living in the last five years, the lawmakers shied away from raising their own pay in an election year, thus depriving judges and others of an increase. Judicial salaries are where they were in 1969.

Leading figures of the bench and bar feel that resigning a judgeship for a lucrative spot in a law firm whose cases the judge has been trying does not enhance the public image of the federal judiciary.

"They shouldn't be shopping around with people who have practiced before them," Chesterfield Smith, president of the American Bar Association, said recently.

Retired Supreme Court Justice Tom C. Clark, who shares leadership of a committee that is supposed to inform Congress on this subject, told UPI the wide gap betwsen lawyers' and judges' salaries "does impinge on the independence of judges."

"The image of justice is just as important as justice itself," Clark said. "What people think of the courts is going to have a direct bearing on what the courts do. If they see judges going off — going into firms — it will leave a bad impression."

Clark said a good lawyer's bottom price for courtroom work is $50 an hour. In metropolitan areas it goes as high as $100. Figuring six hours a day in court, plus work before and after, the pay is pretty good.

Clark and Smith believe the threat to judicial excellence is not so much in resignations as in the difficulty of attracting topflight lawyers to the bench.

These twin problems, and Congress' refusal to consider them, have moved some judges to express themselves in forceful terms. They especially were pained by a statement of Majority Leader Mike Mansfield of Montana on the Senate floor that "there are hundreds of lawyers waiting to take the places of the members of the judiciary who are complaining so much and who have been putting on such a tremendous lobby."

Judge John Minor Wisdom of the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in New Orleans, one of the nation's most respected jurists, wrote Mansfield deploring what he termed the senator's "contemptuous reference."

"In a few days you were influential in reducing the incentive to become a federal judge to the point where it will be difficult to attract good men to federal courts," he said.

Chief Judge Charles B. Fulton of the District Court in Miami recalled in a letter to Chief Justice Warren E. Burger's administrative assistant the suggestion of a columnist that "in these days of distrust and crisis the only thing that is holding the country together is the judiciary."

"It begins to look like both the administration and the Congress are willing to scuttle the judiciary," Fulton wrote.

District Judge Arnold Bauman of New York, who is leaving for private practice in August, said federal judges "do not assume their offices for a limited period anticipating their return to private life and lucrative pursuits . . . their problems are unique and require special consideration."

Bauman said when he was appointed he expected to serve the rest of his life but because of inflation and congressional inaction he was forced to resign.

The pay of congressmen and judges is tied because of the peculiar system for recommending increases. This job is done every four years by the Commission on Legislative, Executive and Judicial Salaries, whose members are appointed by the President, the chief justice, the speaker of the House, and the president of the Senate.

New appointees have looked to this system to keep salary levels abreast of the rise in the cost of living. The commission in 1973 recommended a 25 per cent pay hike to bring district judges up to $50,000 and circuit judges to $53,000.

Bicyclists Need To Practice Skills

By MERLE E. DOWD
The Christian Science Monitor
News Service

Bicycles used to be something that a parent would buy his little daughter, say, for Christmas. Before 1969, 85 per cent of these vehicles were for children.

Now adults buy 50 to 60 per cent of them for their own use — for transportation as well as recreation.

And bicycle sales are booming; while 3.7 million were sold in 1960, 15.3 million were sold in 1973. A bicycle population of 100 million is predicted for 1975.

Unfortunately along with the increased bicycle sales has come an increase in accidents involving bicycles. According to the California Highway Patrol, bike riders are usually at fault — riding on the wrong side of the road,turning improperly, and attempting to establish right-of-way in competition with motor vehicles.

But this situation need not continue. The California report concluded: "Dramatic improvement (in lessening the number of bicycle-car accidents) is possible if bicycle riders keep alert at all times, exercise common sense, and follow the rules of the road."

What does it take to ride a bicycle safely?

Skill, for starters. Bicyclists should be able to ride under complete comtrol at all times — in the straight line and while turning. Learn to shift gears by feel to avoid taking eyes off the road ahead. Practice riding in different gears; you'll find driving down a straight line is easier if you maintain a fairly rapid cadence — 60 to 70 revolutions of the crank per minute.

Know and follow the rules of the road. On highways, bicycles ride with the traffic and as far to the right as feasible — on the shoulder if it is paved and free of sand, glass, and so on. In the city, avoid arterials or other streets where parking is prohibited: Cars travel at higher speeds on streets without parking. Cars usually maintain three or more feet between parked vehicles; this allows plenty of room for a cyclist skilled at riding straight.

Look ahead for persons in cars who might suddenly open a door in your path. If a person is in a car, yell or sound a horn. You should be able to tell by head action or eye movement whether or not the person known that you are approaching.

Avoid known hazards — street cracks or holes, street-car tracks. Safe cyclists also keep on the lookout for oil spots, wet paper or leaves, and loose sand. If you can't avoid slick or slippery spots, maintain a straight course; turning develops a sidewise force that may exceed traction and start a skid.

Take extra care at intersections.

When turning left at an intersection without signs or a signal where traffic is light, a cyclist may safely swing to the left just like a car — after a glance back to assure no car is coming.

At a busy intersection, particularly one with a traffic signal, it is safer to proceed across the street in the right lane, stop, and wait for the light to change. A rear-view mirror helps a cyclist keep track of traffic coming up behind without taking his eyes off the road ahead.

Use hand signals. Obey traffic signs and signals. Police complain that bicyclists fail to stop at signs and signals. Toe-clips, a must for the serious cyclist, should be adjusted loosely to permit slipping a foot out quickly.

When a stop is sighted ahead, shift down to a low gear while still pedaling, a must for derailleur gears. Brake to a stop and put a foot down. As you push off again, gears will be set for a quick getaway without meandering across a wide path, possibly into the way of a following car.

Learn local rules. Some towns permit cycling on sidewalks except in shopping centers and business districts. Others simply prohibit riding on sidewalks. Ask your police department for a copy of local codes and state laws affecting cyclists.

Make yourself visible. An often-cited reason for motor vehicle bicycle collisions is failure of the driver to see a cyclist.

Country riding and touring call for different skills and know-how. Take downhill coasting, for example. After climbing a long grade, letting go on the downgrade offers an exhilarating wind-in-the-face thrill. But heed these cautions:

Leave room between riders when traveling in a group. If something should happen to the rider ahead, you need room to stop or maneuver. Also, when you are too close the rider ahead blocks your view.

Keep bags tightly closed. Something falling off a bicycle may distract a following rider or cause him to swerve.

Keep speed under control by applying brakes gently — on and off in cycles. If you are riding in the rain or on wet roads, regular braking keeps rims dry. Wet brakes require at least 2½ times the distance to stop a bicycle on level ground compared to dry brakes on dry pavement — on a wet downgrade brakes may not stop you if rims are wet.

PAYS OFF HER DEBT

When Linda Smith arrived in Tulsa, Okla., Thursday on a vacation she had two problems: her car needed repairs and she didn't have enough money. So the young mother of three offered to pump gas for a day if the service station would fix her car. They would and she did and with such efficiency the station operator says he may hire a fulltime "pump person." (UPI Telephoto)

Warm Springs Dam Will Be On Reasoner's Report Tomorrow

The controversial Warm Springs Dam in Sonoma County will be one of the subjects of a 14-minute documentary film on the Harry Reasoner Report (ABC-TV) at 6 p.m. tomorrow on ABC television.

Iva M. Warner of Healdsburg, co-chairman of the coalition of civic and environmental groups which opposes construction of the $114 million Army Corps of Engineers project, said the program will deal with the effect of the Watergate scandals on public works projects.

Mrs. Warner said the report will investigate whether the dam and the cross Florida barge canal, another proposed federal project, are pork barrel projects awarded by President Nixon to cooperative congressmen in return for nonimpeachment against impeachment.

The program provides evidence, she said, that Nixon has attempted to keep such projects alive despite possible environmental damage they might cause.

Hub Commission To Eye Flood Zone

The San Anselmo Planning Commission will reconsider creation of a 70-foot-wide open space flood plain along San Anselmo Creek when it meets at 8 p.m. Monday in city hall.

At issue is an ordinance prohibiting development, fences or paving within 20 feet of creek banks.

The commission last April approved the ordinance, but it was referred back to the agency by the city council for further public hearings.

Creekside residents have claimed the commission originally reviewed the proposal without appropriate public notice and have said the measure will deny landowners reasonable use of their property.

One critic of the ordinance is creekside landowner and former Mayor Warren R. Perry, who has mailed out several hundred letters to fellow property owners.

Should the measure be approved, "we will suffer the loss of use of our creekside property and a most certain depreciation in land value," according to the Perry mailer.

"The objective is not flood control. The objective is to create a greenbelt along the creek," Perry wrote.

Scouts Keep Up Flag Tradition

EL PASO, Tex. (AP) — Since late May 1970, members of El Paso Boy Scout Troop 21 have been raising the United States flag each Saturday morning in San Jacinto Plaza in downtown El Paso.

At least one patrol from the troop handles the assignment regardless of weather conditions, reports William I. Latham, editor of the El Paso Times.

The present Scoutmaster is a Roman Catholic priest, Brother Tariscio Bressan, who doesn't speak English. He has worked with the troop from a low income area of El Paso for many years.

LIVE IN THE WINE COUNTRY

ST. HELENA VILLAS is for those who have always wanted to live in the Napa Valley wine country.

Here's one of those special places that gives you a happy feeling just to think about it. Miles of winding vineyards. Quiet, rural valley charm. A picturesque setting in the City of St. Helena, the center of the fabled wine country where you have always wanted to live. Come discover a collection of 2 and 3 bedroom country garden homes just opening for inspection.

Walking distance from the center of town, St. Helena Villas has all the conveniences... including a private cabana club with a large swimming pool. Close at hand are no less than nine golf courses and Lake Berryessa nearby. San Francisco is only slightly more than an hour away.

You'll find St. Helena Villas' quality features include a woodburning fireplace, central air conditioning, wall-to-wall shag carpeting, a separate formal dining room, and large master bedroom suite. On the practical side, there's energy conserving and soundproofed insulated walls and ceilings, a kitchen with a General Electric range and self cleaning oven, dishwasher, disposal, garbage compactor and wax-free vinyl floors.

Outdoor walkways crisscross landscaped grounds that lead to private patios, yards or verandas that keep St. Helena Villas picture perfect. So does an exterior maintenance service that gives you time to enjoy your free time. Pre-opening prices begin at $33,990.

Directions: Take Highway 29 north through Napa to St. Helena. Turn right on Pope Street to the furnished model home.

Russell And Archer, And Their Unique 50,000-Volt Paintings

By DON KEOWN

Most fine arts painters work with brushes and oils or watercolors on canvas.

Some, however, prefer less ordinary media.

Few, though, can match Dave Archer and Ron Russell when it comes to an unusual variation from the orthodox.

For the vivid abstract paintings they produce jointly, working in their San Rafael home as Russell Archer Studios, the two men use glass instead of canvas. And electricity plays an essential part in achieving their striking effects.

The pair shoot 50,000 volts from a Tesla coil (named for its inventor, Nikola Tesla) into the glass and through to the backside to which they have applied a wet pigment mixed to their secret formula.

The results can be spectacular.

"THE ELECTRICITY energizes the pigment to such an extent that it wants to grow," Dave Archer explains. "And it does begin to grow — slowly, unpredictably, over a period of hours."

The electricity from the Tesla coil (which directs and controls energy that normally would be released into the air) is maintained for 10 or 15 minutes, then turned off, and the energized pigment is worked by the artists. Then more electricity is applied. Then more of the working. And so it continues.

The color of the pigment is unchanged, but the electricity causes intricate and sometimes wild abstract patterns to develop.

AND THE EFFECT of looking through the glass to see the artwork gives it all a deep, three dimensional appearance.

"Most people get an impression that is somewhere in between looking through a telescope and through a microscope," Archer says.

The two men have completed and sold more than 20 of these unusual and untitled paintings. "We sell them just about as fast as we can turn them out," Archer says.

And at shows and festivals, from Palm Springs to Oregon, the work has attracted keen interest of fellow artists and spectators.

Hanson Gallery of 333 Jefferson Street, San Francisco, near Fisherman's Wharf, is currently holding a show of the two Marinites' glass paintings.

"THIS HAS CAUSED more comment than anything I have ever done in my life," Archer says of the "electric paintings."

The artist, whose full name is Dave Archer Nelson, but who creates under his first and middle names, was born in San Luis Obispo 33 years ago. He has had art training, including studies under Bill Paradise at Cambria College, and he began his career as a traditional, representational painter.

"I did a lot of traveling," Archer says, "particularly in Mexico. I studied there. And I was technical director for the Gallery Players, a theater group, at San Miguel de Allende."

HE SETTLED THEN in San Francisco's North Beach as an artist — "but not a successful painter. I supported myself at various other jobs."

It was during a visit to Sonoma that he met Ron Russell Cushing, who also uses his first and middle names only in his painting.

Russell, 35, was born and reared in the Palo Alto area. Largely a self-taught artist, he had done well in "op art" and had given up painting to concentrate on plastic sculptures that were being marketed in the Bay Area.

IT WAS FROM Russell that Archer first learned about the special properties of glass for paintings.

Russell had made his own discovery, accidentally. While doing on "op art" painting, he had used a slab of glass as his palette. Then he chanced to turn it over, looked through the glass and saw the colors that had been left there by his work.

He liked it so well that he framed it, entered it in a Santa Rosa art show, and captured a $10 first prize.

"HE TOLD ME about it, some time after we had met through friends in Sonoma," Archer says. "I had never heard of glass paintings. But it sounded like fun. And we began to experiment

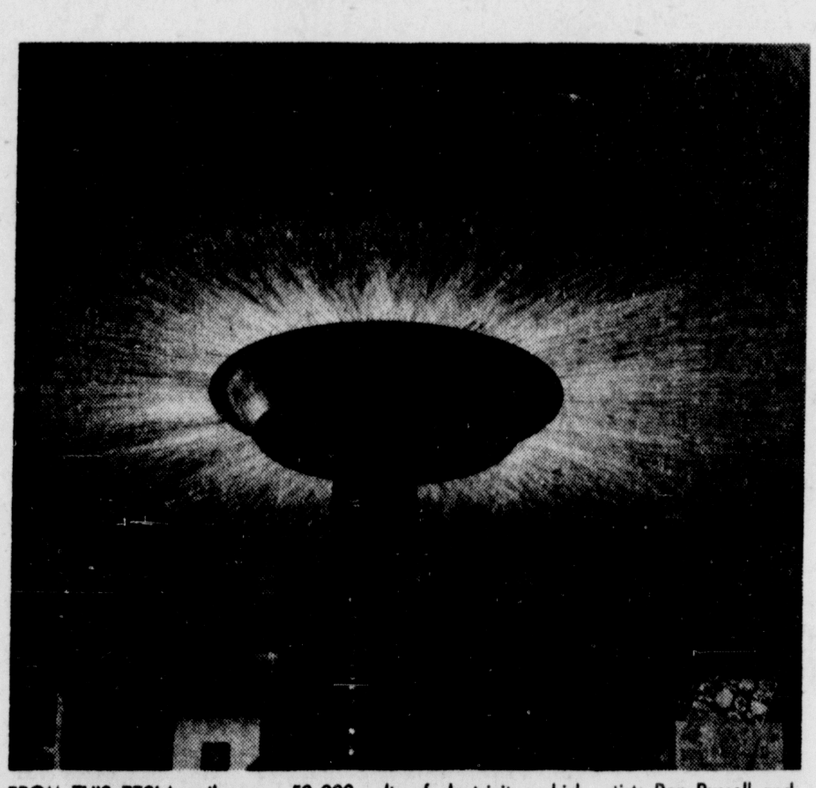
TO ACHIEVE THIS abstract painting, Dave Archer and Ron Russell of Russell Archer Studios, San Rafael, used, not brushes and paints on canvas, but their own secret formula of pigments applied to the reverse side of glass, and then "zapped" with 50,000 volts of electricity directed from a Tesla coil. The two men have been creating their "electrical paintings" now for two years, and selling them virtually as fast as they can complete them. They developed the process in Sonoma, then moved to Marin County some six months ago.



FROM THIS TESLA coil comes 50,000 volts of electricity, which artists Ron Russell and Dave Archer have learned to direct upon pigment applied to the reverse side of glass. The result: an art form that they believe is unique.

Bill Sache, Marin's Man With The Horn, Wasn't Able To Get Away From Music

By JOAN LISETOR

Bill Sache was 8 years old when his father, a junk dealer, brought home a cornet.

That cornet was the beginning of a career in music, which so far has spanned 35 years.

Sache's orchestra plays Tuesdays through Saturdays at the St. Francis Hotel Penthouse in San Francisco, but the road that led to being the headliner at a major hotel has been a long one with several detours.

YOUNG SACHE convinced his parents first to let him take music lessons, then, when he proved himself as an able musician, to appear in amateur shows.

"I was capable for my age, could read music well, and — as the expression goes — could fake it," Sache said.

Still in early teens, Sache convinced his mother to let him go to Hampton Beach, N.H., a considerable distance from his home in Worcester, Mass. He played around at fairs and circuses for a few years — then came the big offer.

At 15 he was invited to join the musicians' union and the following year convinced his family to let him go on the road with a band.

"MY MOTHER let me go with the promise I wouldn't miss school," Sache said.

His instrument by then was a trumpet, he having abandoned the smaller coronet by then.

He would play in a club, then ride all night, making the long trip back from an engagement to be in school the next day. His teachers made concessions when he fell asleep in class, he said.

"Actually, it was a drag, going back to school. But the other kids envied me. I was a hero," Sache said.

Do You Know What An EIR Is All About?

MARIN LIVING

By NANCY WISE

And Moses said, "We're ready to cross the Red Sea. You said You'd part it for us."

And He replied, "Ah, yes, but first we need an EIR."

IF WE WERE to fall briefly into a tempting daydream and imagine an Earth in which a good Environmental Impact Report had been used in planning each development, we'd see quite a different world around us.

The San Francisco Bay, for one, might still have its marshy fringe, with the long-limbed egrets standing serenely still some of the most massive dams of the world wouldn't be collecting their waters behind walls of concrete even the Golden Gate Bridge might not be where it is, and disclosures about earthquake faults would have prevented half of San Francisco from being built.

Obviously, Los Angeles, as we know it, in its smog-collecting bowl, wouldn't have met the air quality standards.

It might be, of course, that our comforts would be simpler (and possibly healthier), since some technological developments couldn't meet the exacting demands of a thorough-going EIR.

What is an EIR?

IN 1970 CONGRESS passed the Environmental Protection Act. One of its provisions makes it necessary for an environmental impact statement to be prepared before any significant development project is begun. The report, as its name indicates, discloses facts about soil, geological formation, biological conditions, air and water quality, views, noise, population density, wildlife, and how the proposed development would change these.

The California legislature passed laws ordering, similarly, an Environmental Impact Report to be submitted before development takes place.

The Environmental Protection Act provisions found a populace unprepared to understand these technical reports, a citizenry untrained to write them, and governing bodies largely unable to evaluate them. We'd guess most ofthe people still don't know what the initials EIR stand for, and yet they're likely to be vastly affected by them.

To shine some light in this dark forest of legislative directive, members of Marin's newly-formed Forum on Environmental Quality established an EIR study group. Hours of research, planning and graphic preparation by forum members Inka Benton and Kay Case has resulted in an EIR interpretive presentation that enormously impressed professionals Tom Severns and Joel Rubey at Marin County's Civic Center.

Severns is Marin County's environmental coordinator, and Rubey is Marin's environmental hearing officer.

THE TWO WOMEN had brought their graphic charts and ideas to the county environmentalists to offer their new expertise to agencies who could give it wide dissemination — and also to check for accuracy.

Rubey: "Accurate it certainly is, and we want to help in any way we can to let people know this material is available."

Kay Case, explaining their goals: "We saw several needs when we began. First, we wanted to interpret guidelines so that the process is lucid and simple. The language of the act is so technical that even the professionals don't have the time to wade through it all. Our aim is to make it completely understandable for everyone to comprehend — like the 'elegant' experiment, as scientists say."

Inka Benton: "Also, different jurisdictions interpret things differently. Neighboring cities have varying laws that make each one look at an EIR differently, and they aren't always aware of what the differences are. We would hope our EIR explanation will give a broad view of the county so each one knows that his neighbor is doing."

Kay: "I would suggest that a workshop be put together on a county-wide basis, for better EIR evaluation. Civic groups, city officials, county officials, individuals, conservation groups and the county would work together, and would attend such a workshop. This would come, of course, after publication of materials."

Tom Severns: "And it's here that we could give assistance. This is a tremendous presentation. It's something we've always needed. For successful implementation of the environmental processes we need citizen support and involvement. It's essential that we have the public's objective views, and this kind of thing will inform and educate people so they can be knowledgeable about projects that enormously affect our lives. The county will look at the possibility of publishing this in line with establishing an environmental data base for the public's use.

(A flow chart consists of color-coded three-by-five-inch cards that indicate first, (white) the county process involved in the EIR procedure second, (blue) the opportunity for public input, and third, (red) weak areas in the procedure that need possibly changes and revisions. The red-flagged danger spots hopefully will be eliminated when revisions are made, and some of these have already been deleted, as those revisions have occurred.)

Says Inka Benton: "One of the weak areas is the fact that decisions can be made the same day the EIR hearing has been held, and this doesn't allow time for community feedback, or for questions to be answered. When this is corrected, we'll take away one red card.

Kay: "Another California guideline that should be revised is the 'over-riding consideration' clause. This allows a project to be approved by an agency even if an EIR discloses considerable damaging impact.

Severns: "We emphatically commend this Forum project. It's what can lead to meaningful action by citizens. It deals with environmental issues without politics, developmental interests or emotions.

Rubey: "The charts are good for developers, for planners, too, so they can see what different requirements are made by cities and-or the county the charts point all this out. If the developer knows the process he can prepare his plan according to the process."

Severns: "Right. This way everyone is talking the same language."

ORIGINALLY, THE EIR process was for public projects only. However, a landmark California court decision, the "Mammoth decision," put private projects in line for impact study.

Inka: Incidentally, our study is only for private developments. The public projects we'll take on later."

(Since Inka will be away for two and a half years with the Peace Corps in Iran, taking part in urban planning activities there, her local involvement will be taken up by other forum members.)

Kay: "It's important to remember that small projects make important impacts, and all of these should have public impact."

Inka: "Primarily, we hope this will aid others who want to know how to be effective in the development of their community the important clause in the EIRprocedure is public participation. That's what it's all about."

Joel Rubey underscores this with the Rubey Principle:

"The philosophical underpinning of the whole environmental process is public involvement."

"We saw several needs when we began," says Kay Case. "First, we wanted to interpret guidelines so that the process is lucid and simple. The language of the act is so technical that even the professionals don't have time to wade through it all. Our aim is to make it completely understandable for everyone."

KAY CASE, left, and Inka Benton discuss the Environmental Impact Report presentation for Marin County that they prepared as members of the EIR study group of the Marin Forum on Environmental Quality with Tom Severns, standing, the county's environmental coordinator, and Joel Rubey, the county's environmental hearing officer. The two professionals were high in their praise of the effort of the two women to make Environmental Impact Report requirements comprehensible and meaningful to the public.

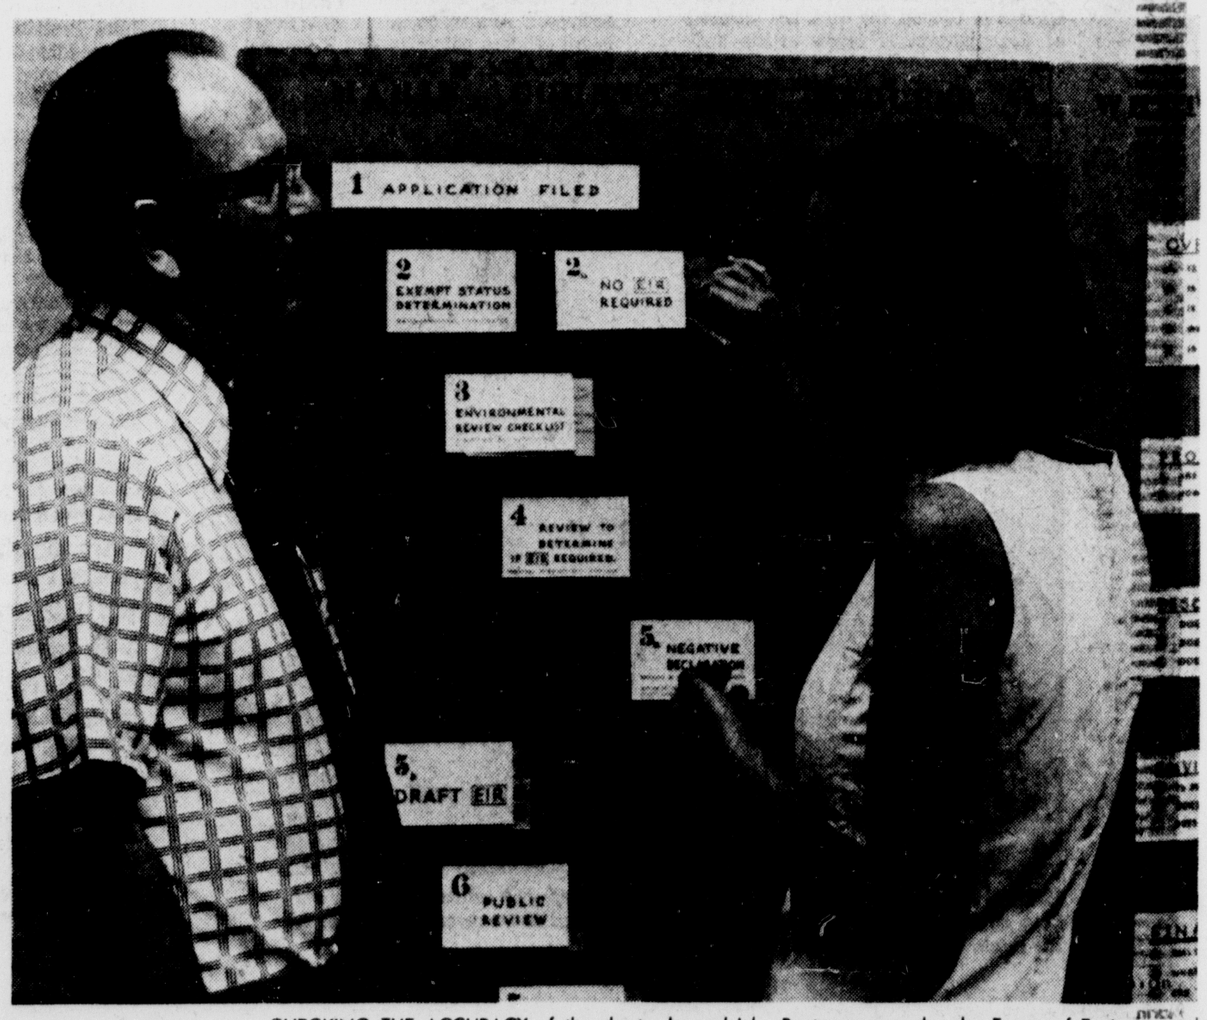
IN ANIMATED DISCUSSION, Inka Benton, left, and Kay Case clear up a point in their detailed explanation of the Environmental Impact Report processes, before making their presentation to Marin County's professional environmentalists. The program stems from legislation enacted by Congress in 1970, but still little understood by laymen. The newly formed Marin Forum on Environmental Quality has included among its objectives the filling of that void.



CHECKING THE ACCURACY of the charts she and Inka Benton prepared under Forum of Environmental Quality auspices, Kay Case goes over with Tom Severns, Marin environmental coordinator, a table of procedures for development proposals. One objective of their study, the two Marin women say, is to make known the variations among different jurisdictions in their interpretations and administering of the highly technical Environmental Protection Act provisions.

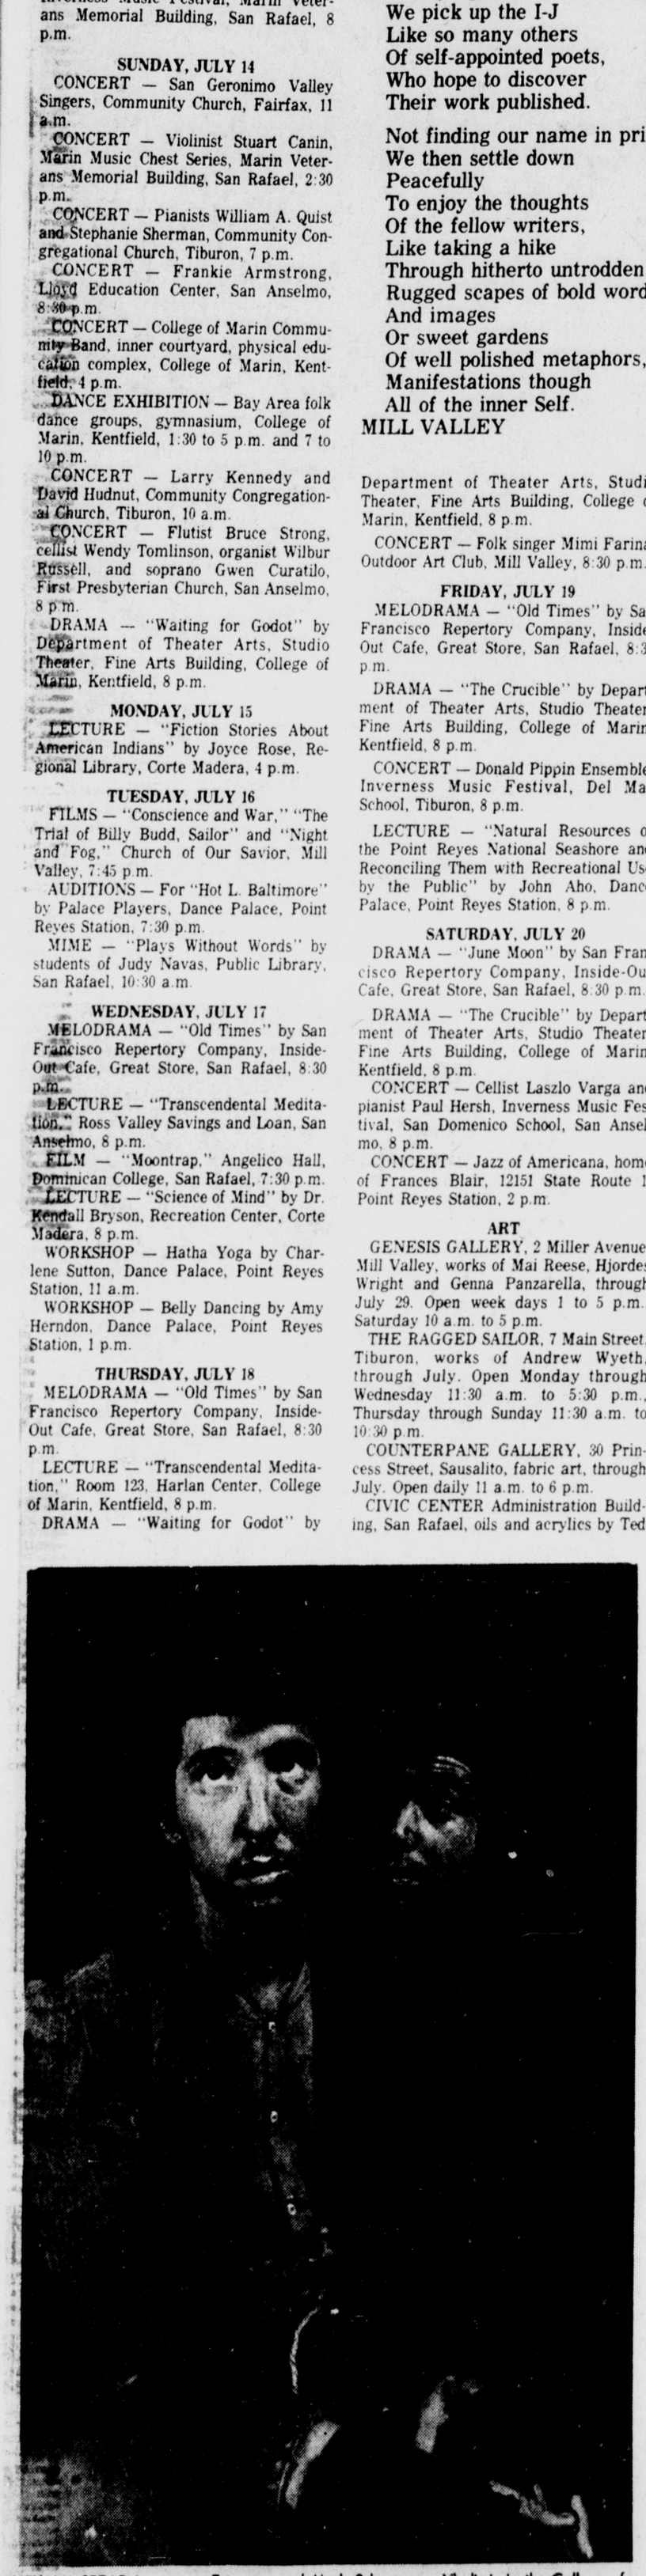
MARIN POET'S CORNER

ANTICIPATION

Each Saturday
Scurrying down the driveway
We pick up the I-J
Like so many others
Of self-appointed poets,
Who hope to discover
Their work published.

Not finding our name in print,
We then settle down
Peacefully
To enjoy the thoughts
Of the fellow writers,
Like taking a hike
Through hitherto untrodden lands,
Rugged scapes of bold words
And images
Or sweet gardens
Of well polished metaphors,
Manifestations though
All of the inner Self.

MILL VALLEY F. HENNING BAUER



WILLIAM SPEAR is seen as Estragon and Mark Schwarz as Vladimir in the College of Marin Department of Theater Arts production of Samuel Beckett's "Waiting for Godot," that opened Thursday. Additional performances are scheduled for tonight, Sunday, next Thursday, July 21, July 24 and July 25 at 8 p.m. in the Studio Theater, Fine Arts Building, Kentfield campus of the College of Marin. A college production of Arthur Miller's "The Crucible" opens on Friday.

BILL SACHE FORMED his Sound of Marin band back in 1969 at a time when he was teaching school at Our Lady of Mount Carmel School in Mill Valley. But so great was the demand for the band that the music became a full-time occupation. He left school teaching never to return, and now he earns his living by playing and by booking his own band and other musicians. (Photo by Vastine Studio) ans wasn't a problem, Sache said. In fact, he emulated them.

"They had no secrets from me, and I was not shielded from profanity. They treated me as an adult, and I grew up fast. It was a fantastic experience of wine, women and song all over the place if that is where your head is at. It met up with my expectations, but it took a lot of endurance to get along with the people. And being that young, $100 a week was fabulous money," he said.

There were icy roads, cars sliding into trees and even a murder to shock a young person.

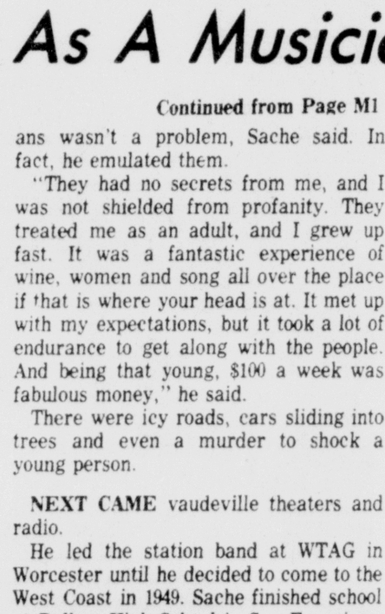
NEXT CAME vaudeville theaters and radio.

He led the station band at WTAG in Worcester until he decided to come to the West Coast in 1949. Sache finished school at Balboa High School in San Francisco, then went to Hollywood for awhile, where he worked as a studio man.

In 1950 he enrolled at Boston University to study music. After a few years there, he decided he had had too much music.

"I thought music was fouling up my life, so I stayed away from it for awhile. Then I got my head straight and realized that music wasn't what was doing it," he said. "I lucked out and got a job as the leader at the Feather River Inn."

NEXT HE WENT to Palm Springs and worked for two years in a supper club, the Chi Chi. He worked with Jerry Lewis, Lena Horne and Donald O'Connor, among others. Then there was the night Frank Sinatra showed up at the club, took over and entertained until 3 a.m.



AS A TEEN-AGER in Massachusetts, Bill Sache was already a professional dance-band musician. He began with amateur shows, then fairs and circuses, and at 15 he was invited to join the musicians' union. The following year he went on the road with a band.

"The way things were happening I knew either the President was coming or Sinatra. It turned out to be Sinatra. He made a mess out of the stage, but after he finished he cleaned it up," Sache said.

Once again disillusioned with music, Sache came to Marin in the mid 1960s. He sold pianos for awhile for Sherman Clay and Macy's, then decided to go back to school. Sache got a teaching credential from Sonoma State College and almost completed work for a master's degree.

NEXT SACHE taught fourth through eighth grade music at Our Lady of Mount Carmel School in Mill Valley. During the two years he taught, Sache left time open for the Bill Sache Sound of Marin, a band he formed in 1969. He played receptions, weddings, cocktail and dinner parties, banquets and fashion shows.

Word of the band spread until it became popular enough to be a full-time pursuit. He gave up teaching when there were enough bookings.

Sache opened an office in San Francisco in 1972 to handle his own bookings, and from it began booking other groups. He does the booking on a full-time basis, claiming to be one of the few bandleaders around with an office.

SACHE SEES THE music business heading away from acid rock and into a composite of Latin, rock and ballads.

"People are dancing together again but I don't see the big band era coming back," he said. "Where is there to send a band? There is a sort of resurgence in colleges and concerts, but I can't see circuits coming back.

"All of the high schools have stage bands. They play a combination of Stan Kenton, Count Basie, Woody Herman and Buddy Rich."

At the St. Francis, he said, he can never go wrong with rock. Beatles, Carol King and Don McLean songs are popular."

"SOMETIMES THE old tunes can put people on a 'downer.' They don't like to be reminded how old they are," Sache said.

"I look at the audience, and if 60 per cent are over 35, I play rock about every fourth tune. I start a set with show tunes, Noel Coward and a potpourri from show tunes to waltzes. Latin has a thin gauge, but it seems to be what reaches them, and brings them on the dance floor," he added.

Earning a living full-time as a musical performer is rare in the Bay Area. So is a lifetime career in the music profession — a business where few survive. But Bill Sache is very much alive and doing well in the profession to which he always returns.

Wine Pressings

by ROLAND DIGRAZIA

Unknown to many wine drinkers, the Thompson Seedless grape — that luscious table grape available in most supermarkets in the fall — is also an important wine grape. In California, it is extensively used in the production of brandy and is also used as a base for many of the new, flavored "pop" wines.

The grape was introduced into California in 1872 by an Englishman named William Thompson who grew it on his farm near Yuba City. He had obtained the grape from a hothouse in Rochester, New York under the name Lady de Coverly. Where it had come from before that time was and is a mystery, and if Thompson ever knew who Lady de Coverly was, he never told.

Word of Thompson's seedless grape spread throughout California's grape growing valleys and soon it was being extensively planted because it was easy to grow and very prolific. It was a triple-treat grape for the farmer because he could sell it for use as an eating grape, to make raisins, or to make wine.

It soon became the most widely planted grape in California and the Yuba City farmer who brought it to this state came to be known as Seedless Thompson, even though he was the father of seventeen children.

together on glass. That was two years ago."

And the electricity?

In Sonoma a friend of Archer and Russell named Lee Byrd had been experimenting with electricity for years, and had built a Tesla coil.

For the Bootleggers' Ball, a Sonoma tradition, Archer assisted Byrd in putting on an "indoor lightning" show through the use of the coil.

"SOMETIME LATER," says Archer, "it occurred to Ron and me that we might use Lee Byrd's coil to bring electricity and glass together. Up until then, we had used brushes, air brushes, you name it, to put and shape the pgiment onto the underside of glass."

"It was difficult at first," Archer says, "and it took a lot of experimentation before we got the technique down to what it is now." Meanwhile Archer supported himself doing posters for a Sausalito firm.

Six months ago the two men came to Marin County.

"We wanted to live closer to San Francisco, and we found a place in San Rafael," Archer says. The house is shared by Archer, his wife Michelle, their one child, and Russell who is single.

NOT ALL THE Russell Archer Studios paintings involve electricity. But all are produced on glass.

Sometimes, using a more direct technique of simply applying acrylic and lacquer onto the reverse side of the glass, the pair create a quite representational painting of such scenes as a Sonoma vineyard. They enjoy using unusual combinations of "paints" which they bond to the glass with lacquer.

Always, the glass creates a distinctive appearance in which, says Archer, "clarity is the keynote . . . everything is very clear."

"PEOPLE KEEP telling us: 'I have never seen anything like it!,'" Archer says.

But, he adds, in actuality, glass painting is a very old art form.

"You can see examples from time to time in the antique stores, including the work of artists who used the same reverse-side-of-the-glass technique that we do," he says.

IN FACT, GLASS painting remains very popular today in Europe where it has a far longer history than in this country.

In the United States, glass painting has virtually disappeared from the contemporary art scene.

"In all the time we have been doing it, and participating in shows and fairs, I have met only one other glass painter," Archer says. "He had been doing it for four years. And in that time he had never met another, until he came into contact with us."

IN GLASS PAINTING, the art in applying and shaping the pigment to the reverse side must work backwards in the manner of the television "weather girl" who writes her forecasts and temperature figures onto the back of a glass screen.

That is no great problem for abstracts, but does pose a bit of a challenge for representational scenes.

"But it is very much the same approach as pulling prints off paintings," Archer says, "and we were quite accustomed to that. So working backwards in applying the paints soon became second nature for us."

The two men describe art as "a food for the mind that is just as important as food for the body."

RARE AS WORKING on glass is these days, the use of electricity in achieving the effects is undoubtedly even more unusual.

Archer says the 50,000 volts of electricity are shot onto the glass "at almost no ampherage."

Isn't it dangerous?

"Well," answers the artist, "we try not to be careless. It is nothing to fool around with."

HIS PARTNER Russell, he says, once suffered a jolt of electricity from the coil when he began painting with a brush upon the glass while the machine was still on.

"That taught both of us a lesson," Archer says.

He tells, too, of the time a friend visited the studio while the electrical part of the painting process was under way, pointed a finger at the "glass canvas" to make a point during a discussion, and had a bolt of the electricity jump down his arm.

"SO AS FAR as I'm concerned, it's very dangerous, and I treat it with respect," Archer says of the Tesla coil, which is rented from friend Byrd.

Nevertheless, Archer and Russell, probably again with Byrd's help, have aspirations for a much more ambitious undertaking in their painting with electricity.

"What we would like to develop," says Archer, "is a machine that would give off up to a million volts. With that we could work on giant pieces of plexiglass of up to 10 by eight feet. These could then be assembled and go together as a kind of sectional wall.

"I CAN PICTURE us doing those murals clad in wet suits and working with a coil or wand as our paint brush that would be sending out a million volts."

The project, he says, is currently only at the talking stage, "but actually the machine, while it would take time, would be relatively simple."

"The thing that I am concerned about is that a million volts might be more than we had bargained for," Archer says. "We would have to have a reliable industrial reostat so that we could turn it up very, very slowly."

Which of the partners would take the first turn in operating the million-volt device? Would they draw lots?

"I'd let Ron or Lee go first," says a generous Dave Archer. "And I'd stand way — way back!"

and Ron Russell, partners in Russell Archer Studios, are interested, not in their own reflections in the overhead sheet of glass, but rather in what the electrical voltage coming from the Tesla coil is doing to the pigment they had applied earlier with eye-dropper and brush to the reverse side of the glass. It is a process for creating abstract art that the two men developed for themselves. Seen through the glass, the colors take on a special luminosity and clarity.

NOT ALL THEIR ART is abstract, and not all of it involves the use of electricity. But Dave Archer, left, and Ron Russell do work consistently upon glass. Sometimes they paint directly onto the reverse side of the sheets of glass to create traditional, representational scenes. They enjoy using unusual combinations of paints, and employ lacquer to bond the paints to the glass. Seen through the glass, the paintings have a distinctive quality of clarity.

OUT IN THE SUNLIGHT, Russell Archer Studios partners Ron Russell, left, and Dave Archer discuss one of the abstract paintings on glass that they are creating with their secret formula for pigment and the use of the Tesla electrical coil. The representational scenes in the foreground were also done on glass, but by applying the color and then working it directly with brush or other more orthodox painting tool. The work of the two young glass painters has attracted widespread interest at West Coast art shows and fairs.

ONE MAN'S STRONG FEELINGS FOR HIS LAND

There is no question but that certain people have a special affinity for the land.

This feeling is not always found in the expected sources - among the callus-handed, sun-browned sons of the sod who have been born to the soil. Some such tillers have been among the worst abusers and exploiters of the land, draining it of its nutrients without replenishing that goodness.

Nor does the dilettante conservationist and ecologist always qualify for membership. Sometimes there is lacking in them a genuine affection for the earth and the things it produces, despite dramatic expressions of concern.

Perhaps the quality of this "special affinity just might bubble up in such an unlikely person as John Graves, author and college professor. Graves was not born in the country nor reared there. He is generally regarded as a conservationist - his book, "Goodbye to a River is still regarded a decade and a half after its first appearance as a classic of its kind. But there is a practical streak to Graves approach to environmental preservation. He expects something less than perfection from his fellow man, and even countenances some compromise in himself.

But imbedded within him is a feeling for the land.

"Inside me there had always been the incipient disease of the land, he writes. "I had never managed to purge myself of the simple yeoman notion that grass and crops and livestock and wild things and water mattered somehow supremely that you were not whole unless you had a stake in them, a daily knowledge of them.

It was this "disease of the land that compelled him to acquire a small parcel in the hill country of Somervell County, Texas - country that the region s residents refer to as "the Tonk. Gradually his holdings grew to 400 acres, a modest piece by Texas standards. And finally what began as the Graves part-time, summer dwelling became their year-around home.

His experiences with that ground that he named Hard Scrabble, in recognition of the sad fact that former owners had not always felt that "special affinity for their land and had injured it severely through over-planting, over-grazing and neglect, are described in the book that he has entitled "Hard Scrabble: Observations on a Patch of Land.

Along with his experiences and his observations, Graves tries to pass along something of the spirit that moved a softhanded city-dweller to change his life style and to take on backbreaking toil and undertakings.

Because Graves is an excellent writer dealing with a subject that taps his springs of personal belief, he succeeds admirably.

The reader will savor Graves stories of the Tonk, its people past and present, its critters (some of these also now gone), its challenges, its traditions, its distinctive flavor.

There are bootleggers and fox hunters, snakes and wolves, cedars and liveoaks, goats and cattle, downpours and drouths, Johnson grass and cotton, sweat and blissful relaxation, and much, much more, all to be found in the pages of this book.

And always John Graves is trying to get across this message: That the roots man has through generations driven deep into the soil are as important today as ever - perhaps more important - to his stability. These are his anchor.

The sincerity and skill of Graves leave their imprint upon even the tenderfoot reader - and upon even one who has never personally known the rolling hills of the Tonk country. One acquires quite a bit more than a glimmering of this appreciation for the land, not as scenery to be admired from afar, but as dirt and rock upon which one can trod and with which one can work in harmony.

"Hard Scrabble is a welcome change of pace, not only to the wasteful materialism that eats away at our resources, but also to the kind of elite conservationism that concentrates upon grandeur and the spectacular, and ignores the less uncommon "patches of land that are also a part of the real American and this good earth.

THE BEAUTY OF THE BAYOUS

AN ADULT EGRET repairs the flimsy, crudely-made platform of twigs that serves as its nest in this photograph from "The Bayous," the 13th volume in Time-Life Books' "The American Wilderness" series. With text by Peter S. Feibleman and photos by some of the world's greatest nature photographers plus paintings, maps and drawings, the $7.95 book explores Louisiana's bayou country "where earth and water wage an endless struggle" with "a deceptive calm of an Eden where time seems to stop." Feibleman further describes the bayou region as "a place of extremes where death mingles with life." The illustrations include a series of aerial photographs by Russell Munson.

NOTES OF A BROWSING BOOKMAN

The Chapbook Series edited jointly by Robert Durand of Yes! Press and Noel Young of Capra Press, and printed by Capra in Santa Barbara, has resulted in a steady output of interesting booklets, ranging from reissues of nearly extinct classics to originals dealing with wide diversity of subjects generally well removed from the mainstream.

In this second category falls the delightful "The Loch Ness Monster Watchers" by journalist Victor Perera.

It's an account of an "expedition" by Perera and a companion to the Scottish lake to investigate the "legend" of the monster or monsters. Time prevented the pair from doing much observing on their own. But they had ample time to mingle with others, both permanent and temporary residents of the lake shores, and to listen to their stories of sightings. The record of these conversations and claims makes for a delightful hour or so of reading — and speculating.

It's the 18th title in this tasteful series that continues with imagination and considerable flair.

ITALIC HANDWRITING isn't exactly an overwhelming interest of Americans generally, but for those who are involved with the subject it's a field in which they must pretty well fend for themselves. Practical workbooks have been few.

Robert Boardwell's "Beginning Calligraphy: A Guide to Italic Handwriting," published by Touchstone Press of Beaverton, Ore., $4.95, now seems to fill that void. It provides model letter forms (full size), instructions for writing and practice pages to help the writer develop his skills. Boardwell stresses spacing and page layout of final work, as well as basic shapes. And there are sections on handwriting with the small pen nib.

The author is head of the art department of Clackamas High School in Oregon, and teaches calligraphy at the Portland Art Museum School.

'Supertalk' Falls Far Short Of Super, And Isn't Even Good Conversation

SUPERTALK by Digby Diehl; Doubleday, 293 pages, $8.95. Reviewed by Lee Hopkins.

We have here what are subtitled "Extraordinary Conversations," taped interviews recorded because the author says he is searching for "the Answers," and that "somewhere sprinkled out amongst the best minds of this century, are clues."

Best minds?

Of the 23 individuals taped in "Supertalk," only Henry Miller and the psychiatrist R. D. Laing can claim this distinction in our era. Reading his list of the remaining 21 worthies, what sort of commanding intellects can be attributed to Rudi Gernreich, Harold Robbins and Hugh Hefner? What "Answers" — and with a capital letter — may be expected from Melvin Belli, Joan Baez, Dory Previn, "Dr. Seuss," or Philip K. Wrigley, the chewing gum magnate?

And Digby Diehl, the author of "Supertalk," who takes this all very seriously, is the book editor of the Los Angeles Times. A man in that capacity should either know better, or at least have the wit to appear to do so.

"Supertalk" is an abdication of the writer's craft to the trendy superficiality of what is called the new journalism. But this transcription of tape recordings — stenography as portraiture — is not even good reportage.

Contrast "Supertalk" with Studs Terkel's superb techniques of oral interpretation with fugal skill in "Hard Times" and his other books, and Diehl's chic patter passes back and forth like a big beach ball. We are in the realm of the worshipful locker room interrogations of sportscasters.

No one's assumptions are really questioned, because if that is what the man or woman claims to be, Digby Diehl is not about to argue. That would be rude. And analytical writing, such as the definitive personality profiles which appear regularly in The New Yorker take time and talent.

This fatal lack of ability, perspective and judgment puts "Supertalk" and its "Extraordinary Conversations" in the curious position of being neither extraordinary nor even conversational. The book falls not in the tradition of Boswell chatting with Dr. Johnson, or Eckermann nightly writing down his talks with Goethe, but closer in time and artistry to an open end version of those television commercials in which a sincere pop singer confides that milk is good for you. So is mush.

The Short Story Still Very Much Alive And Well

PRIZE STORIES, 1974: THE O. HENRY AWARDS, edited by William Abrahams, Doubleday, 260 pages, $6.95. Reviewed by Alice Dalbey.

This volume, 54th in the O. Henry Memorial Award Series, contains a group of the most entertaining, best-written stories recently published in America.

The first prize winner, "Brownstone," by Renata Adler, is an impressionistic, almost kaleidoscopic, view of life in New York City in the 1970s, complete with cocktail party chatter. ' "He would probably have married her," a voice across the room said, "with the exception that he died." '

Second prize winner, "Lizzie Borden in the P.M.," by Robert Henson, is a fascinating reconstruction of Lizzie's crime — before and after the incident — as seen through the eyes of her sister.

Winner of the Third Prize, "Alternatives," by Alice Adams, is the haunting story of a woman and her marriage, as she endures several decades and confronts the choices demanded by life.

In recent years, fiction has declined in popularity. But these stories, and the 14 others in this collection, will convince any doubter that the short story is nevertheless alive and well — overlooked somewhere out there in the cold.

Though the three prize stories appeared in The New Yorker, Quarterly Review of Literature, and The Atlantic Monthly, most stories in this book were published in literary "little" magazines — periodicals read by, and catering to, a limited readership of writers and academics.

This is unfortunate, as these stories would provide pleasure and stimulation to a wide audience.

"The Fish Trap" by Peter Leach is an exciting fish story that would appeal to sportsmen of diverse ages and backgrounds. "Out in the Garage," by Richard Hill, an account of a wayward son and his acceptance of his father's death, contains consolation for all estranged fathers and sons. Yet these stories appeared in The Virginia Quarterly and American Review, literary magazines not easily accessible to the average reader.

Readers who enjoy short stories, and who miss them in today's mass-circulation magazines, have several choices: write to editors and ask them to include short fiction; visit the nearest library and get acquainted with "little" magazines; or, for a quick solution, read this volume of 1974 O. Henry prize-winning stories.

A Store Of Anecdotes From Baseball's Past

A CENTURY OF BASEBALL LORE by John Thorn; Hart, 239 pages, $7.95. Reviewed by Don Keown.

The success or failure of a collection of sports anecdotes and legends depends upon two things: The ability of the compiler to select interesting material, and the ability of the author to then present that material effectively.

Give John Thorn, both compiler and author, high marks for both undertakings in his "A Century of Baseball Lore."

The book is packed with entertaining oddities, feats and incidents, beginning with the halcyon days of the Cincinnati Red Stockings and the Troy Haymakers and continuing into the era of Charley Finley's still rolling Oakland Athletic powerhouse. Some of the stories are hilarious, some heroic, some poignant, some amusing.

You read of Josh DeVore who stole four bases in one inning in a game played June 20, 1912. You learn how Babe Herman doubled into a double play. How Casey Stengel gave the crowd the bird — literally. Of Vernon (Foofy) Gomez' fascination for airplanes. Of Fred Clarke's unintentional theft of home plate. Of the incredible antics of Herman (Germany) Schaefer, "the zaniest of them all." And many, many more, some involving the greats of the game, others featuring men whose names, until Thorn came along, were understandably forgotten.

For the sports fan who delights in amusing and impressing his fellow buffs with stories from the national pastime's rich past, "A Century of Baseball Lore" provides at least a decade of splendid story-telling material.

Out Of Yesteryear Come Voices Of Helen Forrest And Young Sinatra

By WILLIAM D. LAFFLER

During the Big Band era, orchestra leaders worked hard at developing vocalists because they had to move up front and take over the proceedings on almost every tune.

Some of the great stars of their time made their bid as soloists with orchestras. Among them were Bing Crosby, Frank Sinatra, Dick Haymes and Harriet Hilliard.

Helen Forrest was an outstanding singer during those days. She began her upward spiral with Artie Shaw and then sidled over to Benny Goodman and Harry James.

Some of her finest songs were done with Goodman and those who do not have the old 78 rpms can enjoy the tunes again on a two LP album, "Benny Goodman and Helen Forrest" (Columbia KG 32822).

Goodman is best remembered as a jazz and swing clarinetist in small groups but he also excelled as leader of a big band. And this was a big band with such musicians as Ziggy Elman, Charlie Christian, Cootie Williams, Billy Butterfield and Teddy Wilson.

But Helen Forrest was not to be upstaged as she sang "Amapola," or "Yours" or "Lazy River."

These songs are included in this selection, along with "Taking a Chance on Love" and "I'm Nobody's Baby."

TOMMY DORSEY HAD Sinatra as his vocalist for quite a while and some of their sides have been electronically processed for modern stereo equipment on "What'll I Do" (RCA APL 1-0497).

The young Sinatra's mastery of phrasing was forecast in these sessions, particularly on "Blue Skies" and "The One I Love."

"Imagination" and "What'll I Do?" also seemed tailored to Sinatra's stylings, as well as "In the Blue of the Evening" and "We Three."

Both albums will stir up nostalgic visions among those who grew up with this music.

AND FOR THOSE who remember even farther back, "The 20's Score Again" by Bob Thiele and His New Happy Times Orchestra (Signature BSL 1-055) is a delightful surprise.

Inspired by the renewal of interest in F. Scott Fitzgerald and "The Great Gatsby," Thiele's music is justifiably jazzy.

And it wouldn't be complete without "Muskrat Ramble" and "The Sheik of Araby," two of the warhorses of jazz.

Thiele has a good change of pace, sprinkling the session with tunes such as "Wolverine Blues" and "Farewell Blues" with the more lively "Indiana" and "Someday Sweetheart."

Its Audience Has Found The Brownsville Station

By BRUCE MEYER

It took the three members of Brownsville Station several years of hard work to stay in one place musically so the world could catch up to them.

They were always one of the best, most straightforward rock bands to ever come out of Detroit — but until their single of a few months back, "Smokin' In the Boys Room," their track record on the charts had been less than impressive.

"Smokin' " finally isolated Brownsville's prime audience — high school-age boys — and started what could be the band's steady rise into the big time.

One of the best things about Brownsville Station is their sense of humor. At least two-thirds of their works slop over from humor into farce, on a basic teenage level. Best of all, they have excellent memories for the way things really are for most high school kids.

Brownsville's new album, "School Punks" (Big Tree BT-89500), is — like their manic stage performances — a nonstop riot from start to finish. Most of the songs revolve around various forms of American male teen-age lust, but this is rock, and the lyrics really aren't that important anyway.

"PUNKS" IS A uniformly tight album, combining new tunes (one, "Kings of the party," an obvious follow-up to "Smokin' ") with some well-selected oldies ("Hey Little Girl," and "I'm A King Bee"); it's unquestionably their best album so far.

On the other hand, the band has yet to capture on vinyl anything like the natural spontaneous power of their driving stage act, sparked by bespectacled Cub Koda on guitar and lead vocals. If they ever pull it off, Brownsville Station could turn into one of the really big rock bands of the 1970's.

Meanwhile, unwilling to remain mere musicians, the trio has moved into movies. They've finished work on a screenplay called "Brownsville Station Join the Army." In the flick, members of a rock band are drafted and sent to the front lines -- at the White House.

With a plot like that, it could turn into one of the great Z-movies ever made.

Getting To Know The Real Values Of Italian Americans

BLOOD OF MY BLOOD by Richard Gambino; Doubleday, 350 pages, $7.95. Reviewed by Patricia A. Latimer.

"Blood of My Blood" by Richard Gambino is a study of one of the most misunderstood and maligned ethnic groups in this country — the Italian American.

For too long these 20 million United States citizens have been unfairly misrepresented due to media depiction as hard hat, pop singer, mafiosi and plain buffoon, not to mention general public ignorance of their inherited traditions and customs. Gambino attempts to change all this.

In clear, well written prose, Gambino erases any distortions by giving his personal interpretations of his own origins. Gambino not only captures a story, but he captures the warmly turbulent, thriving soul of all Italian-Americans. He presents a life, not an apology nor caricature nor idealization.

How does he do it?

Gambino tells a fascinating tale of a people — strong, enduring, closely attached, proud and persistent. Due to their circumstances, they are needlessly made victim of life styles and situations which result in crude and often shallow stature.

Gambino examines the Italian value system from the south of Italy, an area familiarly known as the Mezzogiorno. The people from this area come from a very ancient and rugged civilization held intact by the only true and enduring social reality, the family. In looking at its complexities, he investigates the system of rules, levels of stratification, loyalties and traditional roles with father as head and mother as core. In reading his book further, he communicates a truly wonderful realization: the ability of the family to survive due to the practice of family honor, suspicion of outsiders, the work ethnic, food as the host of life and pragmatic views on sex and religion. It was these very closed, long-time values that clashed with and withstood the vastly different, more open American value system.

Through anecdotes of his Broolyn childhood, current events and recent literature, Gambino points out the often tragic alienation of second and third generation Italians in dealing with the church, higher education, the law, politics and divorce.

Here is a highly readable book full of knowledge and information. It is well worth its cost and the time it takes to read it.

SLEUTHS & SUSPENSE

SURROUNDED by Brian Coffey; Bobbs-Merrill, 167 pages, $5.95. Reviewed by Don Keown.

The "caper book" stands or falls upon the cleverness of the writer to develop a tricky plot that will both confound and amuse the reader, and then to put his idea into readable narration.

Brian Coffey (a pen name) passes both tests with colors flying in "Surrounded," just as he did earlier with his first such novel, "Blood Risk."

Mike Tucker, heir to a fortune but estranged from his wealthy father, is leading a double life as art dealer and professional thief. In the latter capacity he heads a three-man after-hours raid upon a swanky Southern California shopping center. Inside the shopping center, things go wrong. And the three thieves find themselves surrounded and trapped by police.

But Tucker is equal to the challenge. He devises a plan to escape. And, sure enough, when the police force their way in, the thieves are nowhere to be found.

The reader will be hard pressed to fathom the Tucker scheme, and will be delighted with its ingenuity when finally it is revealed.

In addition to the clever plotting, Coffey gives us a nice, lean writing style that moves freely and rapidly, plus some interesting, entertaining characters.

The Mighty Himalayas Can Now Be Traipsed By Tenderfoot Tourist

By MURRAY J. BROWN

NEW YORK (UPI) — The awesome Himalayas are no longer the private preserves of the Sir Edmund Hillarys, Sherpa Tenzing Norkays and other famed mountain climbers and explorers.

Now there are easy expeditions to the lush valleys and spectacular mountain passes and peaks in the shadow of 29,028-foot Mt. Everest in Nepal on the northern border of India.

And you don't have to be an expert mountaineer, either, according to Cmdr. M. S. Kohli, who has 14 major expeditions to his credit, including three successful assaults on Mt. Everest.

But isn't it dangerous?

"NO MORE THAN dodging traffic on Fifth Avenue during the rush hour," Kohli said.

Kohli, a Sikh who wears a red turban and neatly trimmed beard and mustache, now is manager of tourism for Air India and based in Bombay. We met recently at a lunch in New York for visiting Minister of Civil Aviation and Tourism Raj Bahadur of India.

"The way to go is to take a Himalayan trek, a leisurely walk along centuries-old trails, through 12,000-foot high pastures of flowers, with temple bells and ceremonial chants resounding from the monasteries and the mountains," Kohli said. "You can get within 20 miles of Everest without hardly taking a deep breath."

Kohli said he had led or taken part in numerous treks.

"YOU DON'T EVEN have to carry anything — on a typical trek, porters carry all your gear. There are even ponies for the lazy and Sherpa guides will make sure you stay on the trail. And a typical day's trek is 10-12 miles, an easy accomplishment for anyone in reasonably good health, even at those altitudes."

According to Kohli, you will be in a group of about 15 persons on a typical tour guide arranged trek, each with his own porter. Comfortable camps, sites selected for their scenic beauty, are set up in advance and dinner is on the campfire when you arrive.

Nights are usually spent in sleeping bags and tents which you can rent at jumping off points such as Katmandu, or you can bring your own gear.

COMFORTABLE WALKING shoes or boots are the only equipment you are better off buying and breaking in before leaving home, Kohli said. A good heavy sweater, windbreaker and wool cap are other good investments.

Kohli said the relatively low cost of these unusual vacations in these days of rising costs is expected to double the number of Himalayan trekkers this year to about 10,000.

According to Kohli, there is a 16-day trek with five additional days split between New Delhi and Katmandu which runs about $700 per person all inclusive — hotels, meals, porters, etc. The air fare is extra, of course, and it runs now about $750 roundtrip from New York to Katmandu, via New Delhi, if you travel with a group, with the best season being September-December.

HIGHER PRICED, higher altitude, longer duration and more strenuous treks are available for the more adventurous trekker and experienced mountaineer. There is, for instance, a six-week trek of about 350 miles from Katmandu to the 18,000-foot-high base camp on Mt. Everest used by numerous expeditions for the final assault on the summit.

The all-inclusive land costs are $1,185 per person, plus $591 roundtrip air fare from New York.

Kohli said that age in itself is no problem — his oldest trekker was a 70-year-old woman, his youngest a 17-year-old boy — but recommends a complete physical checkup before setting out. If you have a heart or lung problem, he said, don't go.

For more information on Trekking in the Himalayas write to Cmdr. M. S. Kohli, in care of Air India, 345 Park Avenue, New York, N.Y., 10022.

SEEING SWITZERLAND BY MULEBACK

YEP, PARTNER, you can go on a mule safari in Switzerland. No "huntin' just seein' " a lot of rural Switzerland. A genuine get-to-know-the-Swiss adventure, for hard-seats or for people who just got a hankerin' for lonesome trails. Arranged by Welcome Swiss Tours of Lausanne, the muleback trips cover seven days and six nights, costing $195 (supplement for single room $10). This includes accommodations in tourist class hotels, all meals, one mule for two people, equipment, guide and several extras. After arriving in Switzerland the first day, the guide takes his guests by bus to the inn in the village of Mayens de Riddes in the Valais. The second day, after meeting the mules and getting some riding instructions from the guide, the trip begins. For the next five days sturdy foot mules climb up hills and down to the valleys of the scenic Swiss Alps, through quaint villages and past wooden chalets most travelers hardly ever see. On the seventh day, the week of togetherness has made most of the departing guests mule-lovers who return home reluctantly. Generally they come back, for it's a fun experience.

In One Corner Of Expo People Rediscover America

By BRIAN MOTTAZ

SPOKANE, Wash. (UPI) — Way off in a corner of the Expo '74 site, gold panners pan, shipbuilders build, Indian dancers dance and a multitude of artisans carve, sew, forge and cook.

It's all part of an ambitious effort known as the Folklife Festival — the only real "people" exhibit at this city's world exposition on the environment.

The exhibit is patterned after the Smithsonian Institution's two-week Folklife Festival staged every summer in Washington, D.C.

TWO KEY ELEMENTS of the Expo festival are traditional American heritage and ethnic groups of the Northwest.

Between them, they provide fairgoers with everything from logging demonstrations and golf panning to Scandinavian fiddling and Japanese kitemaking.

The four-acre site includes a small amphitheater for live entertainment, open-air booths for craftsmen to show their wares, traditional Indian long-houses, a boatbuilding house where a 28-foot sloop is under construction and a sluice where anyone can try his hand at panning for gold nuggets.

THE MAN BEHIND the Expo Folklife Festival is Bob Glatzer, a native New Yorker who came west in 1972 at the direction of the Smithsonian.

Glatzer and a handful of others were commissioned to look into the possibilities of staging a Folklife Festival at Expo for the entire six-month run of the fair.

"We found that the Northwest was really an untapped golf mine as far as ethnic backgrounds and their diversity of languages and cultures was concerned," he said.

WITH THAT DISCOVERY, it was full speed ahead, he said, except for a two-month period last fall between the time the Smithsonian pulled out because it considered the project too much to handle and Expo moved in to manage the festival.

The Folklife Festival offers a permanent program including daily logging demonstrations, where reluctant visitors are invited to participate in such activities as scaling a 100-foot pole in true woodsman tradition or bucksaw their way through a three-foot diameter log.

The same area features the boatbuilding house and gold panning sluice along with the largest steam locomotive ever used in passenger service — Union Pacific engine No. 8444.

A VETERAN RAILROADER, parked in the engineer's seat, has a ready yarn to pass on to any youngster who braves the stairway up to the cabin nearly 15 feet off the ground.

The other major areas of the Folklife Festival feature a series of separate week-long programs revolving around a different ethnic group still very much alive in the Northwest.

One recent program featured Northwest natives of Scandinavian descent along with traditional dancers and musicians flown to Spokane from Norway, Sweden and Finland.

THE HIGHLIGHT OF the program was the celebration of the Scandinavian Midsommarfest, which marks the summer solstice or longest day of the year.

Businessmen, housewives and children all gathered with festival personnel to decorate the "Jajstang" or "Jidsommar pole," and then lent a ready arm or hand to raise the pole in a rousing ceremony.

The rest of the day was taken up with dancing and singing as visitors and Scandinavian dancers joined hands to the strains of Norwegian fiddles.

THE NEARBY OPEN air booths featured Danish cookery, violin making, Norwegian wool spinning, Swedish candle making, Bobbin lace making and Swedish "rya" rugmaking.

The program has been repeated time and time again with different variations as Ukrainians, Afro-Americans, Scots and Latvians, Estonians and Lithuanians put on their own week-long program.

The list of ethnic groups still to appear in the Expo Folklife Festival includes Basques, Italians, Chinese, Swiss, Germans, Austrians, Japanese, Yugoslavians, Rumanians, Bulgarians and Russians.

THE PROGRAM ALSO includes a series of American heritage weeks where Northwest residents show off their skills at furniture making, boot making, storytelling, carving and assorted homestyle cookery.

Glatzer said the total budget for the festival, now half over, tops the $900,000 mark, with a good-sized chunk of that earmarked for the six fulltime field workers responsible for finding people with a bit of folklife to share.

He said field workers have contacted as many as 8,000 people and talked by telephone to another 15,000 in order to find the nearly 1,500 traditional musicians and craftsmen needed for the 26 separate week-long programs.

GLATZER SAID BESIDES the much longer duration, he feels the Expo Folklife Festival has one other big advantage over the much shorter Smithsonian festival.

"⅛HE "The was not a participatory festival," he said.

"If I ever had the opportunity to put something like this on, I wanted people to participate, to learn how to make Estonian sourdough bread, sew a sail or make a horseshow."

"I wanted people to come away changed from what they saw, changed for the better," he said.

IN ONE PART of the Expo festival, city dwellers can be seen joining hands with Scandinavians to traditional Norwegian folk dances. In yet another part a youngster helps plane a few boards that will go into a sailing boat being built by Puget Sound boatbuilders.

As Glatzer says, "Festivals like this allow people to rediscover America."

British Columbia's Totem Pole Country

By BILL PETERS

Many years ago the People of the River of Clouds lived in Temlaham, virtuously obeying all the laws of nature. This paradise on earth provided all their needs and wants.

But the people grew careless and slaughtered the animals, although they did not need the food. One day, some of the young people began to torture a goat, but he was rescued by a virtuous young man, and his wounds healed. Much later, the people were summoned to a great feast house on a high mountain — Stykyawdenthl — and their host, a one-horned goat, said to the virtuous young man "Leave this house when I do."

As soon as this happened, the house and all the people, save the virtuous young man, were destroyed.

THUS RUNS A legend of the Ghetksan — the people of the Skeena. Their paradise on earth can easily be visited by the modern traveler. It is near the town of Hazelton, B.C., one of the most fascinating communities along the Yellowhead Highway, western Canada's new 2,200-mile road to adventure.

And Temlaham is only one of 19 points of interest on the Hand of History tour centered around Hazelton and its rebuilt Ghetksan village. Some of the finest examples of totem carving to be found anywhere are included in the tour.

The oldest totem still standing in its original location, dating from about 1850, is located at Kitwancool, one of the villages in the tour.

THE TOUR CAN be started at any point along the route but one of the best ways to begin is at Hazelton itself with an inspection of the Ksan village. Here carvers are always to be found at work creating new totems, for it is the most active center of this form of art on the west coast. About 12 Indians are employed full time carving, with more doing occasional work. Others are busy at such trades as knitting, bead, and leather work.

The training center and workshop, and the carving shed are an education in themselves, and the workers readily explain their various tasks.

Carvers like Walter Harris tell you about the various tools being used and the intricacies of working with cedar. But only the man in charge of the totem pole will relate the story of that pole — for it is his story, and no one else has the right to tell it.

THE CRAFT HOUSE contains products for sale, and the most difficult decision facing the visitor is what to take home. All are works of art, from the less expensive bead and leatherwork, to the exquisitely carved miniature totems.

Three more houses graphically display the life styles of the Ghetksan — the Fireweed House of Treasures, the Wolf Crest House of the Grandfathers, and the Frog Crest House of the Distant Past.

The village is the center of an active project aimed at re-establishing and preserving the northwest coastal Indian culture. Polly and Bill Sargent of Hazelton are two of the moving forces behind the project. Bill's father, the late Dick Sargent, knew the Ksan people and their language and customs as few white men have, and he passed this interest on to his son and daughter-in-law.

LIKE SO MANY Indian tribes in North America, the Ksan people, through the influence of zealous missionaries, traders and settlers, had lost much of their culture and traditions. However, enough remained to build upon.

SOME OF THE very finest examples of totem pole carving that can be found anywhere can be admired on the Hand of History Tour through the Indian villages of northwestern British Columbia, Canada.

Over a period of years, painfully learning the difficult language, the Sargents and a few other dedicated workers, have convinced many of the Ghetksan that their culture is worthwhile, and that it should be preserved. Now many of the people are anxious to help, and more and more of the legends, songs and traditions are being rediscovered.

Their art, particularly the totem carving coming from the Ksan village, is widely recognized as the best example of northwest coast carving in existence.

THE HAND OF History leads across Hagwilget Canyon, where archaeologists have found evidence of at least 4,000 years of human occupancy. Rocher Deboule Mountain, Stykyawdenthl of Ksan legend, towers to the south of Hagwilget Canyon. Here the Ghetksan had constructed a bridge over the Bulkley River made of poles lashed with cedar rope, a marvel of primitive engineering. Later reinforced with wire by crews of the overland telegraph, it served for half a century. It has now been replaced with a more modern structure.

Several Indian villages are on the tour, all displaying fine examples of totem carving. Perhaps the most interesting is Kitwancool, a village few white men had visited as recently as three or four years ago. It is now accessible over a logging road, and caution must be exercised in traveling this route.

Kitwancool has a fine collection of totems, in addition to the oldest pole still standing in its original location. It is thought that these totems were saved because missionaries never reached this village and the people preserved their totems when many others were destroyed.

Kitwanga also has a fine collection of totems.

As in most villages around Hazelton, these poles have been re-erected recently and put in solid foundations to arrest the process of decay and deterioration. Much work remains to be done however, and at Kitwanga the attentive observer will notice the rotting remains of an old pole lying near the erected ones. According to Polly Sargent, it may be the oldest "piece of wood" on the Northwest coast.

OTHER FINE POLES can be found at Kitseguecla Indian village, and at Kispiox ("the people who hid"). A great red blotch on the mountain behind the village is said to have been colored by the blood of a monster that was killed on that spot.

Battle Hill, variously called The Fortress or Man Made Hill, is located at the junction of the Kitwanga and Kitwancool roads. It has been established that this is the site of ancient Indian fortifications, including at least four buildings. Many fascinating legends center around the battles said to have taken place here.

As well as the Indian heritage, the area around Hazelton abounds in other points of historical interest.

Minskinish, The Holy City, is also included on the Hand of History tour. Here Robert Tomlinson, a missionary, founded a strict, deeply religious sect. Tomlinson's people built a prosperous community with church, sawmill, farm, vegetable gardens and a jail. The jail was an absolute must in Tomlinson's disciplined society.

NORTH OF HAZELTON, the visitor drives through "outlaw territory," an area where British Columbia's most famous manhunt took place, over a period of two decades. Gunanoot was the man they sought, but he eluded the law for many years, and during his time became a living legend.

New Hazelton — one of the three Hazelton villages which also include Hazelton and South Hazelton — was the site of the last big "shoot-out" in British Columbia history. During the days of railroad construction, banks carried large amounts of cash to meet payrolls, and one fateful day six bandits held up the bank at Hazelton. Five were killed or wounded in the ensuing gun battle. The sixth got away — he had the money.

HAZELTON ITSELF is an interesting town.

Situated on the banks of the Skeena just above its confluence with the Bulkley, Hazelton has a past closely linked with the riverboating days on the Skeena. It is probably the only town in North America with a municipal office located in a riverboat (even though the boat is built on dry land). The boat also contains a library, and next to it stands the Gitemkuldo totem pole, carved in 1870.

There is a fine campground at Hazelton, near the Ksan village. It has electrical and sewage facilities for trailers as well as sites for tents.

Fishing in the Bulkley and Skeena, and in surrounding lakes, is excellent. Steelhead, spring salmon, cutthroat abound and are highly prized by anglers.

Clearly, Belgium Is For Walking

TRAVEL PAGE

By CHARLES E. DOLE

ANTWERP, Belgium — The year cut in stone read 1591. Stepping beneath it, I found myself in an ancient, winding alley where the antiquity and quaintness of the place seeped up through the cobblestones while nice shops and a good restaurant lined the walls.

It was Antwerp, port city of Belgium, a half hour by rail from Brussels and one of the busiest freighter stops in the world.

Clearly, Belgium is for walking. No one should zip through its cities and towns by car but rather take the time to sample its beauty and art and all the things that make a visit worthwhile.

ANTWERP, FOR example, will complete four walking tours this summer, each about an hour in length with maps in seven languages.

Brussels is sometimes called the capital of Europe, not just of Belgium, because it is headquarters for so many European organizations, such as the nine-member Common Market and NATO. But it is so much more.

If you have only half a day to explore, you can see the Grand Place (or Central Square, with its magnificent Gothic-inspired Town Hall and golden-hued guild houses, which line its four sides), numerous churches, the Royal Palace, uncounted parks and historic markers, and the Atomium, a leftover from the 1958 World's Fair, 340 feet high, which represents a molecule of hydrogen in its liquid state multiplied some 200 million times.

WITH A WHOLE day you can include the museums, stock exchange, and more.

Magnificent Tournai, only a few miles from the French border, calls itself "the city of art." For nearly 2,000 years it has watched the calm waters of the Scheldt River pass its doorsteps; yet it has been deeply bruised by war.

All of Belgium, in fact, has been a battleground for foreign armies through the centuries, and it is probably surprising that so much of it is preserved. Waterloo is not far from Brussels.

AS THE CRADLE of the French monarchy, Tournai has been Roman, French, and British. From the 12th century onward, Tournai sent its sculptors to many parts of Europe. Tapestry weavers thrived.

And so with Bruges, close by the seaside resorts of Ostend, Knokke, and Zeebrugge (which really means Bruges by the Sea). Sometimes called the Venice of the North, its numerous canals wind their way through the city, the waterways lined with buildings that are deep-rooted in the pages of the past. Its swans are world famous.

Belgian handmade lace is prized throughout the world, and on some of the side roads of Bruges, the nimble fingers of an aged resident can still be seen working the wooden bobbins in accordance with age-old tradition.

BELGIUM — WITH its three languages, French, Flemish, and German — is said to have more festivals than any other country in Europe. The Festival of Flanders is one of the biggest in Europe.

Yet sight-seeing in Europe is costly, and Belgium is no exception. Gasoline, for example, costs about $1.45 a gallon — another good reason for using your feet.

To help cut the bill for eating, sleeping and sight-seeing, the Belgian government, in cooperation with the Belgian National Tourist Office, is making a pocketbook pitch for tourists. They're well into the second year of the Belgian Bonus Days program — or BBD, for short.

BRUGES IS KNOWN as Belgium's "Venice of the North" with its network of canals that are lined with buildings with roots that go far back into history. Its hand-made lace and its swans are among the picturesque city's other claims to fame.

THE PROGRAM includes seven cities — Brussels, Antwerp, Bruges, Ghent, Liege, Namur, and Tournai — and involves seven of the nine provinces in the country.

The BBD program, effective only for U.S. and Canadian tourists so far, can save as much as $200 on hotels, meals, theater tickets, museums and sightseeing tours. However, there are restrictions that must be understood and some of the hotel coupons are good only on specific nights of the week.

Only Sabena, Pan American, and Air Canada fly direct routes from North America to Brussels.

BELGIUM, LIKE many other countries in Europe, clearly needs tourist-type hotels. Seeing a growing tourist trade a few years ago, many high-cost, first-class hotels sprang up. Yet with the crushing costs now prevalent everywhere, fewer tourists than anticipated are on the move. And what many of them want are lower-cost accommodations.

More lower-cost rooms are planned. Holiday and Quality Inns will open in Antwerp by the end of the year. Also, the Monaco, an older hotel in the port city, is being refitted and will reopen as a budget hotel.

Some 300 budget-priced hotel rooms are due in Antwerp alone within a year.

Belgium's tourist trade is changing. Today only a few British cross the channel to Belgium whereas a few years ago they used to flock to its shores. Most tourists now are from the border countries of West Germany, Holland, and France — and a few Americans.

The Odds Are Better For The London Casino Player

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI) — The games are the same in London's swank casinos and the gambling palaces of Las Vegas — but the odds are better for the gambler at some of London's tables.

This is the word from Alan Watts of Britain's Curzon House Group who spent a week here recently looking for ideas.

He was fascinated among other things by the computer at Caesar's Palace which records by the minute how play is going at various tables.

THE LONDON CLUBS have borrowed liberally from Las Vegas ever since legalized gambling went into full swing nine years ago, Watts said, including introduction of craps, stud and draw poker, and blackjack.

Not that the British people need any encouragement to gamble. They were already probably the bettingest people in the world.

As a matter of fact, the principal difference between the gaming laws in Las Vegas and London, Watts said, is that the English authorities are doing their best to discourage the public from blowing their wages on games of chance.

THERE WERE approximately 1,300 gambling casinos in London when a loophole in the law opened up the field for fly-by-night entrepreneurs in 1965. By 1970, the regulations were tightened so that now only 194 exist in the United Kingdom.

The law's limitation of two slot machines to each club is a prime example.

The slots traditionally attract women plunking in coins until their money is exhausted and the British authorities simply don't want them losing.

THERE ARE NO big "name" shows a la the Sinatras and Dean Martins of Las Vegas and no hotel accommodations although the Curzon group claims to have six of the finest restaurants in London. Hours are not around the clock but limited to 2 p.m. to 4 a.m.

Roulette is the most popular game in the London clubs and the odds are better than Las Vegas, principally because there is no "double zero" on the wheel.

Odds are also better at the crap tables — again under gaming regulations. Next to roulette, blackjack is the most popular game. Watts says that is because people have come to realize that of all the games it depends most on skill.

THE OVER-ALL gross of the London clubs does not approach Las Vegas but there are some spectacular evenings because the limit for a single number of roulette, for example, is $250 compared to $100 in Las Vegas.

Watts recalled one recent occasion when a "high roller" was $400,000 ahead of the house at one time and finally left with $37,500 profit.

The soft-spoken, handsome Watts is as far removed from the Las Vegas gambling types as are the casinos themselves.

EDUCATED AT Aldenham and Cambridge with a flair for composing music on a semi-professional level, son of the managing director of Littlewood's, a chain of English department stores, he became fascinated with professional gambling.

He worked as a croupier on the continent and in England and for a time was involved in the pop music scene, managing a number of groups so that for a time he was known as the biggest single threat to Brian Epstein, one-time manager of the Beatles.

Watts finally turned his interest full time to British casinos and rose rapidly in the Curzon House Group which, among three other clubs, includes Crockford's, England's oldest gaming club.

"YOU KNOW IT was an Englishman who broke the bank at Monte Carlo," Watts said.

His name was John Wells.

Back around 1926, Wells noted that a roulette wheel in the French riviera spa was accidentally tilted so that numbers on that side came up far more often. He won something like 15 million dollars.

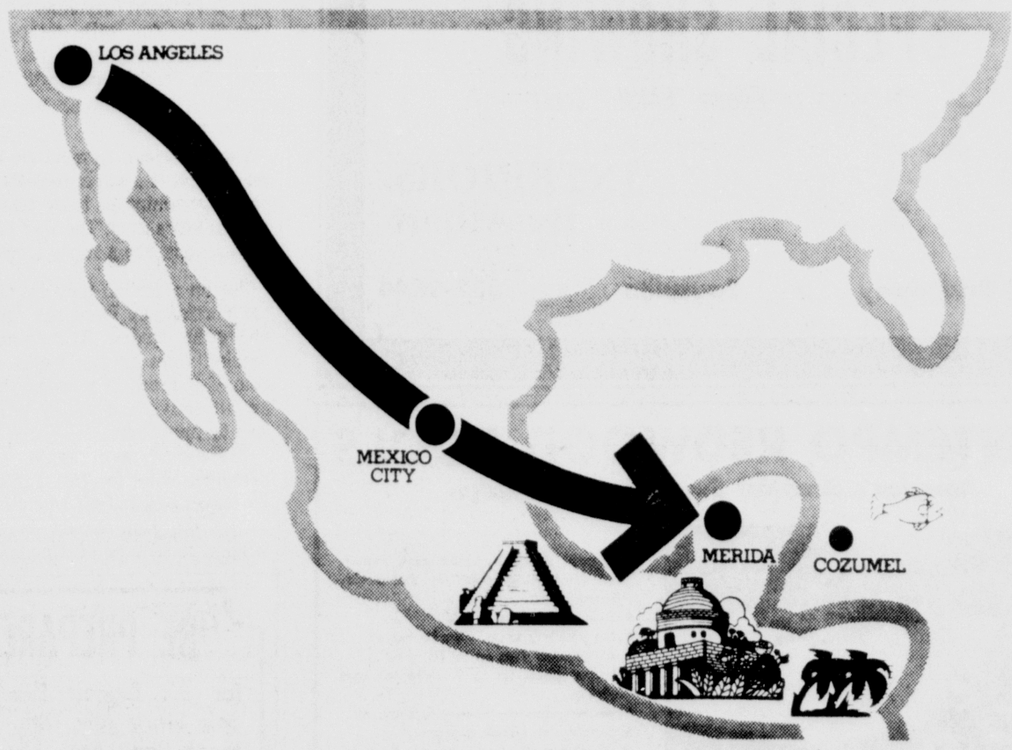
MEXICANA ANNOUNCES THE MAYAN EXPRESS:

DAILY DIRECT FLIGHTS TO MERIDA, SIGHTSEEING CENTER FOR THE FANTASTIC MAYAN EMPIRE.



From now on, the world of the Maya is only a few short steps away.

Now, for the first time ever, fly direct with us to Merida. Mexico's most beautiful tropic city. Sightseeing center for the fantastic Mayan Empire.

Leave Los Angeles early in the afternoon. Be in Merida early in the evening. After only one stop (in Mexico City. Where you can even spend a few extra days if you like).

See The Platform of Venus. The Temple of a Thousand Columns. The Sacred Well. Explore incredible ancient ruins. Delightful modern jewelry or clothing shops. And then fly on to Cozumel, a lazy Caribbean island the modern world almost forgot (it's only minutes away on Mexicana).

Don't miss the Mayan Express. Call your travel agent or Mexicana for tours and reservations. Step on board a big, modern Mexicana jet. And fly back with us to Merida. Way back.

A CHECKLIST FOR MARIN GARDENERS

Here is the Marin gardener's checklist for the coming week:

✓Don't kill California native plants with kindness. Most natives prefer summer dryness. Fremontia will enjoy some available moisture near the outer perimeter of its drip line.

✓Bougainvillea blooms not coloring-up as they should? Keep plants on the dry side — generous amounts of moisture produce lush growth, but little bloom.

✓Shear Privet hedges so that they taper slightly from a wider base. This exposes the lower part of the hedge to sunlight, which keeps it green and healthy.

✓Watering is of utmost importance in the summer time. Properly, the water should penetrate deeply to the full extent of the root systems.

Take pride in your hedge. A clipped row of green is a magnificent contribution to the landscape.

On the matter of clipping, the important thing with a formally clipped hedge is to trim it to a pyramidal shape so that the base is wider than the top. This permits the lower reaches of the hedge to absorb the maximum amount of sunlight and stay healthy and dense, rather than thinly foliaged and rangy.

You can either round the top or shear it flat. It really doesn't make much difference.

IF YOU SEEK the strictly formal look of traditional gardens, you have to insure that the top is evenly trimmed and level from one end of the hedge to the other. It's a simple matter to do this if you stretch a string tightly between two stakes at the height you want your hedge. Then clip to that height all the way.

This is most important with low to medium hedges since slight variations show more and can wreck the effect you are striving to achieve.

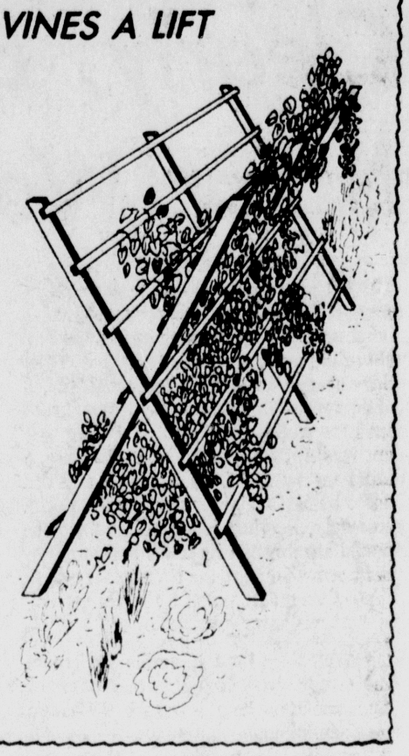
According to the California Association of Nurserymen, the other matters of importance to happy hedges are water and food.

FEW GARDENERS seem to realize that most hedges like plenty of water and at least two annual feedings. This is no problem where the hedge is next to lawn or flower beds, but many hedges that border a drive or mark a boundary see no water from one rain to the next. A long soaker hose stretched out at the roots insures thorough soaking.

As for food, use a complete fertilizer in spring and early summer now, if you haven't already done so.

Hedge materials vary widely with the Privet family leading the way. You will want to decide whether you need a high or low hedge, a formal or informal hedge, windbreak or screen. After determining this, let your nurseryman take it from here. Just make sure he understands your special needs.

GIVING YOUR VINES A LIFT



HIGHER PRICES in the markets and keen interest in organically-grown produce are two of the factors behind the upsurge of interest in vegetable gardens. It has reached the point where space once devoted to flowers or lawns is now devoted to growing edibles. But the space limitation is still a restriction upon the vegetable gardening of many a home owner. And one way to meet it is with a simple trellis such as the one pictured at right. It accommodates such climbing plants as melons and cucumbers, lifting them off the ground and controlling their spread. You can build it with six two-by-fours and six one-by-twos, all six feet long. The two-by-fours are nailed to form three Xs, set three feet apart, and joined with the one-by-twos to create a ladder for the vines. The ends of the two-by-fours that will be set into the ground should be soaked in a preservative to prevent rotting and extend the life of the wood. And when next spring rolls around, simply cover the lower half of the trellis with heavy plastic to form a snug cold frame.

Just How Much Color Do You Have To Decorate The Yard This Summer?

There should be more summer-blooming shrubs in California gardens.

Perhaps, through habit, the season calls for annuals and perennials with a few similar shrubs such as Fuchsias and Hydrangeas thrown in. More likely, it is just that summer-blooming shrubs get less attention than their publicized counterparts of spring.

There are a number of shrubs that can give color for months on end:

Take Glossy Abelia, for instance. This handsome evergreen is never unattractive even out of bloom. And in summer it is loaded with white, bell-shaped flowers that exude a wonderful fragrance.

Dwarfer and contrasting with Glossy Abelia — since its foliage is silvery gray — is Bush Morning Glory. The California Association of Nurserymen ranks Bush Morning Glory high on the list for its compact growing habit, pleasant foliage and white morning-glory shaped blooms in late spring and summer.

Another good one is Red Bottle Brush, interesting both for its graceful growth and the summer-long display of red blooms that definitely resemble a bottle brush.

Shrubby Lantanas are good not only in Southern California, but brilliant and colorful in northern gardens as well. Oleanders should never be far out of sight where weather is warm enough to bring out the best in them.

These are but a few of the summer color bearers.

Those afore-mentioned Fuchsias and Hydrangeas, for instance, still remain ideal selections. If you have some in your yard right now, you have ample evidence of their ability to produce color when it is most appreciated.

THE BOLD AND BRIGHT blooms of Hydrangeas will give you unending summer pleasure. They are magnificent in large tubs on a shady patio, under high-branching trees, or on the shady side of the house in your garden.

Mrs. Burpee's Produce Winds Up As A Variety Of Delicious Dishes

By PHYLLIS HANES

DOYLESTOWN, PA. — David Burpee, son of the founder of the world's largest mail-order seed company, spent years developing the odorless marigold. But his wife Lois prizes the yellow-gold flower in its old-fashioned state, smell and all, in her vegetable garden.

The pungent odor of the marigold, which bothers many finicky gardeners, acts as a repellent to nematodes, microscopic worms that can do considerable damage to root plants such as beets and carrots, and to broccoli.

It also helps ward off nibbling animals that enjoy tender, young garden sprouts and greens.

SO MRS. BURPEE mixes them generously in the vegetable garden she plants and tends at her home, Fordhook Farms, the original testing place and trial seed-growing farm of W. Atlee Burpee Company.

All the fresh vegetables needed for the family table, plus plenty for pickling and freezing for winter are grown in Mrs. Burpee's garden, which faces south and has the advantage of full sun.

What she grows in the garden is influenced entirely by her husband's likes and dislikes — a long list of vegetables that also have passed the test of her own discriminating taste buds.

I ASKED FOR advice for a beginner-gardener about the difference in flavor and tenderness between varieties, since the Burpee catalog offers a choice of several varieties of each vegetable. Mrs. Burpee was most helpful.

"Of course there is a great difference," she said. "It's often a matter of personal taste, but if you plant a new or different variety each year, even with a small garden you soon learn which ones are sweeter or easier to grow — which ones you like best.

"There's a big difference in flavor between bush beans and pole beans, for example. I grow three or four kinds — Romano, pole limas, Burpee Golden beans, as well as Tenderpod."

"DETROIT DARK Red are good beets and very popular," she said. "But I like the old-fashioned Lutz that may not be as handsome, but I think are the sweetest. Beet green leaves are good cooked, also, especially those on Burpee's Golden Beet. We like this new yellow beet, and Mr. Burpee is especially fond of the Golden Beet Pickle I make."

She likes several kinds of lettuce, including Salad Bowl, Fordhook, Oak Leaf, and Green Ice.

"I LIKE THE VF tomato and Big Boy, the orange Jubilee, and even the Pixie tomato, which grows well in pots and window boxes" she said. "But I like the flavor of Delicious best of all, I think and have good luck freezing it."

Most squashes are favorites with the Burpees. Mammoth Melting Sugar peas also are on this garden list, along with broccoli, celery, onions, oysterplant and eggplant.

Mrs. Burpee also grows several herbs, spinach, chard, and other greens.

"Mixing greens is fun, either for salads or cooking," she said. "Remember that hairy leaves take a little longer cooking time than shiny ones."

ALTHOUGH PARSNIPS are one of Burpee's favorites, he is not keen about carrots. Mrs. Burpee grows old-fashioned Fordhook celery and lots of parsley and mint.

"The mint grows wild," she said, "but I use a lot; potato salad just isn't right without fresh mint."

Herbs are often used with vegetables in cooking in this household, but Mrs. Burpee warned against too heavy a hand. Fresh herbs are stronger than dried.

Here are some of Mrs. Burpee's tips that will help when cooking fresh vegetables from your own vegetable patch:

COMBINE DILL or bay leaves with beets; parsley or celery leaves with carrots; oregano, marjoram, or summer savory with tomatoes and parsley, chives or summer savory with Chinese cabbage.

Cooking vegetables is very simple via the Burpee method. Cook green vegetables in just enough boiling water to cover and a little salt, but never with a lid.

Vegetables must never be allowed to wilt after picking, because this tends to toughen them.

If a person hasn't had much experience with leafy vegetables, the best way to learn is to taste them after cooking for four or five minutes. If the raw taste is gone, drain them in a colander, season, and serve at once.

LOIS BURPEE returns from her garden with a basket of her homegrown produce, most of it from varieties developed and distributed by her husband David Burpee's W. Atlee Burpee Company.

CARROTS SHOULD be tasted, too. Cook them in a little boiling water, then drain and put back on the fire with butter and seasonings. Taste and see; that's the best guide.

When cooking Tenderpod or Golden beans, boil in lightly salted water until the raw taste disappears, then drain and put back on heat to steam off any excess moisture. Add a little butter, a sprinkle of salt, and they're ready for the table.

"Fresh vegetables give so much to a meal," Mrs. Burpee said. "They not only add flavor but also a variety of texture and color not found in many other foods."

BORN IN PALESTINE of Scottish medical missionary parents, Mrs. Burpee has always been interested in plants. She majored in botany at Wellesley College. Her interest in cooking started later as she tested and perfected ways to prepare the many different Burpee vegetable varieties.

Here are some of her recipes:

GOLDEN BEET PICKLE

24 beets, about 2 inches in diameter
6 to 7 small yellow onions
Salt
5 cups white vinegar
5 cups white sugar
1½ teaspoons tumeric
2 teaspoons mustard seed
1 teaspoon celery seed

Cut leaves off beets, leaving about 1½ inch on roots. Wash and place in a large kettle. Cover with boiling water and cook until almost tender when pierced with the point of a paring knife — about half an hour. Drain, peel, and slice rather thin. Layer into the kettle alternately with the onions, which have been peeled and sliced thin, salting lightly.

Combine all remaining ingredients into a saucepan. Bring to a boil and stir until the sugar has dissolved. Pour over beets and onions. Bring to a boil very slowly. Remove from heat. Pack beets and onions into hot, scalded pint jars. Cover with the pickle brine, leaving a half inch at top of jar. Seal at once. Makes about 5 pints.

CANDIED PARSNIPS

Wash six to eight parsnips, then boil in salted water for 30 minutes, or until they can be pierced easily with a sharp pointed knife. Peel and slice lengthwise.

Arrange flat in a butter baking dish and coat with a syrup made by combining a third cup hot water with one cup brown sugar, firmly packed, until sugar has dissolved. Sprinkle lightly with freshly grated nutmeg and cinnamon and dot generously with butter.

BROILED ZUCCHINI

Allow about one six to eight-inch zucchini to a person. Wash, then drop into enough salted boiling water to cover, and simmer for eight minutes. Lift from water and cut in half lengthwise. Arrange on broiling pan, cut surface up. Score the tops with a sharp knife and coat lightly with softened butter.

Sprinkle with celery salt, then with seasoned breadcrumbs, and finally with Parmesan cheese. Dot with butter and place in a preheated broiler for a few minutes or until lightly browned.

FORDHOOK CORN PUDDING

2 tablespoons butter (1/2 stick)
3 cups scraped corn (about 14 medium ears)
1 teaspoon salt
Dash of freshly ground white pepper
5 eggs

Butter a two-quart baking dish or souffle mold and set aside. After fresh corn is husked, scrape it by scoring the corn with the tines of a fork, down the length of the ear. This cuts the skin. Then, holding the tip of each ear on a platter, scrape it with the back of a table knife, leaving the skin on the cob and the meat of the kernel on the platter.

Combine corn with one tablespoon of butter and milk, salt and pepper in a medium saucepan. Heat over low fire, stirring constantly until butter has melted.

Separate three of the eggs. Combine the yolks with the remaining whole egg and beat slightly. Add to corn mixture. Beat the three whites until they hold firm, shiny peaks. Add to corn mixture and fold in with rubber spatula. Pour into baking dish and place in a roasting pan with enough hot water to reach half the depth of the mold. Bake in an oven preheated to 350 degrees F. for 40 to 45 minutes, or until a knife placed into the center of the pudding comes out clean. Serves six.

The scraped corn should be thick enough to mound slightly. If it seems too thick, add a little milk and one teaspoon sugar.

There Are Flowers Meant For Cutting

Every garden should include a plot of flowers for cutting.

Any sunny area, be it in the middle of the garden or behind the garage will do very nicely. The primary aim is to gather enough bouquets to keep the house cheerful at all seasons.

Right now, there are many cut flowers blooming and many gardeners who wish they had planted them weeks ago. If your garden lacks flowers for cutting, the California Association of Nurserymen has words of encouragement: There's still time to plant your favorites and enjoy their bloom this summer.

ZINNIAS AND Asters, tops among cut flowers, are to be found in nursery flats this month and the sooner you put them in the ground the better. The same goes for Dwarf Dahlias, Marigolds and Petunias, the most prolific of all and often overlooked for its cutting qualities.

Choose a sunny bed for these and work the soil thoroughly before setting the young plants out. There's nothing to encourage sturdy growth and better bloom like a deep, well aerated root run. You can improve on what you have, too, by adding soil conditioners when you turn the soil.

A supplemental feeding goes a long way. Some gardeners like to work a small amount of commercial fertilizer into the soil below each plant when the plants are set out. Be sure there is some soil between fertilizer and plant roots, however. An alternative to this is to scratch some food into the soil around each plant after it's well established.

FOR CUTTING these and other flowers you might already have started, here are a few simple rules: Make a sharp cut; plunge the flower stems deeply in cold water immediately; and wait a couple of hours before arranging them in bouquets. Strip the lower leaves that would be submerged in the vase of water. Change the water. . .daily for best keeping, or every other day.

Living Awnings Of Vines Help To Cool House

If your home has a large picture window that lets the sun shine in, you may have an unnecessary energy problem.

If the sun shines through that window you have what amounts to a "greenhouse" inside, with temperatures far higher than they need be. That means your air conditioner will be working overtime, using energy you would really rather not spare.

The American Association of Nurserymen suggests a novel remedy — a green, growing awning of leafy vines to screen out the sun's rays. The way they describe it, it sounds like a fairly simple project.

Put up a trellis, they instruct, coming out horizontally from the roof overhang above the window. Train your deciduous twining vines on that trellis, and after a couple of growing seasons you will have an attractive and highly practical addition to your home.

The nurserymen suggest you select a deciduous vine for this purpose because its leaves will fall off when winter comes to let the sun stream in through the window to save on heating energy.

Younger Lawns Need A Feeding

Newly planted lawns may need more nitrogen than older ones.

Young grass has not yet had time to build a tissue backlog that is recycled as spent vegetation decomposes. In this sense young grass operates on slimmer reserves than older turf. To keep young grass thriving, fertilize lightly each few weeks (it can be less frequent if long-lasting ureaform plant foods are used).

There's More To Lowly Nail Than The Novice Might Think

HOMES PAGE

By ANDY LANG

Nails are common things. And there is a specific type of nail called common.

But if you look over the large variety of nails available in stores, you're likely to think they are anything but common.

There are finishing and casing nails; spiral and concrete nails; roofing and upholstery nails; cut and square-shank nails; brads and tacks; and, literally, dozens of other types. And, of course, the common nail, which has a diamond-shape point and flat head, and is the kind most persons use.

NAILS COME IN standard lengths and are designated in so-called penny size. Generally, the longer nails are thicker than the shorter nails. Those used mostly by home handymen run anywhere from one inch in length (2 penny or 2d) to four inches (20 penny or 20d).

The strongest joint is obtained with a nail long enough to penetrate at least two-thirds of its length into the piece of wood holding the point. This isn't always practical, but it's the objective that should be sought.

Clinching a nail, when appearance isn't objectionable, adds much to its withdrawal resistance.

CLINCHING MEANS bending the point of the nail over so that it's flush with the surface of the wood. Clinching of any kind adds strength, but maximum strength is obtained when the nail is hammered down across the grain.

"Blind" or "set" nailing involves driving the head of the nail below the surface of the wood with a punch-like tool called a nailset. For this purpose, a nail with a very small head — such as a casing nail or a brad — is used.

When this kind of nailing is done in something like tongue-and-groove flooring, it's called "blind" nailing, since the nail is hidden when the tongue is fitted into the groove of the next piece. When it's done on a more casual surface, with the head of the nail concealed with wood putty or plastic wood, it's called "set" nailing.

IN MOST SOFTWOODS, nails can be driven directly into the wood. But when using hardwoods, such as maple or oak, or the dense wood of such softwoods as southern pine and Douglas fir, splitting can be avoided by pre-drill pilot or lead holes for the nails. This is especially necessary when nails are driven near the edges and ends of wood.

4d — 1½ inches
6d — 2 inches
8d — 2½ inches
10d — 3 inches
16d — 3½ inches

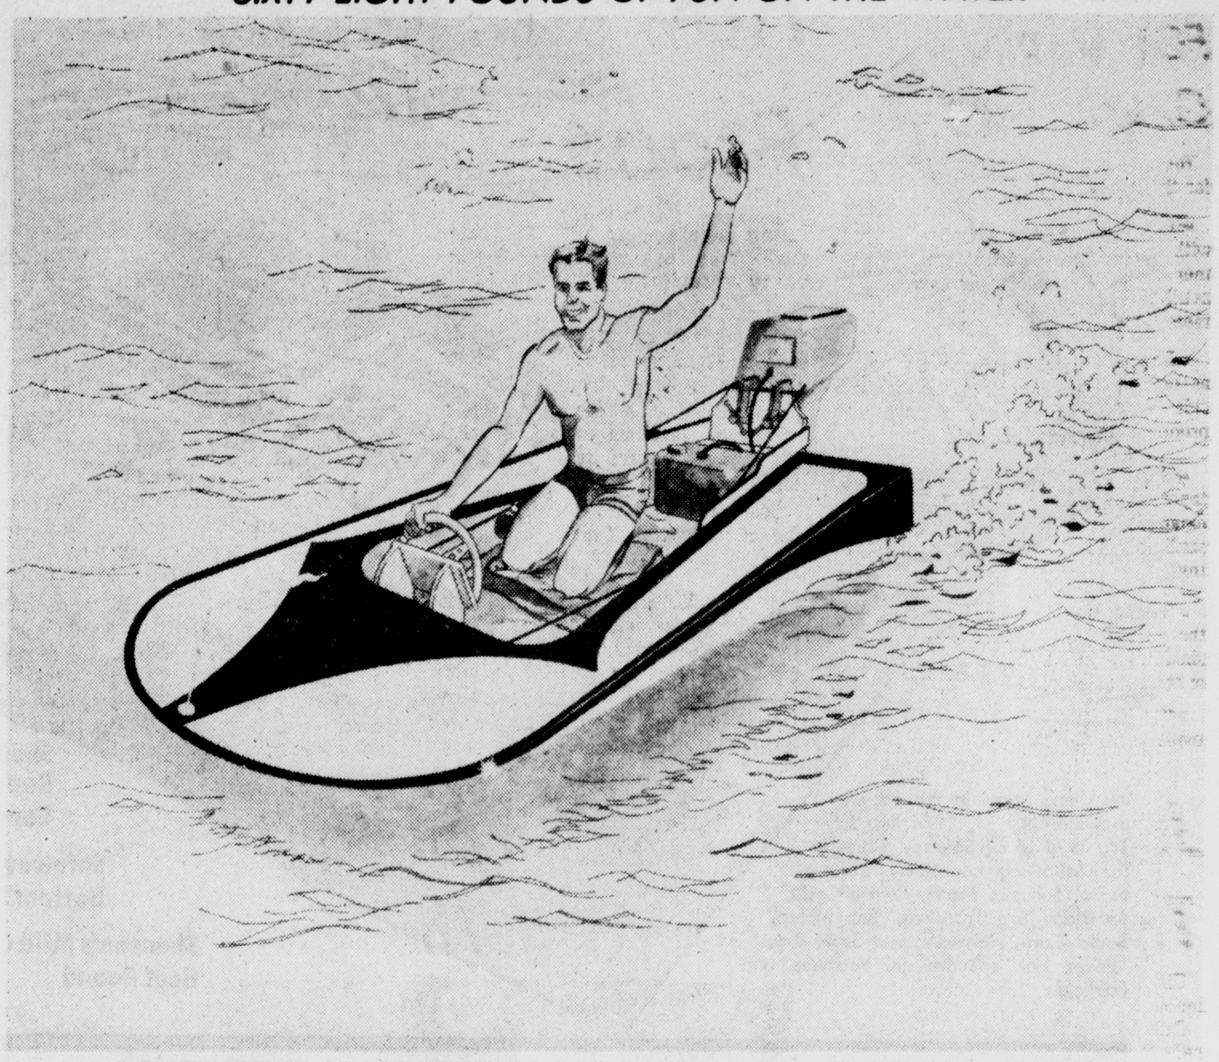
SIXTY-EIGHT POUNDS OF FUN ON THE WATER



THE LITTLE SKIMMER is the perfect lightweight craft for boating enthusiasts on a budget. It's economical, because you can build it yourself — probably in one day — at a total cost of $50. Just send $1.75 to Steve Ellingson, Independent-Journal Pattern Department, Post Office Box 2383, Van Nuys, Calif., and ask for Little Skimmer Plan 472. Then get to work. Only two pieces of quarter-inch thick plywood, four-by-eight-feet, and some ordinary lumber are required. Framing is held to an absolute minimum, with the plywood skin-stressed to offer the greatest possible strength at the lightest possible weight. Your completed craft will weigh only 68 pounds, but will carry two people, and will take an outboard motor ranging from three to 15 horsepower. It has a watertight air compartment that will support 900 pounds, even with the cockpit full of water. And it can be handled easily by one man and a car-top carrier.

A Major Step Toward That Day When Solar Energy Will Become Standard

By JOHN LESAR

CHICAGO (UPI) — In 1966, Dr. Roland Winston set out to develop a new tool for the study of high-energy physics.

Today, Winston and his associates have in their hands what may be a key to solving the world's energy problems.

The device is a solar energy collector which eventually could become a standard fixture on rooftops. It could provide heat, hot water, cooling, even electricity to run household appliances.

WINSTON, AN associate professor of physics at the University of Chicago, had set out to develop a new type of collector for Cherenkov radiation — a faint light emitted by fast-moving, charged particles useful in identifying electrons in the study of high-energy physics.

He outlined the mathematics for his collector at a departmental colloquium earlier this year.

In the course of meetings on possible energy sources, Dr. Robert G. Sachs, a professor at the university who last year became director of Argonne National Laboratory in southwest suburban Lemont, recalled Winston's collector and suggested that Winston adapt it to capture the sun's energy.

WINSTON'S ORIGINAL collector consisted of curved cones with mirror surfaces. To convert the device for collecting solar power, he adapted it to the shape of a trough. The shape allows it to collect the sun's light as long as it is pointed at the sun, since the sun's rays creep over its surface as the sun's position in the sky changes.

Other designs would have to move to keep in position to accept the solar rays, requiring complex and expansive tracking equipment.

Dr. Riccardo Levi Setti, also a physics professor at the University of Chicago, worked with Winston in the latter stages of the solar collector's development and has become a strong proponent of the potential practical applications of the device.

"THE FIRST application would be a rooftop type of installation which could provide hot water and a little bit of conversion for electricity," Levi Setti said.

Such a device, he said, would cover most of the roof. Methods of storing the solar energy would also be needed, he said, noting that solar cells and other materials could be adapted to store the collected solar energy.

The solar heat also could warm water and provide steam for heating.

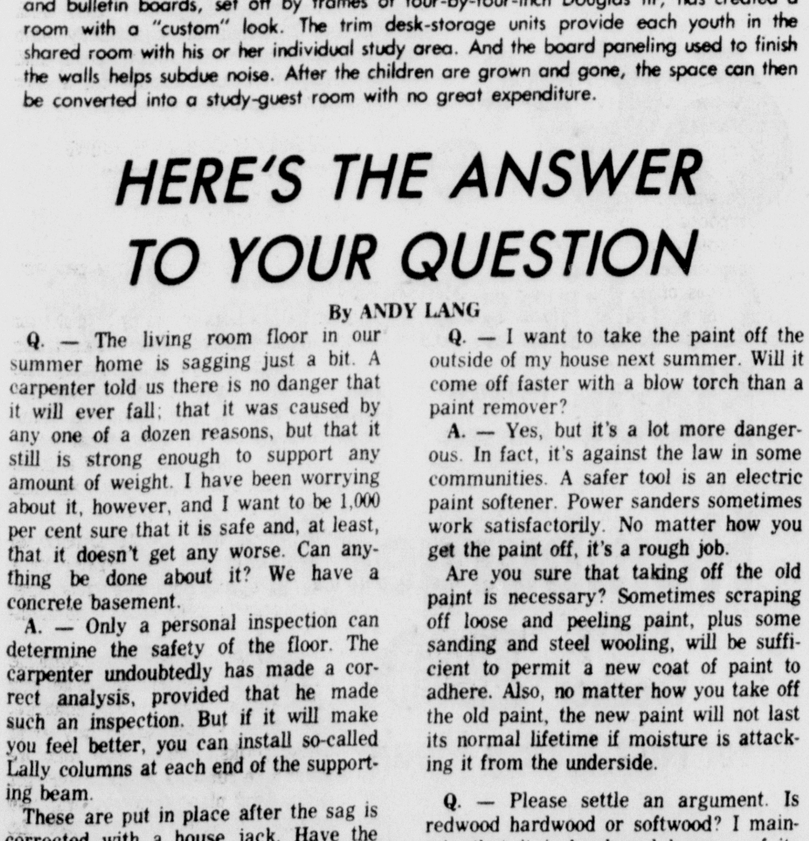
ON A GRANDER scale, Levi Setti said, huge solar collectors could produce enough steam power to run turbines. But he noted that such large-scale uses still are many years off and storage of energy on such a scale would require much more research to make a project of those proportions feasible.

Scientists are currently working at the university's Enrico Fermi Institute and at Argonne National Laboratory, under grants from the Atomic Energy Commission and the National Science Foundation, in an effort to develop solar energy collectors which would be suitable for mass production and general use.

Levi Setti said such units could be available within a few years, if industry expresses strong interest in their development.

So far, he said, industry already has expressed some interest in the devices.

A STUDY CENTER FOR THE TEENS



AS THE CHILDREN grow older and move into their teens, their rooms should grow with them. A place to play and a place to sleep is no longer enough. Also needed is a place to study and to relax. For these teen-agers, a system of built-in desks, drawers, shelves and bulletin boards, set off by frames of four-by-four-inch Douglas fir, has created a room with a "custom" look. The trim desk-storage units provide each youth in the shared room with his or her individual study area. And the board paneling used to finish the walls helps subdue noise. After the children are grown and gone, the space can then be converted into a study-guest room with no great expenditure.

HERE'S THE ANSWER TO YOUR QUESTION

By ANDY LANG

Q. — The living room floor in our summer home is sagging just a bit. A carpenter told us there is no danger that it will ever fall; that it was caused by any one of a dozen reasons, but that it still is strong enough to support any amount of weight. I have been worrying about it, however, and I want to be 1,000 per cent sure that it is safe and, at least, that it doesn't get any worse. Can anything be done about it? We have a concrete basement.

A. — Only a personal inspection can determine the safety of the floor. The carpenter undoubtedly has made a correct analysis, provided that he made such an inspection. But if it will make you feel better, you can install so-called Lally columns at each end of the supporting beam.

These are put in place after the sag is corrected with a house jack. Have the dealer explain to you how it works, paying particular attention to the necessity of raising the jack only a tiny bit every day or two. This is not an operation to be taken lightly, as you can make the situation worse by being careless. Therefore, don't undertake it unless you know exactly what you are doing before you start. This is not one of those do-it-yourself projects where you learn by trial-and-error.

Q. — I want to take the paint off the outside of my house next summer. Will it come off faster with a blow torch than a paint remover?

A. — Yes, but it's a lot more dangerous. In fact, it's against the law in some communities. A safer tool is an electric paint softener. Power sanders sometimes work satisfactorily. No matter how you get the paint off, it's a rough job.

Are you sure that taking off the old paint is necessary? Sometimes scraping off loose and peeling paint, plus some sanding and steel wooling, will be sufficient to permit a new coat of paint to adhere. Also, no matter how you take off the old paint, the new paint will not last its normal lifetime if moisture is attacking it from the underside.

Q. — Please settle an argument. Is redwood hardwood or softwood? I maintain that it is hardwood because of its resitance to the weather.

A. — You lose. Redwood is considered a softwood. As a matter of fact, most softwoods are more resistant to the elements than hardwoods.

Cut Firewood Now So That It Can Cure

Home owners who cut their own firewood should think about it now in order to avoid sputtering, smokey fireplace failures when cooler weather comes again.

Late spring through early summer is the ideal time to cut next winter's firewood, according to the woodcutting experts at McCulloch Corporation, the chain saw manufacturer.

Most commonly used fireplace woods require six to nine months to cure or dry out enough so that the moisture content does not interfere with easy combustion and efficient burning.

It is estimated that properly cured firewood will produce up to 25 per cent more heat than recently cut wood — a clear benefit when home heating energy is such a precious commodity.

The time required for wood to cure will vary according to the type of wood and its condition at the time of cutting. Generally, hard woods (oak, maple, etc.) take longer to cure then softer woods (pine, cedar). And a near-dead tree cut into fireplace lengths will be ready to burn before wood that was cut when green, or living.

Next winter's firewood is a bonus for home owners who need to remove a dead or dying tree, or prune branches which may represent a hazard to structures or persons.

Many tree-pruning or removal jobs may be accomplished by a do-it-himself homeowner using a lightweight gasoline-powered chain.

Very ambitious jobs, such as removal of a full-grown large species of tree, may require a professional tree service. But here's a tip: negotiate a price which does not include cleanup. The firewood you gain may be worth the cost of the job.

If wood is being cut now so that it will be dry when needed, logic dictates that it be stored in a crib or bin sheltered from next fall's rains.

Firewood should not be stored in a garage, cellar or other permanent structure because of the danger posed by termites, beetles or other insects which it may harbor.

To Remove Screws

When you have trouble removing the screws that fasten table legs to a support bar, try this: turn the screw just a bit in the "tightening" direction, then reverse it. You may have to do this several times, but usually it loosens the screw and it comes out. It also helps to hold the screwdriver with both hands, one near the tip of the shank to hold the screwdriver in place in the screw.

The Refinishing Of A Hardwood Floor Is Task That Takes Time And Patience

By GEORGE MONTGOMERY

One of the most ambitious do-it-yourself jobs around the home is refinishing a hardwood floor.

You can do it, but before you start you should understand that it takes time and patience, and that some hard work is involved. Your compensation will be the beauty of a well-done job.

So here we go.

FIRST, RENT a power sander and a power edger from your hardware store. Second, remove all the furniture from the room. Third, be sure all nail heads are driven well into the floor.

Otherwise, they will tear up the sandpaper on your sander.

If you have a quarter-round molding around the edges of the floor, that too should be removed.

Now you are ready for the sanding operation.

REMOVE THE old finish from the floor with a coarse sandpaper, working across the grain of the wood. Be sure to keep the sander moving while it is running. If it runs while stationary, you will gouge the wood. Keep it moving at a constant speed, running the whole length of the room. You will use the power edge to complete the first sanding along the walls.

Corners have to be done by hand with sandpaper or with a hand sander.

Now repeat the entire process with medium sandpaper and do it a third time with fine sandpaper. Finally, use a vacuum cleaner to remove all sawdust.

THAT DONE, you are ready to apply the new finish.

Fortunately, you have a considerable choice of finishes for hardwood floors.

I suggest that you start with a penetrating sealer, such as varnish, shellac, lacquer or Urethane. Shellac produces a soft finish which you may not want, but it provides a good base for varnish. Be sure the varnish you apply over it is compatible with shellac.

VARNISH, OF course, produces a very hard finish, and I suggest you apply three coats, at least 24 hours apart. Buff lightly between coats.

Indeed, the three-coat rule applies to most hardwood finishes. The newer liquid plastic finishes, for example, give fine results on all woods except pine. But three coats are indicated two or three hours between the first and second, six between the second and third, and let the last coat dry at least 15 hours before you walk on it.

Once your finish, whatever it may be, is thoroughly dry, apply a coat of liquid or paste wax made expressly for hardwood floors. It is best applied with a soft rag and buffed with an electric polisher.

A second application will make your job all that better.

Directions For The Planning And Building Of A Workshop

Years ago when prominent designers submitted entries in a home building contest, thousands of visitors were fascinated with the novelty of the products, equipment, and end use of materials.

Most visitors, women as well as men, were especially enthusiastic when they saw the three different workshops in these homes. Each workbench was designed to provide a practical home for all the tools and equipment a homeowner would need to make needed repairs.

Directions Simplified Inc. and its Easi-Bild Pattern Co. created simplified step-by-step directions for each bench so everyone who wanted one could build it to fit space available. Step-by-step directions and assembly illustrations were printed in the book the firm is offering. It explains how eight different base and wall cabinets can be built from plywood.

Directions also explain how to build a double thick plywood counter top to cover several cabinets. Those who own power tools will be able to build cabinets to accommodate a drill.

Book 677, "How to Plan and Build a Workshop" is available at $1.50.

Send check or money order made payable to Directions Simplified Inc., for Book 677 to Easi-Bild Pattern Co., Post Office Box 215, Briarcliff Manor, N.Y., 10510. Add 50 cents if you want book by special handling.

A Snack Area Easily Added

Small eating areas for quick lunches or snacks suit the on-the-run lifestyles of many busy families, and they can be added in varying degrees of simplicity.

A counter attached to the back of cabinets separating kitchen and family room doubles as a breakfast bar and phone desk. It can be built of two edge-glued fir or pine two-by-sixes or framed in two-by-twos with a laminated plastic surface.

If a wide closet in the family room can be spared, it converts easily to a snack bar buffet. A counter is added and the back wall is divided into four sections with vertical two-by-sixes.

Three of the sections can be used for displaying art work or crafts, and one of the middle sections is mirrored, to add the dimension of another room beyond the wall.

One corner of the counter can be used as home office desk, and cleared off for use as a service area for casual dinner parties.

About Carpets

by Doug Emerson

QUIET ROOMS deserve the luxury of thick carpets. Bedrooms, for instance, or any place where you go to escape the bustle and noise and activity of family life into something serene and relaxing.

The more luxurious, thick and dense the carpet, the more pampered you'll feel when you retreat to your quiet room . . . and the more inviting the room will be. Choose long deep shags or thick cut-pile carpet, as inviting to the touch as fine fur.

It's often said that cool and quiet are the words for colors in bedrooms and other quiet rooms. Cool greens and blues, or any of the intriguing new pale hues of almost any color, are very serene. However, it should be said that there are no hard-and-fast rules, since many people enjoy warm yellows and oranges in their bedrooms and find them relaxing.

Carpets have other quiet ways to make your home more livable. They soften all sounds, gentle your moods, reduce foot fatigue and ease your housekeeping chores.

We can't keep quiet about our superb selection of famous name carpets by America's leading manufacturers . . . and the great special values we have to offer. Come in and see what the shouting is all about . . . at your carpet headquarters.

M-A-S-H Priest Big Family Man

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — William Christopher, who plays the irreverent Catholic priest in "M-A-S-H," is a student of Greek but now wishes he had studied Latin instead.

A will-o'-the-wisp sort of man, Christopher is a Protestant who says, "I'm not a Catholic yet," as if he might convert any moment.

The walls of Christopher's Pasadena home are decorated with prints by artist Sister Mary Corita, a friend of the Christopher family.

The actor and his wife, Barbara O'Connor have been married for 16 years and are the parents of John, 8, and Ned, 6. They moved to Pasadena from New York 10 years ago.

The house is modest and decorated with a mixture of antiques and contemporary pieces. Christopher chooses to describe the decor as "eclectic." The color scheme is mostly white and the furniture has been made little boy-proof with slip covers.

A grand piano, which both Barbara and Bill play, dominates the living room.

Both Christophers enjoy their garden. Bill does the heavy groundturning work with spade and pitchfork. Barbara plants the flowers and vegetables, leaving the weeding to her husband.

The family provender includes beans, tomatoes, squash, eggplant, lettuce and tomatoes. It's Bill's little hedge against inflation.

Bill arises in the pre-dawn darkness, boils a breakfast egg and reports to the CBS series stage at 20th Century-Fox at 6:30 — earlier if the call is for the studio's ranch near Malibu. It's a long drive but against the grain of the rush-hour traffic. He gets home in time for dinner more often than not.

His promptness is partly due to Barbara's genius in the kitchen. Her specialty is a Greek eggplant dish, but she is also handy with French and Italian recipes.

Many of Bill's weekend hours are devoted to young Ned's Indian Guide activites and John's Little League team. During the warm months the family makes the long trek from Pasadena to the beach to cool off and romp in the surf. They have no swimming pool at home.

Summertime affords an opportunity for the Christopher family to pile into the car and spend a week or so at Yosemite and Sequoia National Parks.

The Christophers are on friendly social terms with other members of the large "M-A-S-H" east, but Gary Burghoff and his wife, Janet, are especially close friends.

An alumnus of one of the country's most famous high schools, New Trier in Winnetka, Ill., Bill is a graduate of Wesleyan University and continues to pursue academic subjects in his free time.

He is careful to play his role as Father Mulcahy without offending Catholics. To that end he bought a Latin book to help him in those bits of dialogue that require spoken Latin words. He is teased by neighbors about his religious role.

Bill is still New York oriented when it comes to his wardrobe. He enjoys California's casual styles, but he prefers to wear a suit and necktie when he goes out to dinner or to a party.

Neither Barbara nor Bill is in favor of family pets. But they did buy a pair of ducks to rid their garden of snails. It was a happy arrangement until a marauding raccoon dispatched the ducks, much to the dismay of John and Ned.

Barbara has taken up part of the kitchen for her hobby, silk screen art work which has become a profitable family sideline.

Masterpiece Theater Series To Run Gamut

The 1974-75 Masterpiece Theater television season will feature comedy, drama and mystery — including 13 new episodes of "Upstairs, Downstairs" which just won an Emmy Award for the best dramatic series of the year.

Alistair Cooke will continue as host for the hour-long presentations telecast on PBS and made possible again by a grant from Mobile Oil Corp.

The season will open Oct. 6 with "Murder Must Advertise" — a four-part Lord Peter Wimsey mystery based on the Dorothy Sayers story and starring Ian Carmichael. "Murder Must Advertise" will run through Oct. 27. It was produced by the BBC.

Thirteen consecutive new episodes of "Upstairs, Downstairs," the comedy-drama series which made its debut on Masterpiece Theater this past season, will follow the Wimsey mysteries. From Nov. 3 to Jan. 26, viewers will be catching up with London Weekend Television's productions of the latest events and escapades in the lives of the now-famous Bellamy family and their servants.

Beginning Feb. 2, Masterpiece Theater will take its PBS viewers from the Edwardian London of "Upstairs, Downstairs" to the English countryside for four weeks of "Country Matters," based on three short stories by A. E. Coppard and one by H. E. Bates.

Coppard's "The Higgler" will begin this Masterpiece Theater segment. His "The Black Dog" and "The Watercress Girl" will follow Feb. 9 and Feb. 16 respectively. The rural stories, from England's Granada Television, will conclude Feb. 23 with "The Mill," by H. E. Bates, who was represented last year by the Christmas program, "The Little Farm."

Short stories by Viennese playwright and novelist Arthur Schnitzler will occupy the stage for the six subsequent weeks, March 2-April 6, with "Vienna 1900." Subtitled "Games of Love and Death," the five Schnitzler stories (one is in two episodes) were produced by the BBC and star Robert Stephens, Dorothy Tutin and Lynn Redgrave.

Winding up the Mobil-funded season will be a final Lord Peter Wimsey mystery, "The Nine Tailors," from April 13-May 4.

Corbett Named As Guest Star

Glenn Corbett will guest-star in "The Masai Rebels" segment of NBC Television Network's "Born Free," now in production in Kenya.

Also set for an episode is Susan Dey for "A Matter of Survival," scheduled to follow "Masai" in filming.

Richard Benedict will direct the "Masai" segment, and Jack Couffer directs "Survival."

Gary Collins and Diana Muldaur star in "Born Free," which has been in production since early in May. The new series will be color-cast on NBC-TV Mondays (8-9 p.m. PT) starting this fall.

TUNING IN ON TELEVISION

By JACK GAVER

NBC has scheduled a three-hour prime-time program for next Jan. 9 that will examine the changing relations between men and women in this country.

One of next season's "Movie of the Week" on ABC will have a script by actress Yvette Mimieux, her first screenplay. She also will star in "The Deadly Touch." The same movie has writer Tracy Keenan Wynn trying his hand at something new — he will direct it.

Four 90-minute dramas based on the life of Benjamin Franklin will be broadcast by CBS during the 1974-75 season.

Lloyd Bridges and his son, Beau, will appear in the first one, which will show Franklin as a youth. Eddie Albert will be the Franklin of the third episode, showing him as a diplomat in France during the American Revolution. Melvyn Douglas will play Franklin in his final years.

The second episode, which deals with Franklin in London trying to get concessions to prevent the Revolution, does not yet have a star for the role.

A mini-series for NBC during the 1975-76 season will be an English-made set of specials based on the life of King Edward VII. The title is "The Royal Victorians — Victoria, Albert and Edward." Sir John Gielgud and Noel Willman are among the notable British actors who will appear.

'Planet Of Apes' Star Announced

Roddy McDowall has been signed to star in the new "Planet of the Apes" television series, based on the highly successful motion pictures about a future world in which apes rule over humans.

It will premiere in the fall (Tuesdays), on the CBS Television Network.

McDowall, who starred in four of the five "Planet of the Apes" films as a courageous, inquiring chimpanzee, will play a similar role in the television series. He befriends two astronauts hurled through a time warp into the earth of the future and shares their exciting adventures in a hostile simian society. Roles of the astronauts are still to be cast.

Mark Lenard In 'Planet' Series

Mark Lenard, a regular on the "Here Come the Brides" series, will co-star in the new "Planet of the Apes" television series as Ursus, an ambitious gorilla. The series, based on the popular motion pictures, premieres in the fall (Tuesdays, 8-9 p.m., PT) on the CBS Television Network.

In "Here Come the Brides," Lenard played the the villainous Aaron Stemple. His role in "Planet of the Apes" is that of a menacing gorilla who brutally enforces the law. Herbert Hirschman is executive producer and Stan Hough is producer of the 20th Century-Fox Television production.

Lenard has appeared on Broadway in Lillian Hellman's "My Mother, My Father and Me," and has appeared frequently in stock and off-Broadway productions.

His film credits include "Hang 'em High," "The Greatest Story Ever Told" and "Noon Sunday." He was the narrator of the recent "QB VIII" television special.

'Police Story' Fans Like Vinnie's Bar

One of the first things visitors to the set of NBC Television Network's "Police Story" want to see is Vinnie's Bar.

The set is used in many of the episodes and has become a familiar part of the anthology series. Many tourists are disappointed if the bar is not in use when they visit.

Of course, when the drinks are being served, they are only iced tea, but the spirit is there (no pun intended).

The reasons for wanting to see the bar and Vinnie are as varied as the visitors.

As one man put it: "It seems like such a friendly place and Vinnie seems like such a nice fellow."

Another comment: "It reminds me a little of my favorite bar back home."

A lady observed: "I always feel like I could walk into Vinnie's bar and not have to worry about running into any trouble."

Still another reaction: I wish we had a place like Vinnie's at home."

Whether you've had the good fortune to visit the establishment in person or only see it on the Tuesday nights it is on television, Vinnie's is one of the most famous and popular bars in the country.

And Vinnie — he's Scott Brady, who has been portraying the character ever since the place opened.

Actor Plays Role In Real Life, Too

Joel Crothers, who plays Julian Cannell in NBC-TV's "Somerset," was summoned for jury duty, and the writers of the daytime series decided to "put him on jury duty" in the script as well.

Several fellow jurors, seeing Crothers in the courthouse, remarked to him: "You really are on jury duty, aren't you?"

FOR BARBARA WALTERS

Where did you receive your education, and what was your major field of study?—S. Provence, New Shrewsbury, N.J.

● I graduated from Sarah Lawrence College with a Bachelor of Arts degree. I loved working with children, so I planned to teach. While studying toward my masters degree in education, I felt that I'd like to work as well, so I applied for a job in the then relatively new field of television. I never left it. I believe young people shouldn't worry about having to decide exactly what they want to do in terms of a career. Study what you love most. The rest will follow, and the new directions may surprise you.

Aren't you and Peter Falk and James Caan in business together?—A. F. F., Lancaster, Pa.

● Yes. A few years ago Peter, Jimmy, a couple of other guys and I bought 2,500 acres in central California. We tried various ways of getting an income out of it. One day it occurred to me that it might do well with grapes. So we tested the soil and water and hired all sorts of experts. We wanted to be sure if we raised grapes, they'd be the expensive kind! So that's what we're doing now.

FOR MARY TYLER MOORE

You wear the most with-it clothes on your show. Do you choose your own wardrobe, or does someone "dress" you?—Dianne Engelhardt, Poughkeepsie, N.Y.

● Thank you! I know the way I want to look on the show, and Leslie Hall, our wardrobe lady, finds things that I okay. Occasionally we have to have something made special, but not often.

FOR FLORENCE HENDERSON, star of "The Brady Bunch"

Do you often get annoyed by fans?—F. Leek, San Antonio, Texas

● The only ones who really upset me are the ones who yell at me clear across the floor of a department store. I get so embarrassed! Also, I don't care for the ones who grab me and won't let go. Not long ago a man came up and grabbed my arm and insisted he was the cameraman on my show! I knew he wasn't, but the poor man really thought he was!

FOR FLIP WILSON

I saw you recently in a Santa Monica bowling alley. Do you bowl regularly?—Cynthia Adkins, Santa Monica, Calif.

● I bowl occasionally, but only Geraldine and Killer know my average score.

FOR GOV. GEORGE WALLACE (D-Ala.)

Is it true you have discontinued your acupuncture treatments?—Leo Lester, Chicago, Ill.

● Yes. It's been hard for me to determine what effect, if any, these treatments have had on my recovery. I don't anticipate going back.

FOR SEN. GEORGE McGOVERN (D-S.D.)

How much money was donated to your 1972 presidential campaign by corporations?—Thomas Doran, Austin, Texas

● To the best of my knowledge there was not one dime of corporate money contributed to my 1972 presidential campaign, and not one dime of contributions was solicited from any corporation on my behalf.

FOR BILLY MARTIN, manager of the Texas Rangers

Since you seem to hate umpires, would you like to see "instant replay" take over their jobs?—John Foster, Atlantic City, N.J.

● Instant replay, if it could be worked in without embarrassing the umpire, would certainly help the game. It would eliminate human error. But unless they can perfect it, we'll have to stay with our present system. To set the record straight: I don't think baseball would be baseball without umpires and the loyalty that they have given to the game.

FOR CATHY RIGBY, gymnast

How old were you when you started doing gymnastics?—Susan Fulmer, Kokomo, Ind.

● I really began when I was ten. Then, a year later, my father took me to Bud Marquette, who, after watching me work out in his gym, became my coach. That was ten years ago. My youngest sister, Jill, who is ten, now works out with me each day on the parallel bars.

FOR THE ASK THEM YOURSELF EDITOR

Is it true that Aristotle Onassis is helping the U.S. in the energy crisis?—Amy Lang, Somerville, N.J.

● Yes—and no. Onassis, through his company, Olympic Refineries, has been attempting to erect a large oil refinery in New Hampshire. This was not an altruistic venture, but rather a business one. Due to tremendous resistance from citizens and ecology groups, Onassis attempted to change the site to Rhode Island—but the hostility generated by citizens of the nation's smallest state was no less fierce. So now the husband of the former Jacqueline Bouvier Kennedy is looking for a friendlier place.

Sheriff Buford Pusser: The Making of a New American Hero

Daniel Kramer

"If I could have foreseen what would happen to Pauline, I would have moved away. As for what it cost me physically—well, I can't say it was worth it, but I couldn't have done otherwise without hating myself the rest of my life."—Sheriff Buford Pusser

Every weekend this summer hundreds of people will drive hundreds of miles to visit a farmhouse in the small town of Adamsville, in the southwestern corner of Tennessee. They are making a pilgrimage to the home of Buford Pusser, a man they see as an American folk hero in the classic mold.

Pusser won fame as a young sheriff who would not be bought or beaten by criminals. With fists, club, gun, raw courage and steadfast determination, he smashed a vicious vice and gambling ring that was terrorizing and corrupting his McNairy County. Pusser's crusade —accomplished at the terrible cost of his own disfiguring wounds and the murder of his wife—is dramatized in "Walking Tall," a movie that has become a national phenomenon. The film has already earned more than $35 million. Audiences literally stand and applaud when it is over. But beyond its emotional appeal and box-office success, it has stirred up a moral debate.

To most of those who see it, the picture reaffirms basic values that seem in short supply these days: honesty, guts, devotion to duty. "I don't want to sound like a braggart," says Pusser, "but people nowadays are hungry for a hero. And there aren't many around. The folks who come to visit me, who write and call me, do so because I gave them something to believe in—a strong and incorruptible leader."

But others who see the film come away disquieted. They are concerned at the image it presents of a lawman who fights violence with violence, who breaks the law in order to enforce it. Pusser can understand this reaction, but he is honestly puzzled by it. "Some people treat me as if I am the criminal," he says perplexedly. "Sometimes I think our society is getting too complicated—seeing right things in what's wrong and wrong things in what's right."

A few weeks ago I talked with Buford Pusser to find out how the making of "Walking Tall" has affected his life and his thinking. At 36, Pusser is a gentle giant of a man. He is six-and-a-half-feet tall, weighs 250 pounds, and his hand enfolds yours like a catcher's mitt. His voice is Southern-drawl soft. Although he has needed 15 plastic-surgery operations to correct facial gunshot wounds, and his shot-away jaw is rebuilt out of metal mesh, he is still ruggedly handsome.

Buford (you just naturally call him by his first name) spends most of his time these days on the lecture circuit, speaking to college audiences, civic clubs, business groups. Though he's told his story hundreds of times, he does not seem bored at repeating it once more. Born in Adamsville, Buford was raised by hardworking, churchgoing, strict parents. "I had to do what I was told, or else," he says. "If I got a whipping at school I wouldn't dare tell my pa. He'd want to know why, and then give me another one!"

After high school graduation Buford joined the Marines, but was discharged within a few months because he suffered severe asthmatic attacks. After he recovered from a broken back (suffered in a car wreck), Buford went to Chicago to visit his brother and look for work. He drove an ambulance, went to morticians' school, and became a professional wrestler. When he could no longer stomach "being told when to lose and when to win," he and his wife Pauline decided to go back home and buy a farm.

"I went down myself the first time to look for some land," Buford says. With a friend, he went to one of the illegal gambling roadhouses that clustered around the state line, where Tennessee, Mississippi and Alabama meet. Out $300 at the dice table, Buford noticed the dice were loaded. When he asked for his money back he was brutally beaten, knifed and thrown in a ditch to die. Somehow he managed to crawl back to the highway where a trucker picked him up. Buford needed 200 stitches. This incident opens the "Walking Tall" movie.

"The county sheriff wouldn't do a thing about it," Buford recalls. "I didn't realize then that he was on the syndicate's payroll." But Buford's pride—and inner hurt—were too great for him simply to walk away. Armed only with a huge hickory stick ("It's what loggers call a 'short standard,' that holds the logs in place on a truck") Buford returned to the roadhouse, beat the daylights out of his tormentors, and got his $300 back. He was charged with assault and armed robbery, tried, and acquitted. But from then on he was, literally and figuratively, a marked man. And a driven one.

"I saw wide-open corruption, people being beaten and ruined, the law violated and laughed at. No one else

TRY THIS NEW PIPE "FREE"

So different that it's patented by the UNITED STATES GOVERNMENT patent number 3267941

"MAGIC INCH"

This top grade Mediterranean briar incorporates a sensational invention that contradicts every idea you've ever had about pipe smoking. It completely eliminates breaking-in. Tars, sludge, bite, and bitterness never reach your mouth. You get cleaner, cooler, tastier, moisture-free thoroughly enjoyable smoking. You can try it before you buy it.

E. A. Carey

Give it 30 days—

No cigarette, no cigar, nor any other pipe can give you the full rich flavor, aroma, deep down satisfaction, enjoyment, and peace of mind that you get from a Carey Pipe.

You may be a pipe smoker with a rack full of pipes and still searching for the ideal smoke, or perhaps you would like to switch to a pipe to cut down on cigarettes or expensive cigars.

The Carey Pipe may look like any ordinary pipe, but it's a lot different! In fact, there's nothing like it in the whole world. The Carey Pipe is made of the finest aged Mediterranean briar — but, its big secret lies in the exclusive patented "MAGIC INCH," cleverly concealed in a bite proof nylon stem.

It's Not a Filter

The "Magic Inch" is not a filter that gets soggy and loaded with foul smelling goo. A soggy, foul smelling filter transmits its stale foul odor into each successive puff of smoke, creating more problems than it solves.

It's Not a Trap

The "Magic Inch" is not a trap collecting moisture that gurgles with every draw. It is not a trap that must be cleaned after every smoke.

It's Almost Magic

Not my magic but NATURE'S OWN MAGIC. Warm winds pick up moisture by evaporation from the oceans, lakes, rivers, and streams, lift it high into the atmosphere where the cooler upper air squeezes it into drops of water that fall back to earth in its most perfect state of purity. Just as the colder upper air of the atmosphere causes rain, the cool air entering the "Magic Inch" chamber through the special louvers of the patented Carey stem, causes immediate condensation of the moisture in the smoke where it drops to the bottom of the chamber, is absorbed by the natural fiber sleeve of the "Magic Inch," and in turn, is evaporated into the outside air. No accumulation ever remains to form sludge or slugs of bitter tasting goo. The "Magic Inch" also mixes purifying oxygen with the smoke from the tobacco, in perfectly controlled proportions, cooling the smoke, eliminating all tongue bite, and creating MELLOWNESS, MILDNESS, and SWEETNESS that was never before enjoyed in pipe smoking.

Today, over one hundred and fifty thousand pipe smokers smoke Carey Pipes almost exclusively. They all got started by accepting my most unusual offer to test a Carey Pipe for 30 days, without any risk on their part whatsoever.

They were all granted the same option which is yours also. After 30 days, if you agree that the Carey Pipe is the best smoke of your life, you may keep it; if you don't agree, whack it with a hammer and return the broken pieces to me. The trial has cost you nothing! How many businesses are that sure of their product?

Sheriff Buford Pusser

seemed willing to do anything about it, so I decided to run for sheriff."

The crime ring laughed when Pusser entered the campaign. But when, at the age of 26, he was elected, they decided that if they couldn't lick him, they could buy him. "I was told that if I played along," says Buford, "I'd find $250 in my car every week." When he replied by confiscating two new cars filled with illegal whiskey, he was offered $500, and then $1,000 a week. "I just smiled and walked away," Buford recalls. "I guess I was set on showing them there was somebody ready to stand up for his beliefs. When you grow up in a family that taught you right from wrong, you are going to know it always, and do it always."

For the next six years (he was reelected twice) Buford Pusser lived with violence and death. "There were at least 30 joints running wide open—girls, booze, gambling," he says. "People by the hundreds would pour in from three states, and every weekend there were fights, shoot-outs. I'd go round alone [later he had deputies] and arrest as many people as I could get into my sheriff's car."

When the syndicate realized they could not buy Pusser, they tried to scare him off. At first they harassed him with middle-of-the-night phone threats and trumped-up legal charges. Then they attacked him. Once Buford stopped a car for speeding and the couple in it fired four bullets into him. A girl posing as a hitchhiker stabbed him. Another car simply tried to run over him. His home was shot into. His dog was killed. All of this unbelievable onslaught is in the movie, with Joe Don Baker playing Pusser.

"I had no choice but to stand and fight," says Buford quietly. "Even my wife realized that if I quit or ran away it would have been too much for me to bear—to be unable to live and hold up my head in the town where I was born!"

Buford worried about his wife and children (his daughter Dwana was six years old then, and his adopted son Michael was 12), "but I thought, 'Surely they won't be so vicious as to hurt my family.'" To his horror and despair, Buford learned differently. One day, when Pauline was in the car with him, gunmen ambushed them. A fusillade of bullets cut Buford down, destroying his jaw. Pauline was killed.

Up to this point the movie closely parallels reality (80 percent of it is true to life, says Pusser), but after Pauline's death fact and fiction diverge. In the picture, the sheriff, his face in a grotesque cast, drives away from the cemetery to confront the killers.

In fact, Pusser was hospitalized for months. One of the gunmen was killed years later in a gang war, and another is in jail for a different crime. So far as Pusser knows, the syndicate's ringleaders were never caught. On the other hand, the ambush did set off a civic uproar. People who "didn't want to get involved" suddenly realized they had to. A whole new set of town officials was elected in a "clean-up" campaign. The state-line joints were closed down. "It's just too bad," says Pusser, "that it takes such a tragic event to make folks willing to take a stand."

Pusser's story has raised a storm of controversy. Mainly, those who criticize the film say it glorifies violence, making it seem necessary and just.

Is that really the message? I asked Buford. Is that what your life tells all those youngsters who see you as a hero?

"I don't advocate violence," he replied. "I'm basically a gentle person. But you have to stand up strong for your principles, defend yourself against those who threaten your survival. If you could only see the reception I get when I travel. I don't get that kind of treatment for being violent. I get it because I stood up for my principles. I don't say that what I did was right. Possibly it was wrong. But it was what I thought was right – the only thing I knew to do at the time. If I could have foreseen what would happen to Pauline, I would have moved away. As for what it cost me physically—well, I can't say it was worth it, but I couldn't have done otherwise without hating myself the rest of my life."

Pusser admits some folks in Adamsville don't approve of him. "They'll tell

An Epic View of the Sheriff

"Buford Pusser struck me as a heroic figure right out of the Old West. Like Wyatt Earp or Bat Masterson, he acted alone, out of his own conviction. I think he is a simple, honest, average guy. He didn't want any trouble, but the trouble came to him. The difference between Pusser and the classic American Western characters who have been our heroes is that Pusser is still alive and real and lecturing about his experiences all over the country. I don't think he sat around and decided to be all the things that he is. Pusser seems to live by the philosophy that if anybody wants to get rid of him, they'll have to be bigger and better and stronger than he is. I suspect he learned some of his behavior from the old movies of Gary Cooper and Randolph Scott."

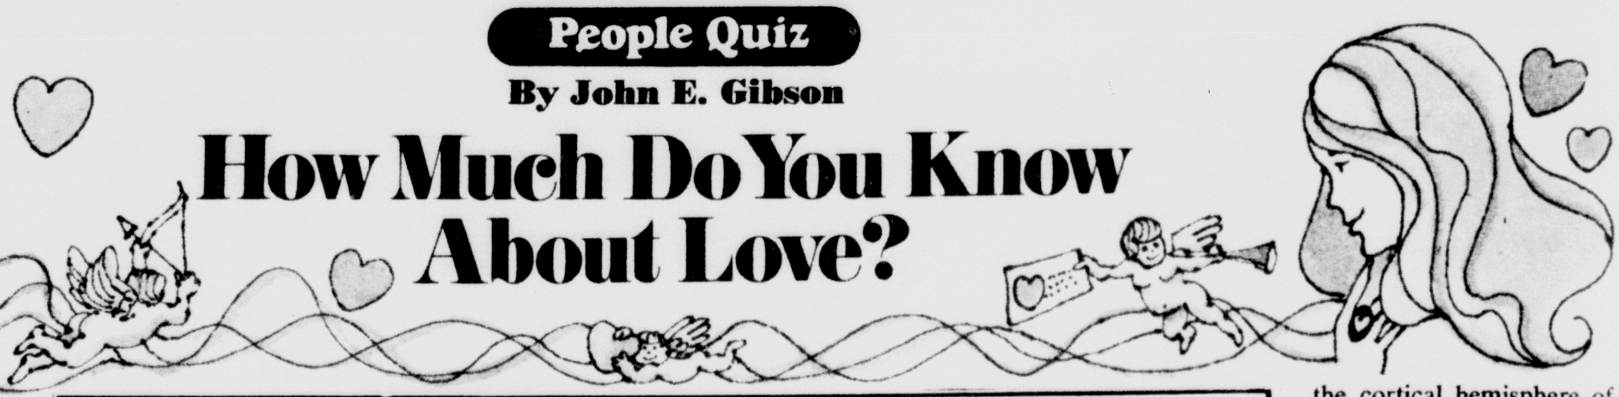
People Quiz

By John E. Gibson

How Much Do You Know About Love?



True or False: Many people fall in love with someone they don't even know and have never met. (See number 5)

TRUE OR FALSE?

1. People who are the least likely to fall in love casually are those with the most well-adjusted, well-balanced personalities.

2. In matters of romance, the go-getter, man-of-achievement type tends to be attracted to the best-looking girls, while his opposite number shies away from them, because he's afraid of rejection.

3. When whispering "sweet nothings" into a loved one's ear, use the right ear—and your message will register better.

4. Neurotics tend to fall in love with each other.

5. Many people fall in love with someone they don't even know and have never met.

6. An unhappy love affair may take some time to recover from completely, but it seldom results in real depression.

ANSWERS

1. False. In a University of Pennsylvania study, over one thousand students were given personality tests. It was found that students with superior personality test scores fell in love or became infatuated just as often as those whose scores left something to be desired. It would appear that romantic love is no respecter of persons, regardless of how well-balanced they happen to be mentally and emotionally.

2. False—according to the findings of a Harvard University study in which undergraduates of both personality types were given their choice of dating one of five girls—each with varying physical attractiveness. Results: "Subjects chose the most attractive girl, regardless of their own level of achievement motivation or the probability of being rejected."

3. True. As evidenced by university studies which show that "in speech sounds, there is a preference for the right ear to attend better than the left ear." Persons were found to respond faster to ideas and suggestions presented to the right ear than to the left ear. Though the difference was not great, the right ear was found "to give consistently better responses." Why should this be? One team of investigators suggests that it may be that the cortical hemisphere of th brain that connects to the rigl ear is better endowed than th one serving the left ear. Re searchers at the University c Western Ontario have foun that for non-speech sounds laughing, crying, melody, etc. "a significant left ear superiorit was found."

4. True. According to a stud of interpersonal relationship between the sexes conducted a the University of California which showed that men an women with neurotic tendencie were inclined to be romanticall attracted to each other.

5. True. They fall in love witl celebrities of every type and de scription, ranging from movi heroes and heroines to hand some politicians and footbal stars. This phantom relationshi may run the gamut from mere infatuation to lasting and rap turous adoration. Sometimes i results in a stronger emotiona tie than the individual ever feels in real life. Dr. Stanley E. Wil lis, adjunct professor of Law Forensic Medicine and Psychia try at the University of San Diego, Calif., has made an extensive study of the falling-in-love-with-celebrities phenomenon. The celebrity, he finds, "is usually cast in a fantasy role as an ideal partner. The unsullied celebrity hero or heroine cannot help but look good when compared with the tired American husband or wife." The celebrity, he adds, "comes to represent a character concocted from materials which the person's own experience and psychological set have provided. To fall in love with a celebrity is really to fall in love with a character we ourselves have manufactured."

6. False. There are few things that lower morale more than being on the losing end of an unrequited love situation. In one psychological study of romantic love and depression conducted at a leading university, it was found that, in 59 percent of depressed men and women students, "depression was found to be clearly linked with a love affair."

Let the cares of the day drift by as you create a magic mood on your patio. Start with the right people, fragrant blossoms and the light of glowing candles. Then just relax and enjoy these delicious recipes. Presto! An outdoor dinner becomes a memorable occasion.

Great Barbecue Dinners for A Night to Remember

SURPRISE SEAFOOD PACKETS

Per serving:
- ⅓ lb. haddock fillet
- ½ lobster tail (cut completely through shell lengthwise with scissors)
- 4 clams in the shell, scrubbed
- 4 mussels in the shell, scrubbed
- 3 large shrimp in the shell
- Heavy-duty foil square

Garlic-Herb Sauce (makes 6 servings):
- 3 cloves garlic, crushed
- 1 cup butter or margarine
- ½ teaspoon tarragon leaves
- ½ teaspoon rosemary leaves
- ½ teaspoon thyme leaves
- ¼ cup lemon juice
- 2 teaspoons salt
- Few twists freshly ground black pepper
- Hot Italian bread in foil

1. Place haddock fillet, lobster tail, clams, mussels and shrimp on large square of heavy-duty aluminum foil. Make up as many as you need.

2. Make Garlic-Herb Sauce: In saucepan combine garlic, butter, tarragon, rosemary, thyme, lemon juice, salt and pepper. Heat, stirring, until butter melts.

3. Sprinkle each seafood arrangement with 3-4 tablespoons Garlic-Herb Sauce. Wrap foil around seafood, sealing securely with double fold across top and at ends.

4. Place on preheated foil-lined barbecue grill over medium-hot coals and grill about 15-20 minutes. (Or bake in preheated oven at 425°F. about 25 minutes.) Packets are ready when fish and lobster are tender and clams and mussels steam open.

YOU-NAME-IT SKILLET

In skillet fry ¼ lb. coarsely chopped bacon and ½ cup chopped onion. Add 1 lb. hamburger and cook, breaking up meat with spoon until it loses its red color. Drain off all fat. Add 2 cans (10½-oz. size) vegetable soup, 1 can (1 lb.) lima beans or other vegetable, drained. Heat to boiling. Just before serving stir in ¼ to ½ lb. Cheddar cheese cubes, heat till cheese is half-melted. Spoon mixture over toasted English muffins, hot corn-bread squares, noodles or toast. Makes 5 servings

EASY SKILLET MACARONI

In large skillet fry 2 slices chopped bacon. Add 1 cup chopped onion, ½ cup chopped green pepper; cook until tender. Add 1 lb. ground beef, cook, breaking up meat with spoon until it loses red color. Stir in 2 cans (16-oz. size) tomatoes, ¾ cup uncooked elbow macaroni, 1 teaspoon sugar, 1 teaspoon salt and a ¼ teaspoon ground black pepper. Heat to boiling, stirring. Reduce heat and simmer covered (stirring occasionally) for 20 minutes or until macaroni is done. If desired, just before serving stir in 1 cup American cheese cubes.

Makes 6 servings

5. Heat foil-wrapped Italian bread 10 minutes on grill or 5 minutes in (425°F.) oven.

6. Place packets on individual serving plates. Open at table and serve with hot Italian bread to "sop up" the fantastic seafood broth.

Makes as many as desired, sauce is for 6 servings

BEAUTIFUL BEEFSTEAK TOMATO AND ONION SALAD

1 head butter, bronze-leaf or garden lettuce, washed and crisp
3 large (2 lbs.) beefsteak tomatoes, thickly sliced
1 large (12 ozs.) sweet Spanish onion, thickly sliced
2 tablespoons tarragon vinegar
6 tablespoons vegetable oil
1 tablespoon finely chopped parsley
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon sugar
1-2 tablespoons finely chopped fresh herbs (chives, thyme, basil or oregano)
Few twists freshly ground black pepper

1. Arrange beds of lettuce on attractive serving plates. Top with slices of tomato, randomly alternating with onion slices. Refrigerate, covered with foil, if not serving immediately.

2. In small bowl combine remaining ingredients; stir to mix. Or blend about 10 seconds in blender.

3. Just before serving, drizzle dressing over salad. Makes 6 servings

PRALINE ICE-CREAM RING WITH STRAWBERRIES

Butter
¾ cup unblanched almonds
1½ cups granulated sugar
½ teaspoon cream of tartar
2 qts. vanilla ice cream, slightly softened
1 qt. strawberries, preferably fresh with stems, or just-thawed whole*
Mint sprigs

1. Butter a 13x15-inch sheet of heavy-duty foil lightly and fold up edges ½ inch.

2. In medium-sized heavy skillet place almonds, sugar and cream of tartar. Cook over medium heat, stirring, until sugar liquefies and becomes a rich caramel-amber color. (Almonds will be toasting.) Pour hot caramelized syrup onto prepared foil. Let cool.

3. Break into large chunks with mallet or wooden spoon. Pulverize to medium-fine consistency between two sheets of foil. Or blend medium-fine in blender.

4. In large bowl combine slightly softened ice cream with ½ of praline powder. No need to combine smoothly; leave ripples of praline in ice cream.

5. Pack ice cream firmly into foil-lined 6-cup ring mold. Cover with foil, freeze until firm.

6. Unmold onto plate just before serving. (A silver or glass plate would be an excellent choice.) Place strawberries in center and around outside. Garnish with small bouquet of mint sprigs. Makes 6-8 servings

*Frozen raspberries may be used also.

MEMORABLE MENU #2

Guacamole Stuffed Celery*
Grilled Steak With Madeira Sauce*
Skillet Green Tomatoes*
Savory Baked Limas*
Sangria
Salty Rye Twists
Good Earth Salad*
Brandied Peach Pie
Coffee Tea

*Recipe given

GUACAMOLE STUFFED CELERY

1 stalk (bunch) celery, chilled
2 ripe avocados, mashed
½ cup minced onion
1½ tablespoons lemon juice
1½ teaspoons salt
3-4 drops hot-pepper sauce
1 cup chopped tomato

1. Trim stem end of celery; cut off leaf portion (save for soups, salads, etc.).

2. Separate celery into ribs. Rinse in cold water and dry; wrap in plastic film or plastic bag and refrigerate.

3. In a medium bowl combine avocados, onion, lemon juice, salt and hot-pepper sauce. Stir in tomato. Refrigerate covered if not stuffing celery right away.

4. Use about 3-4 tablespoons guacamole mixture to fill each celery rib; cut in half or leave whole. Arrange on a colorful serving plate, red or yellow would be excellent. Serve immediately. Makes 2½ cups

Guacamole mixture may also be used as a dip, with celery ribs arranged in an upright container.

GOOD EARTH SALAD

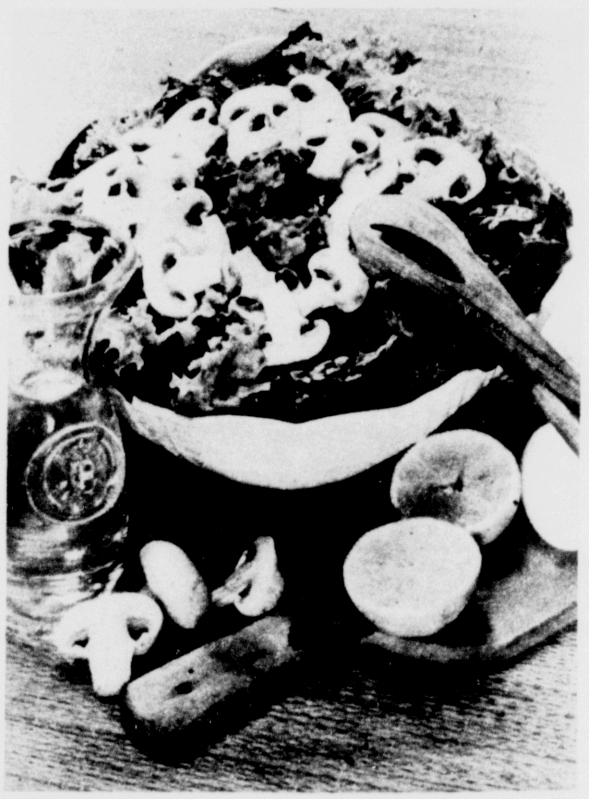
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon sugar
¼ teaspoon powdered mustard
Few twists freshly ground black pepper
⅔ cup olive or vegetable oil
¼ cup lemon juice
1 hard-cooked egg, chopped
1 tablespoon chopped parsley
1 lb. fresh mushrooms, sliced, or 2 cans (6-8 ozs. each) sliced mushrooms, drained
1½ qts. washed, chilled, torn lettuce and spinach leaves
6 slices crisp-cooked bacon, crumbled

1. In large bowl make dressing: Combine salt, sugar, mustard and pepper. Add oil, lemon juice, egg and parsley. Stir to blend.

2. Toss mushrooms in dressing; allow to marinate 5 minutes.

3. Just before serving, add lettuce, spinach and bacon. Toss well.

Makes 6 servings



Good Earth Salad—a whole bowlful of fine ingredients.

GRILLED STEAK WITH MADEIRA SAUCE

1¾-2 lb. flank steak
4 tablespoons butter or margarine
3 cups thinly sliced onions

Wine Sauce:

1 cup dry red wine
⅓ cup Madeira or port wine
2 beef bouillon cubes, crushed, or 2 teaspoons instant beef bouillon
10 twists freshly ground black pepper

1. Preheat broiler if required. Or prepare and light charcoal or grill.

2. Trim steak of excess fat. Cut into each end about 2 inches to prevent curling.

3. Place steak on grill over medium-hot coals, about 4 inches from source of heat. Broil 5 minutes first side, turn; broil about 3 minutes second side for medium-rare.

4. While steak cooks heat butter until melted, add onion rings. Cook, stir-

America's quality cigarette introduces

THE KENT GALLERY

The Classic English Picnic Hamper. Handwoven wicker case elegantly fitted with four place settings of English china, stainless steel flatware, two vacuum bottles and serving/storage containers. $99.00.

As a Kent smoker, you obviously have a taste for quality.

Now, your favorite cigarette gives you the opportunity to express that taste through an international showcase of items selected for their workmanship, beauty, value.

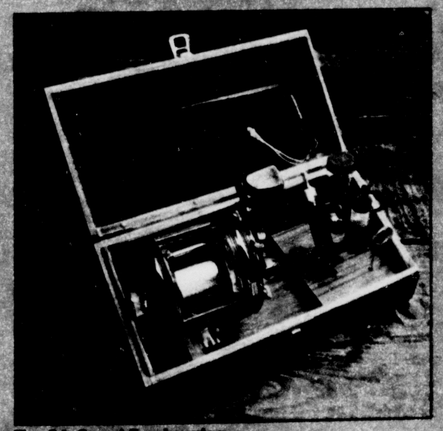
THE GREAT WEEKEND

Here are some very special ways to get away from it all. A collection we've assembled just for the fun of it—and for you to order for yourself, your friends and your family.

Warning: The Surgeon General Has Determined That Cigarette Smoking Is Dangerous to Your Health.

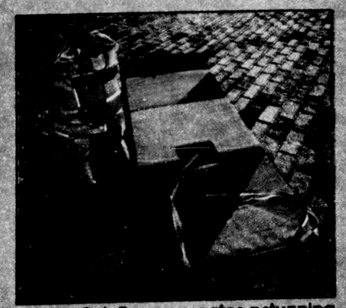
The World's Smallest 35mm. The Swiss-made Tessina 35. Only 5½ ounces yet uses standard 35mm film. Lens stops from F/2.8 to F/22; shutter speeds from 1/2 to 1/500th second. Built in light-meter. Comes complete with leather case, tripod plate, neck chain. In gold or black. $302.50. (Additional accessories available at extra cost.)

The Kent Sunday Bag. Heavy duty, water repellent duck with handsome full grain leather trim and shoulder strap. Deep zippered leather pocket. A Kent Gallery exclusive. $22.50. (Note: clubs, tees and ball not included.)



The 24-Carat Freshwater Reel. Garcia's gold-plated Ambassadeur. Stainless-steel ball bearings, two sets of brakes for near perfect backlash control. Teak case filled with spare spool, reel tool, oil and spare parts. $75.00. (Specify name to be engraved on case—16 letter maximum.)

Pool-side Pool. Mallets are your cue sticks in this lawn version of pool. Five different ways to play croquet, too. Fashioned from sturdy Maine hardwood, set includes four mallets, balls, stakes, sideboards (for 4' x 17' playing area), galvanized wickets and complete rule book. $22.50.



Totalitote 2. Designer Bob Rogers creates a stunning abstraction around a 72" x 24" foam rubber beach pallet. Fits into its own coordinated 26½" x 12" (dia.) tote. Water-repellent cotton canvas. A variation on the original displayed last fall at New York's Museum of Contemporary Crafts. Limited offer. $49.50.

Amazing new weight control program so astounding, so revolutionary, so easy-to-follow you will demand to know its secrets!

YES, YOU CAN BECOME SUDDENLY SLIM!

 No Hunger Pangs * No Drugs * No Gadgets * No Exercise * No Calorie Counting.

THOUSANDS of overweight and fat people have come to me for help. NOW I Can help YOU. I can show you how to take off 10, 20, 30, 50 and even more pounds of ugly fat, PERMANENTLY. My method is safe, fast and EXCITING. You don't need WILL POWER. There are NO pills. NO frustration! NO fad foods! NO shots! NO hunger pangs! THOUSANDS OF FAT PEOPLE of all ages have achieved DRAMATIC WEIGHT LOSS With this program. SLIM PEOPLE have successfully MAINTAINED their WEIGHT with this program. They all call it "AMAZING", even "MIRACULOUS!" In fact, without even meeting you, I can safely predict that with this PROVED PLAN, YOU, TOO, no matter how fat you are, can be SUDDENLY SLIM!

YES, you read that correctly. You can be suddenly slim. BY SUDDENLY I mean a few short weeks or months (depending upon how much you need to lose). By SLIM I mean the total loss of every ounce of ugly fat on your body. I don't care if you've always been fat. I don't care if you think that fat is glandular in origin and you haven't got a chance. Less than 2 out of 100 have gland problems. I don't care if you're already on some magic formula. (Ask yourself, is it really working? Is it really magic?)

YOU WERE NOT BORN TO BE FAT

Let's face it, excess weight is KILLING YOU slowly but surely. Did you know you have SEVEN MILES OF ADDITIONAL CAPILLARIES for every pound of extra FAT? The human body was not created to suffer the STRESS of CHOKING FAT. Sooner or later, with continued weight gain, your body will just give up and stop! CHOKED TO DEATH BY FAT. And then, of course, it's too late. BUT NOW YOU STILL HAVE TIME. With the SUDDENLY SLIM plan YOU CAN LOSE 10, 20, EVEN 50 or MORE POUNDS Without PILLS, SHOTS, FAD DIETS, HUNGER PANGS, WILL POWER, CALORIE COUNTING And MAINTAIN YOUR SLIMNESS for the rest of your life! Yes, at last you can MAINTAIN YOUR SLIMNESS or LOSE WEIGHT SUCCESSFULLY without suffering through each pound of weight loss. My simple weight control plan works. It will teach you how to eat all over again. It will teach you how to think—Think Thin!

YOU WILL NOTICE THE EFFECTS AFTER JUST ONE WEEK. By the time you've lost every ounce of fat on your body, you will be a NEW PERSON. People won't recognize you. AT LAST, your PERSONALITY will express itself, FULLY, RICHLY, BEAUTIFULLY.

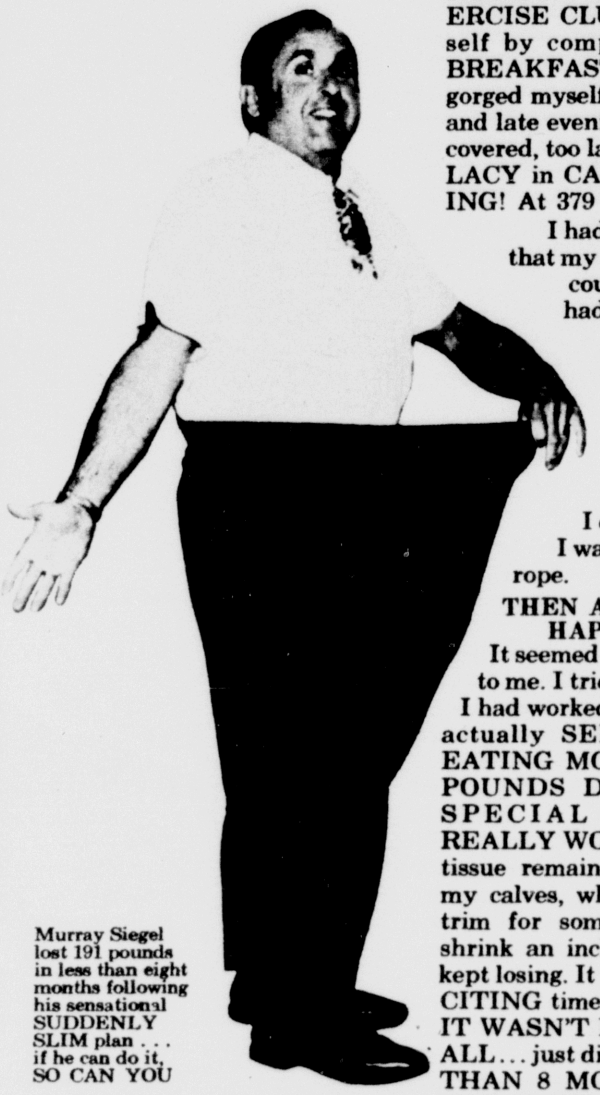
You may find this hard to believe. You may be skeptical. You may be wishing for all of these "slim" benefits to total living . . . but you're blocking them out.

STOP THINKING FAT!

Let me introduce myself: My name is Murray Siegel. I am the founder and director of Think Thin, Inc., a weight control organization that has HELPED THOUSANDS of overweight people who were ready to throw in the towel. When these people, OVERWEIGHT LIKE YOU, wanted to see an example of a weight-control plan that really works permanently and healthfully... I STEPPED FORWARD. YES, I AM LIVING PROOF THAT THIS PLAN WORKS! Believe it or not, a few years ago, I BROKE THE SCALES at 379 pounds! (That's me in the photo standing in my old "Two-ton" trousers.) I was in total misery after a life of ugly obesity. I couldn't stand being fat another minute. My wife and children were ashamed of me. I couldn't give my son the active companionship he craved. My daughter wished her Daddy were like other young fathers. My wife, whose patience was almost limitless, had virtually lost a husband. I WAS A FOODAHOLIC.

MY FAT WORLD CLOSED IN ON ME

By my mid-thirties I was so fat that the only place I could get weighed was at the Post Office ALONG WITH THE MAIL BAGS. This certainly didn't help my ego. Especially since my current doctor insisted I get weighed before each visit. (His scale didn't go over 300.) I must have seen 20 doctors. Each one gave me a new, "never-fail" program. I even saw a HYPNOTIST. I enrolled in an EXERCISE CLUB. I kidded myself by completely omitting BREAKFASTS. (Of course, I gorged myself at lunch, dinner, and late evening snacks.) I discovered, too late, the BIG FALLACY in CALORIE COUNTING! At 379 pounds.



Murray Siegel lost 191 pounds in less than eight months following his sensational SUDDENLY SLIM plan . . . if he can do it, SO CAN YOU

I had reached the limit that my tired, ageing body could stand. My wife had reached her limit with me, too. My children had nothing to be proud of in their two-ton father. I couldn't breathe. I could barely walk. I was at the end of my rope.

THEN A MIRACLE HAPPENED

It seemed like a MIRACLE to me. I tried a NEW PLAN I had worked up on my own. I actually SEEMED TO BE EATING MORE and yet the POUNDS DROPPED. MY SPECIAL PLAN WAS REALLY WORKING! Muscle tissue remained firm. In fact, my calves, which were always trim for some reason, didn't shrink an inch. Day by day I kept losing. It was the most EXCITING time in my life. AND IT WASN'T DIFFICULT AT ALL... just different. IN LESS THAN 8 MONTHS I LOST NOT QUITE 200 LBS.! Better yet, I have MAINTAINED THE LOSS TO THIS DAY! I had lost 191 lbs. easily, quickly WITHOUT PILLS, SHOTS, FAD FOODS, EXPENSE. I am just the perfect weight for my frame and height. What I say to you is simply:

IF I CAN DO IT... SO CAN YOU!

This plan REALLY WORKS. Weight loss is REGULAR and without complications because your diet is well-balanced. Your ENTIRE BODY becomes CHARGED WITH VITALITY. Of course, my family was overjoyed. I became so ACTIVE they couldn't keep up with me. Friends I hadn't seen for a year DIDN'T RECOGNIZE ME! (Some thought I had a FATAL DISEASE.) Actually I did . . . OBESITY . . . and it was GONE FOREVER.

THEN IT STARTED HAPPENING

We were plagued with phone calls day and night. People wanted to know how I did it. I had to get an answering service in self-defense. I called it "THINK THIN" and that is how I started a rewarding new career. You may have seen me on the Mike Douglas Show or on similar programs on national TV. My work has been discussed on many radio shows, at university lectures and before many community service clubs.

AVAILABLE IN THE PRIVACY OF YOUR HOME

The demand was so great I have been pressured into making my plan AVAILABLE TO EVERYONE. To date, my weight control plan has helped thousands of people in private classes. NOW, you can take advantage of my plan in the PRIVACY of your HOME. Just look at what has been done for others and you shouldn't hesitate one minute to grab this opportunity. YES, hundreds of overweight people, like yourself, came to me, followed my SUDDENLY SLIM plan and achieved DRAMATIC WEIGHT LOSS. They regained their self-respect. They became active, useful members of society. Whole new lives opened up for them!

FREE TRIAL MONEY-BACK GUARANTEE

ACTUAL CASE HISTORIES

from My Confidential Files

These are some of my favorite SUCCESS STORIES:

Mrs. R.E., working mother of 5 LOST 97 LBS. in 32 weeks. "I feel as if I have been reborn. My weight loss gave me a better outlook which was instrumental in my receiving a promotion and higher salary."

Mr. E.G., 50, LOST 65 LBS. in 20 weeks. "I was a compulsive eater and am now on the road to staying slim."

Mrs. R.S., 30, LOST 48½ LBS. in 14 weeks. "My biggest thrill is that I now maintain my new weight thanks to Murray Siegel."

Miss C.J., college student, LOST 50 LBS. "Thanks to you I can now look and dress like my own generation."

Mr. H.A., LOST 26 LBS. "I now appear at least 10 years younger . . . have lost 4 inches from my waist and most important, gained a new attitude about food and eating."

Mr. & Mrs. G.E., BOTH LOST 45 LBS. in 4-5 months. "My husband and I have lost a "small person" between us. Now our eyes are opened to a whole new world . . . thanks to Murray Siegel's honest and sincere efforts."

Mrs. G.R., 50, LOST 30 LBS. "Two doctors told me only strict diet and medication would make me slim. As your records show, I achieved my weight goal without medication or starvation. I feel wonderful. Bless you."

Miss N.J., 16, LOST 20 LBS. "This has made me, my friends and my family very happy."

Miss V.B., LOST 59 LBS. "No more heartburn. I feel and look so much better. This has been the best thing that could have happened to me."

Miss R.A., 33, LOST 54 LBS. "I used to be like a fat, old grandmother, huffing and puffing along . . . now I'm a youthful size 9."

Mrs. P.L., 74, LOST 38½ LBS. in 9 months. "I enrolled in your classes at 73, badly crippled with arthritis. All I can say is, if I, now 74 and very inactive, can do this, so can anyone."

ADD IT UP! These eleven cases, involving twelve people, lost a grand total of 578 pounds and all have maintained their weight loss. Don't kid yourself, YOU CAN DO IT, TOO!

Delicious Baked Lima Beans Everybody Will Love ring, about 8-10 minutes, or until as golden-brown as you like.

5. Make Wine Sauce: In small saucepan or heat-proof sauceboat, combine red wine, Madeira, crushed bouillon cubes and freshly ground black pepper. Heat gently just to the boiling point.

6. To serve: Place steak on serving board, spoon onions alongside. Cut steak, diagonally across the grain, into ¼-inch-thick slices. Serve onions with each serving. Ladle a little Wine Sauce over steak, pass remainder.

Makes 4-6 servings, 1¼ cups sauce

SKILLET GREEN TOMATOES

1¾ lbs. green tomatoes, cored
2 tablespoons flour
2 teaspoons sugar
¼ teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon ground black pepper
4 tablespoons vegetable oil

1. Cut tomatoes crosswise into thirds. Coat both sides with flour and sprinkle with sugar, salt and pepper.

2. Heat oil till moderately hot and sauté tomato slices until lightly browned on both sides and just fork-tender. Watch that they don't cook too long and get mushy. Serve immediately.

Makes 6 servings

SAVORY BAKED LIMAS

1 lb. dried baby lima beans
Water
2 cups diced, unpeeled, tart apples
½ cup chopped onion
¼ cup packed dark-brown sugar
¼ cup Worcestershire sauce
¼ cup molasses
2 teaspoons salt
½ lb. salt pork or slab bacon

1. Wash beans; drain. Soak in refrigerator overnight in water 3 inches above surface of beans.

2. Next day, drain beans. Place in 2-qt. bean pot or casserole. Add 2 cups water, apples, onion, sugar, Worcestershire sauce, molasses and salt; stir into beans.

3. Preheat oven to 325°F. Score salt pork, making cuts ½ inch apart and 1 inch deep. Bury pork in center of beans. Cover bean pot.

4. Bake in center of oven for about 5 hours. Stir beans once or twice, adding a little boiling water if necessary.

Makes 6-8 servings

Tips 'n' Topics

FRESH LEMON SQUIRT: Roll a whole fresh lemon on the counter, then poke a toothpick in one end. To use, remove toothpick, squirt desired amount of juice, then replace toothpick. Store in refrigerator, ready to use again the next time you need a squeeze of lemon.

DID YOU KNOW: That spilling a little white wine over a red-wine stain on a shirt, tablecloth or rug helps in removing it?

DID YOU KNOW: When a pie or casserole bubbles over and burns on the oven floor, sprinkle salt on the burned mass. It lets you continue baking without filling the kitchen with smoke and odor.

COPING FOR CONSUMERS: One of the best booklets on food shopping to come to our attention is a new publication: "How the Shrewdest Shoppers Buy and Use Meat, Dairy Products and Eggs," produced by the Ralston-Purina Company. Redd Foxx: "Try My Delicious Lamb Shanks With Gravy!"

Redd stars on NBC's "Sanford and Son."

By Redd Foxx
In conversation with Helen Dorsey

I'm a pretty good cook and can cook almost anything. That's because I used to be a short-order cook in a diner. I fixed everything.

Travel hasn't changed my food habits greatly, but I always go out of my way to order Osso Buco whenever I'm in San Francisco. I've made it at home, but I use lamb shanks, garlic and oregano.

REDD'S LAMB SHANKS

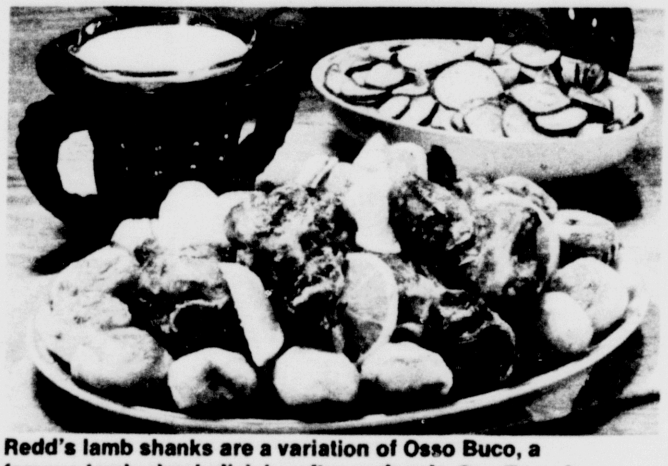
- 6 lamb shanks
- 3 tablespoons flour
- 1 teaspoon salt
- ½ teaspoon pepper
- 1 clove pressed garlic
- 2½ tablespoons Spanish olive oil
- 1 small carrot, minced
- 1 stalk celery, minced
- 1 bay leaf
- 1 teaspoon oregano

For gravy:

- 1 tablespoon flour
- 1 cup water or ½ cup tomato sauce plus ½ cup white wine
- Salt
- Pepper
- 3 orange or lemon slices

1. Preheat oven to 350° F.
2. Coat lamb shanks with mixture of 3 tablespoons flour, salt and pepper. Place in shallow baking dish.
3. Add garlic to oil; pour over all. Sprinkle minced carrot, celery, bay leaf and oregano over shanks.
4. Bake uncovered about 2½ hours, or until crisp on outside.
5. To prepare gravy, strain pan drippings. Blend in flour. Stir in water, salt and pepper to taste. Cook over medium heat, stirring, until thickened. Garnish with orange slices.

Makes 6 servings



Redd's lamb shanks are a variation of Osso Buco, a famous lamb-shank dish he often orders in San Francisco.

REDD'S CHILI MAC

For the meatballs:

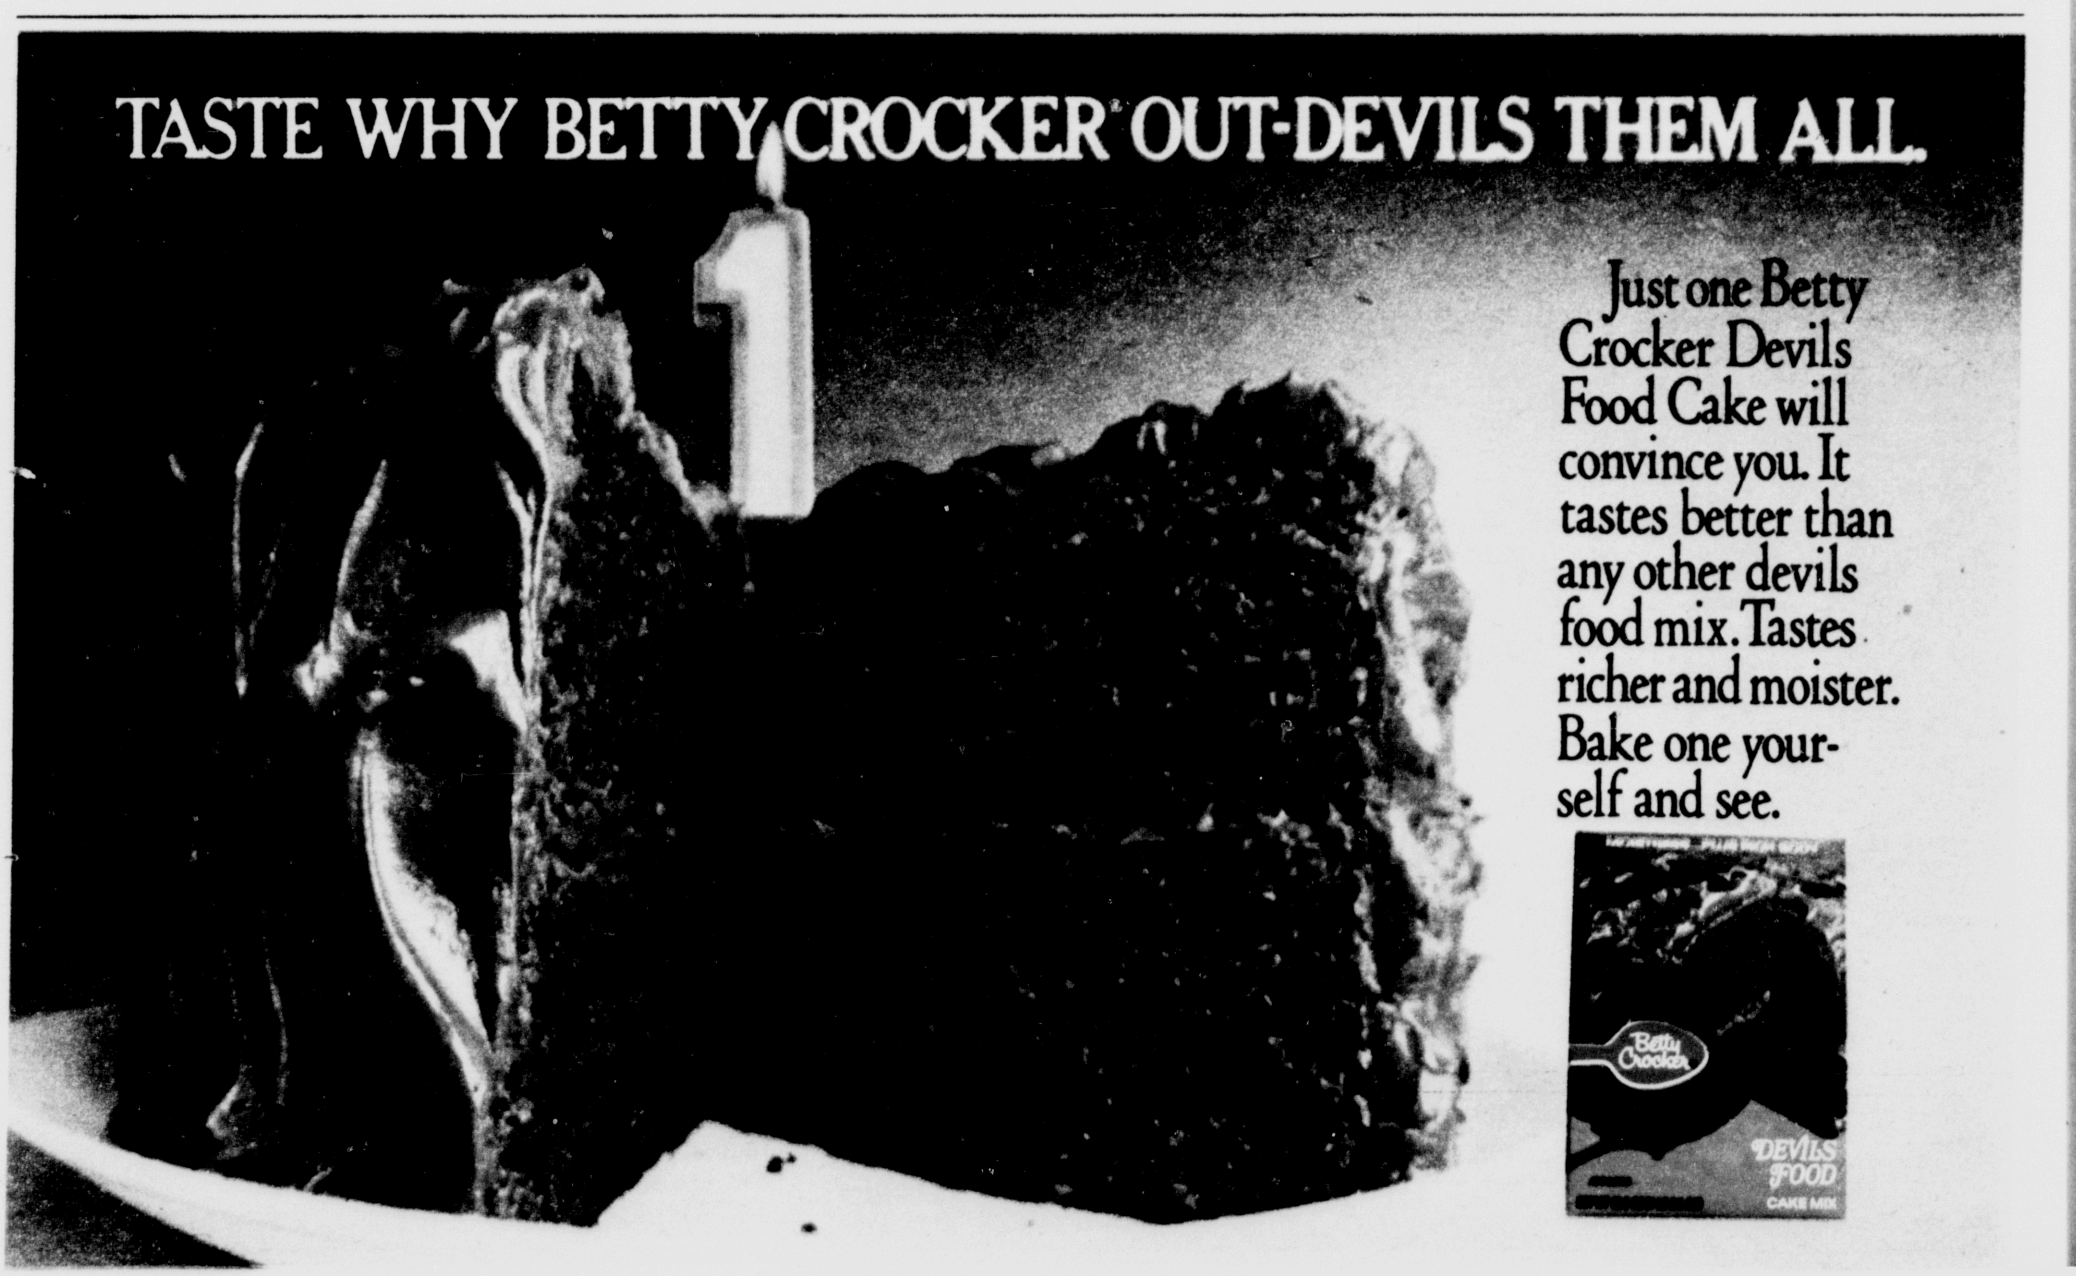
- 1½ lbs. lean ground beef
- ¼ cup chopped parsley
- 1½ teaspoons salt
- ¼ teaspoon freshly ground black pepper
- 2 tablespoons lard or vegetable oil

For sauce and spaghetti:

- ½ cup chopped onion
- 1 medium-sized green pepper, cleaned, cut in large dice
- 3 cloves garlic
- 2 cans (28 ozs. each) pear-shaped tomatoes
- 2 cans (6 ozs. each) tomato paste
- 1 teaspoon oregano
- 1 teaspoon basil leaves
- 1½ teaspoons salt
- ¼ teaspoon freshly ground pepper
- Red-pepper flakes to taste, optional
- 1 lb. spaghetti, cooked

1. Lightly mix together meat, parsley, salt and pepper. Form into 24 meatballs.
2. Heat lard in large cast-iron skillet or Dutch oven. Add meatballs.
3. Brown meatballs on all sides. Remove meatballs; set aside. Retain meat drippings in skillet.
4. To make sauce: Sauté onion, green pepper and garlic in pan drippings until vegetables are limp. Crush 5 meatballs into sautéed vegetable mixture.
5. Add tomatoes, tomato paste, oregano, basil, salt, pepper, red-pepper flakes. Simmer uncovered 40 minutes, stirring often.
6. Ten minutes before serving time, heat meatballs in tomato sauce.
7. Serve spaghetti in large bowls. Spoon sauce over spaghetti; serve meatballs on the side. Include hot garlic bread and crisp green salad on the menu for a delicious meal!

Makes 8 servings



Gary Player:

He Gave His Caddie A $3,500 Tip

When little Gary Player underwent major abdominal surgery over a year ago, followed by surgery to remove a cyst on his leg, there was speculation that he could never play big-time golf again. Yet this golfing star from South Africa came back to win his second Masters tournament and launched a second career as a champion golfer at age 37. . . . Player was the first foreign golfer to win the Masters in 1961 and went on to win the PGA twice, the British Open twice and the U.S. Open once. Only three other golfers have ever won what is known as the "Grand Slam" of major tournaments. Player has won 92 tournaments around the world since turning pro. . . . Player's victory in the 1974 Masters was all the more remarkable considering that he could no longer swing a club as he did in the past, due to his surgery. He had to readjust his swing completely. . . . The 5 foot 6 inch, 150-pound Player feels his religious faith has helped make him a consistent winner. "I'm a Bible puncher," he says, "and I get a great deal of strength from my belief in God." On one of his scorecards, Player inscribed a legend, "You can do anything through Jesus Christ who strengthens me." . . . Player is one of the most generous players on the golf tour. After winning his first U.S. Open, he gave away his entire $25,000 purse— $20,000 went to a program to promote junior golf and $5,000 went to the American Cancer Fund. Following his recent Masters victory, he gave his caddie $3,500 in cash and a set of his golf clubs. . . . Player and his wife Vivian have six children.

The original cigarette.

The Original Length.
Others have added millimeters, filters and traps, but nobody ever found a way to pack in more flavor than the original Camel.

The Original Camel.
His name was Old Joe and he was just another face with Barnum & Bailey. Our artist sketched him, and 60 years later Old Joe remains world famous as the symbol of the finest cigarette made.

The Original Disappearing Pyramid.
Once we took this pyramid out to give Old Joe more walking room. Several tons of angry mail later, it was back in place forever.

The Original Blend.
The original measure of a cigarette was taste. So we blended the Burley, Virginia and Turkish tobaccos that deliver the most taste. Result: Camel, still the best tasting cigarette in the world.

Camel. You don't change a good thing.

The Doctor Lets You In Coming: Drugs to Prevent Cancer?

Drugs for use in cancer are well-known. But they are for treatment once cancer has developed. This is called chemotherapy. But drugs to prevent cancer are a different matter. Up to now, such substances have been relatively unknown. However, two such groups of drugs—called anthracyclines and cactinomycins—are now being used in mice and chickens. They could represent a tremendous breakthrough in cancer prevention. Think of it: If we could wipe out smallpox by preventing it (with vaccines), why not cancer? . . . The drugs have been used in the laboratory to prevent cancer caused by a certain virus. Animals infected with the virus develop cancer 100 percent of the time. But when given these drugs first and then infected with the virus, *they do not develop the disease. What happens is this: Cancer-causing virus converts one of the nucleic acids (DNA) in the normal cell so the cell becomes cancerous. The job of these drugs is to head off the virus before it can convert the DNA. These cancer-preventing drugs are not yet ready for regular use in humans. Drugs to prevent a disease usually take longer to test than those for treatment because it is often easier to determine if a drug relieves than if it prevents.

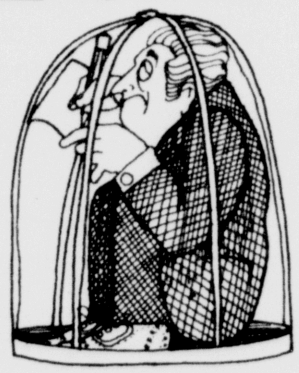
Jobmanship

Are You Trapped in a Non-Imaginative Job?



Were they always scolding you for forgetfulness when you were a child? "If your head wasn't attached, you'd forget it. . . ." Now, at work, you probably find your mind continues to wander. You lose track of where you were or, worse yet, you make mistakes. The Johnson O'Connor Human Engineering Laboratories, which have tested almost half a million people for job aptitude, have discovered that what is condemned as absentmindedness is often a powerful imagination and a rich flow of ideas trapped in the wrong job. Jobs that demand a steady level of straightforward concentration and in which a strong imagination can be a handicap include accountant, bookkeeper, key-punch operator, computer programmer, business executive, banker, typist, auditor, lawyer, administrator, physician, manager, supervisor. High-imagination people do well in teaching, selling, writing, designing, interviewing, or any occupation that gives them an opportunity to talk with people and to think up new ideas, techniques, products or methods. If you're an imaginative person who has spent years obtaining training and experience in a non-imaginative occupation and is now dissatisfied, you can salvage your training. An accountant could turn to teaching accounting; an administrator, executive or supervisor could seek a position in a high-imagination industry or in marketing.

To smoke or not to smoke.

That is the question.

With all the slings and arrows that have been aimed at smoking, you may well be wondering why you smoke at all.

If you don't smoke nobody is urging you to start.

But if you do smoke, you may enjoy it so much you don't want to stop.

There's the rub. Because if you do smoke, what do you smoke?

The cigarettes of the past provided a lot of smoking pleasure but they also delivered a lot of the 'tar' and nicotine the critics have aimed at.

And most of the new wave brands with low 'tar' and nicotine taste like a lot of hot air.

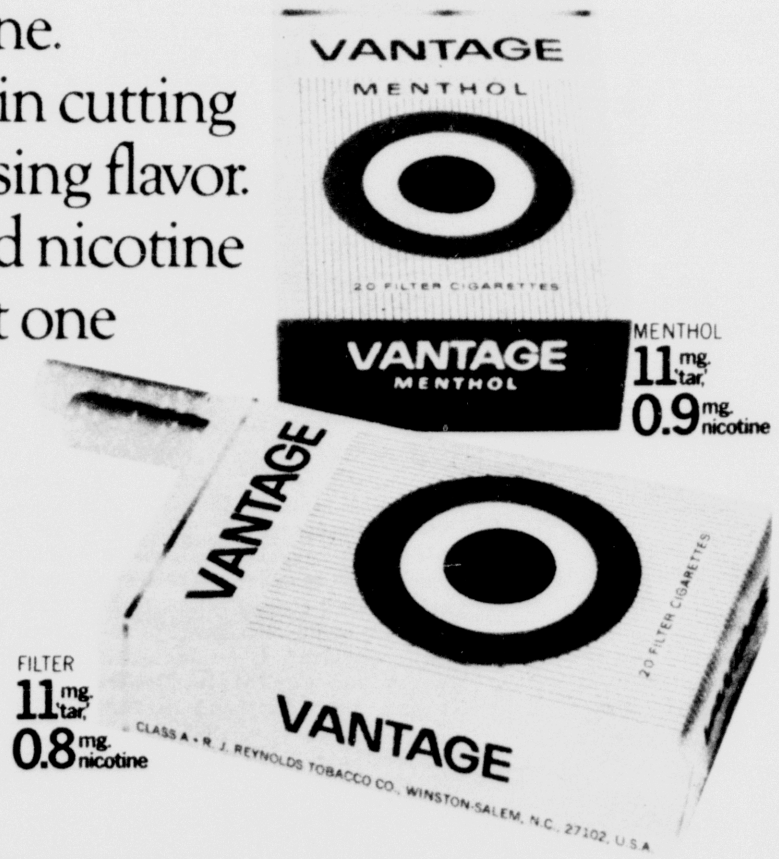
But now Vantage has entered the scene.

Vantage is the cigarette that succeeds in cutting down 'tar' and nicotine without compromising flavor.

While Vantage isn't the lowest 'tar' and nicotine cigarette you'll find, it certainly is the lowest one you'll enjoy smoking.

If you smoke, try a pack of Vantage. And if you don't, why not show this ad to someone who does.

It might settle the question.



Warning: The Surgeon General Has Determined That Cigarette Smoking Is Dangerous to Your Health.

How I spend my summer vacation

Water-skiing! It's the one summer sport that really makes me feel alive and energetic. It's thrilling! I wouldn't miss it for a day.

And that's why I depend so much on Tampax tampons. Because when I have my period, I don't want to be tied to the shore. I want to stay as active as ever, whether I'm skimming over the water or swimming in it.

And Tampax tampons let me. They don't show, can't chafe. They're worn internally so I don't even feel them. And I know their absorbent protection will let me ski all through my summer vacation.

The internal protection more women trust

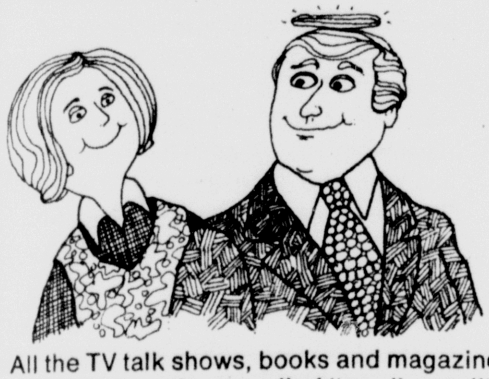
People and You

Faithful Husbands



All the TV talk shows, books and magazine articles about the so-called "new" morality have a lot of men secretly worried in an upside-down fashion. It's upside-down because people normally worry if they break their own moral guidelines. But in this case many men are wondering, "Am I one of the few who are still keeping to the old ideals?" Dr. Harry J. Johnson, executive director of the Life Extension Institute, which each year conducts 10,000 daylong medical checkups, became aware of this masculine problem when so many of the men said they were afraid they might be out of step with the times. To find out what the facts really were, Dr. Johnson surveyed 5,260 married men from all over the United States and discovered that faithfulness is apparently still normal among the vast majority. A massive 79.4 percent of the men, or about 4,174 of those in the study, said they do not engage in extramarital sexual activities. And of the 20.6 percent who admitted to wandering, only 271 say they do so on a regular basis. The men interviewed by Dr. Johnson ranged in age from their twenties to over sixty-five. All were executives, the kind of people who would probably find it quite easy to arrange time, money and opportunity for extramarital affairs if they chose. Dr. Johnson says his study has demolished the usual estimate of infidelity. "Highly exaggerated," he says.—By Shirley Sloan Fader

you they don't like me or what I did," he says, "but they can't tell you why. Some of them just don't like authority." Others think he brought his troubles on himself by carrying on a vendetta. And a few, no doubt, are jealous of his fame and prosperity. (Pusser gets seven percent of the film's net profits, and earns $1,000 per speaking engagement. On the other hand, he is still $30,000 in debt for medical bills.)

The entire experience, Pusser admits, has changed him considerably: "I look at folks differently now. Instead of thinking about what might be bad in them I think about what might be good. And I'm not as quick-tempered as I was. It used to ache inside me when people said bad things about me. But all that doesn't seem terribly important anymore. I'm more at peace with myself now."

A few months ago the Adamsville Junior Chamber of Commerce had a "Buford Pusser Day." More than 4,500 people—the biggest crowd ever in McNairy County—jammed the town, and helped to raise $10,000 for a Buford Pusser Park. Buford himself expects to enjoy it, too, for he's going back home to buy a farm and settle down. "What else would I do?" he asks. "I'm a country boy."

Soft-pedal your fat away!

...with easy-going cycle exerciser

NOW ONLY $7.88

Folds Flat for Compact Storage!

Pedal Your Fat Away Even When You're Watching TV!
Relax and enjoy yourself as you pedal away those unsightly inches! Cycle Exerciser lets you stretch out in comfort—indoors or out!

HELPS...

- PULL IN YOUR STOMACH
- SLIM YOUR WAISTLINE
- FIRM YOUR THIGHS
- TRIM YOUR HIPS

Why do dull, boring, repetitive calisthenics for a slimmer, trimmer figure—when this "pedal while you relax" way will do the trick a lot more pleasurably...and just as effectively! Our fun-slanted Cycle Exerciser lets you lie down, stretch out, and pedal away those inches in comfort!

Lie Down...And Shape Up!

Cycle Exerciser makes the job fun...because you don't even have to think about the work you're doing. Just stretch out on the comfortable full-length vinyl mat, and go through the motions—indoors or out—while you catch up on your reading, watch TV, sun-bathe, or even keep time to music on stereo or radio. A few minutes of pedaling a day helps invigorate you, and tones your muscles as you slim down. Day by day, you can stretch out your cycling time so that flab melts away even faster. You'll feel healthier, peppier...and have more get-up-and-go!

SHAPE UP TOGETHER!
Give another Cycle Exerciser to your husband or best guy. It will work wonders for his body, just as it will for yours! Think what a shapely couple you'll make! Save when you order two Cycle Exercisers for only $14.76.

THIS OFFER MAY NOT BE REPEATED THIS SEASON!
Be sure of pedaling away those inches in comfort. Order today for a slimmer trimmer figure. This offer may not be repeated this season.

Our Unconditional Guarantee!
Use your Cycle Exerciser for 2 weeks, stretching out the time each day. Follow the suggested exercise programs spelled out in your instruction manual. Then, if you don't agree that your Cycle Exerciser is really helping you feel better, look trimmer and shaplier—just return it for your money back! Moving parts are made of rugged chromed steel. It's a breeze to carry, and folds almost flat to a compact 28" x 20" x 1¼". Stores easily in a closet, under a bed, behind a door. Fits conveniently in your car trunk, too. Whenever you want to pedal your fat away, Cycle Exerciser is ready to go in an instant! Order today!

What in the World!

SCULPTOR DAWSON
With his "Praying Hands"

Too often, the only artifacts we see along America's highways are the neon signs advertising motels and hot dogs. But on Highway 71 in Webb City, Mo., Jack Dawson, a 23-year-old local art teacher and sculptor has created a giant statue of praying hands—a work of art that is sure to make travelers pause. That was exactly the artist's intention. He wanted to do something "to make people stop and think as they travel on a fast-paced schedule of life." Dawson began the sculpture in his backyard, then was able to complete it and move it to its site after local organizations donated funds to finish the project.

DOG-LOVER DAY
To the rescue

Doris Day has ten dogs. "All of them were saved from ghastly fates in various kennels, pounds and rainstorms. Some of them were in such bad shape I had to tranquilize them just to get the mange solution on them, but they are all beautiful and healthy now. I carry blankets in the trunk of my car and I'm always picking up dogs all over town and finding homes for them. I think they've got a club. They say listen, there's this blond lady in a green car, so go and lie down on Ventura Boulevard outside the gates of CBS and when she comes out, play dead and she'll wrap you up and take you home and when you wake up you'll be in this fan-tast-ic place!" From "People Are Crazy Here," by Rex Reed (Delacorte Press, $7.95).

If Wayne Rogers hadn't had a run-in with three hoodlums, he might never have become an actor and wound up on "M*A*S*H" playing Trapper John. "Two other guys and I bought a restaurant on Christopher Street in New York City. One day three tough guys came in and one said, 'I been lookin' around the neighborhood to buy a place like this.' I told them it wasn't for sale. He growled, 'Maybe you didn't unnerstand: We are buying the place.' The way he looked at me, I knew what he had in mind. So I said, 'Of course....' Then I talked to my partners, but they didn't want to sell. I told them if they wanted to end up swimming in the Hudson in a concrete kimono, that was their business—but I wanted out. So they bought me out. They lasted two more years, then sold out."

ARMOUR'S ARMOURY
By Richard Armour

TOYING WITH TOYS

Our children get toys from friends,
They get them from relatives too,
And many are toys that break—

Our children get toys for Christmas,
For birthdays, for any old time.
The generous givers are many,
And all I would thank in rhyme.

Our children get toys they scatter,
At finding odd places they're clever . . .
The givers of toys pick them out,
But we pick them up, however.

Presenting a lusty, rip-roaring series from TIME LIFE BOOKS

National Archives, Record Group 111

Smithsonian Institution

"HANGING JUDGE" PARKER • RED CLOUD • BELLE STARR
Lawmakers and lawbreakers... heroes and villains... shady ladies and psalm-singing preachers... the real people behind the legends you've been hearing about all your life—even more fantastic than the myths.

"In Without Knocking" by Charles M. Russell courtesy Amon Carter Museum, Fort Worth, Texas

Abilene... Cheyenne... Dodge City... more than names, they were places—places that made magic around the world. They still do. Wherever people crave adventure, invoke the spirit of the American pioneer or seek new horizons, they look to the history of the American West. To some, it's a tale of raw courage against great odds. To others, it's a fable of heroes and villains. And to everyone, it's where we escape to when we dream of breaking loose and breathing free.

In an extensively researched and documented series of books designed to give you a true picture of pioneer life, the editors of TIME-LIFE BOOKS have produced an epic story more exciting than any movie or TV Western. THE OLD WEST teems with the treasures of archives and historical societies, extraordinary paintings, drawings, maps, posters and newspaper clippings. It shows you the people who met its most extraordinary challenges, people who became The Forty-Niners, The Trailblazers, The Railroaders.

The introductory volume, The Cowboys, shows you the real life of the real cowboy—from his early days as a young bumpkin looking for an interesting life in the West, down to his last trail and spree. You'll see him at work, at play, coping with cattle barons, stampedes, the rigors of the long drives and roundups...

The Indians shows you the daily lives of tribes like the Comanche, the Crow and the Sioux... their customs, beliefs, taboos... great leaders like Crazy Horse, Red Cloud and Sitting Bull...

The Gunfighters introduces you to those marvelously wicked characters you've been hearing about all your life: the Daltons, Billy The Kid, the James Boys, Butch Cassidy...

The Expressmen brings to galloping life the men who rode The Pony Express, The Overland Stage, Wells Fargo, as you, too, join the pioneers on the great trails going West.

Doesn't this sound like something that could turn the dullest day into an adventure? That's how the editors of TIME-LIFE BOOKS feel. And that's why we're offering you The Cowboys for 10 days free examination. If you don't love it, just return it without obligation. So why not mail the attached card, or coupon at right today.
